WEEK OF RAIN HELPS CROPS

Break of Drouth Should Mean Large Increase in Yield For the Farmers.

RICH FARMS IN THIS COUNTY

The welcome rains that have been falling for the past eight or ten days are worth millions of dollars to the farmer. Even here in Princess Anne county, to say nothing of the Tidewater section generally, the value of crops has been enhanced by these copious showers to the extent of thousands upon thousands of dollars. To be sure the temperature accompanying these rains has been chilly, below the normal, but this may only serve to make vegetation stronger and healthy, and with the advent of a bright and genial sun, now approaching, crops of all kinds will push forward by leaps and bounds; and the sturdy farmer of this peaceful and thrice blessed land should feel proud and thankful that his lot had been cast amid surroundings so favorable.

A recent hurried visit down along the Norfolk Southern as far as Munden gave the writer glimpses of the homes and farm conditions along the route, though little opportunity to chat with the people. At all sides between stations from Euclid on the big fields in cultivation showed that idlers had no place with the owners of the soil, as long rows of potatoes, corn and cabbage showed that the hand of industry and thrift were alert.

Though too early in the season to speculate as to corn prospects, the plants looked healthy and vigorous and with rain sufficient for several months the yield will be bountiful. Potatoes looked promising, though their growth it was stated, had been somewhat retarded by cold and unusually dry weather. However, there is time enough yet for maturing a satisfactory harvest and the farmer is by no means discouraged as to his potato crop.

The section of Princess Anne through which the Norfolk Southern passes as far down as Munden is remarkable for the beauty and fertility of the soil, and while as yet the lands are cheap and easily secured, there are a number of large tracts capable of subdivision, the time is rapidly approaching when even a moderate-sized home cannot be had for ten times the amount it could be bought for at present. The lands are easily cultivated, the markets are convenient and remunerative, the climate exceptionally mild and tempting both winter and summer—all conspire to make this section of Princess Anne one of the most valuable garden spots of Tidewater Virginia.

Over in Northampton county, as the writer well knows, it is now almost impossible to buy a farm for love or money at any price. Should there by chance be a strip of land offered, it would be picked up by some one before breakfast. The lands down Munden-way are just as valuable as are the Northampton lands and the time will come when they will find as ready sale and at figures equally high. Now is the time to buy a Princess Anne home.

CANCER REMEDY IS CALLED A SUCCESS

PLANS FOR FREE TREATMENT

Dr. S. P. Beebe, Professor of Experimental Therapeutics at Cornell University Medical College, presents in the current issue of the New York medical Journal a preliminary report of a treatment of inoperable cancer. Dr. Beebe is widely known as an authority on cancer and its treatment.

Recent investigations by both the Harvard Cancer Commission and the Crocker Cancer Research Fund of Columbia University have shown that radium's chief value is in superficial growths and that radio-activity from this element does not reach far enough to destroy the more remote cells in deep-seated cancer.

The new remedy has been used at the Polyclinic Hospital without any accessory treatment, such as x-rays, radium, etc., and the results have been much more brilliant than those obtained at the General Memorial Hospital.

It was learned that upward of 30 cases of inoperable and incurable cancer had been treated at the Polyclinic Hospital with the remedy under the joint supervision of Doctor Beebe and Dr. J. Wallace Beveridge and that not a death from cancer had occurred in the institution since the remedy was introduced there. The majority of these patients have already been discharged as recovered.

The new treatment as used is of vegetable origin and is administered with the hypodermic needle.

The discoverer of the remedy is Alexander Horowitz, Ph.D., an Austrian chemist and biologist, who carried on his preliminary studies in his native country. He has been carrying on experimental work for the purpose of improving the method of treatment for the last year. A country-wide plan for the free treatment of cancer patients is being worked out. Three hospitals will be used in New York, with other hospitals located in other large cities of the United States.

In referring to his remedy Dr. Beebe recalls that other widely heralded remedies have ultimately failed and hence he writes with much reserve. He first gives the details of three cases of superficial cancer treated outside the hospital. One of six years' standing healed completely in eight weeks. A second, which had been retarded by over-exposure to x-rays, healed in two and a half months and remains healed, a period of six months having elapsed. A third of 11 years' standing, healed in six weeks and remains healed.

The second group was treated at the General Memorial Hospital. The majority of them died, some of hemorrhages as the result of the denudation of large blood vessels. These cases were all treated with other remedies beside that devised by Doctor Horowitz. One of these cases was treated with radium, which produced a marked beneficial effect, with almost complete healing over the surface of the growth. But unfortunately, a few weeks later the tumor recurred, growing with unusual rapidity, in spite of the heretofore useful methods of treatment.

It is said that the remedy attacks the growths in a uniform manner, no matter where they are located.

Convicts to Build Roads.

A representative meeting of citizens of Southampton county was held last week at Courtland, in behalf of securing convict labor for building roads for that county. A number of speeches were made and much earnestness in the movement was manifested.

Guy T. Horner, who is the representative of Southampton county in the Legislature, and who had gone thoroughly into the subject of convict labor on the public highways, presented some interesting data on the work of the thirty-three different convict road camps of the State, addressed the meeting on the advantages of convict labor. This gentleman stated that each convict camp cost the State on an average of $8,300 to organize and equip, but that the average cost to the county using the convicts was from 25 to 35 cents per convict per day. The State houses, clothes, feeds, guards and otherwise provides for the convicts, the county providing the materials for road work and the necessary medical attention.

The county Board of Supervisors was present at the meeting and was unanimous in its decision to try the convict road camp in Southampton county, and took steps to make application to the State Highway Commission for a convict road force in 1916.

The subject of better highways is one of vital concern, and is one that is being agitated with considerable force at this time in Princess Anne county, there being a general and popular feeling that the roads of the county should be improved as far as possible.

Good roads pay and money wisely expended to make good roads is the best possible use of the county's funds.

Oyster Growers and Dealers Meet

The annual meeting of the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America will be held in Washington, D. C., June 15 and 16, with headquarters in the New Willard Hotel. From present indications it appears that this is going to be the best convention ever held. Everything points to a good attendance, and the program that is being arranged will be the most interesting and attractive that has ever been gotten up. The list of speakers for this year includes some of the best known authorities on seafood products of America. There will be none of the long scientific papers that have a tendency to tire the members, but rather, everything said at the sessions will be couched in the plain everyday language that all of us will readily grasp. In other words this is going to be one grand old-fashioned heart-to-heart talk, with a lot of good things thrown in.

At a meeting of the Baptist ministers in Norfolk this week a committee was named to protest to the Postmaster General against the appointment of State Senator John A. Lesner as postmaster for the city of Norfolk.

HOTEL PROJECT IS UP TONIGHT

Meeting Is Called to Explain Details of the Plans to Those Interested.

ALL ARE URGED TO ATTEND

The committee appointed by President Grice of the Chamber of Commerce to promote the financial requirements of the proposed hotel on the site of the old Princess Anne hotel has called a meeting for tonight, at 8 o'clock, in Mason's Hall, to which they urgently request the attendance of every resident of the Beach, either permanent or transient, who has the building up of a resort that will be the rival of any on the Atlantic coast at heart.

It is the duty of all who have property interests at the Beach to be present and express their views. The committee extend a special invitation to the ladies.

The Truck Experiment Station.

Prof. T. C. Johnson, director of the Virginia Truck Experiment Station, located at Diamond Springs, has furnished the Times with a copy of an interesting article on a plant disease property widely distributed. We would be much pleased to publish the article for the benefit of the farmers and truckers of Princess Anne, but cannot do so at present on account of our limited space. The experiment station at Diamond Springs is doing valuable work for agriculturists and this paper not only endorses the efforts it puts forth in behalf of the tillers of the soil, but hopes to be in position later on to give publicity to such matter as Prof. Johnson may see proper to furnish us for publication.

Norfolk-Southern Appointments.

The Norfolk Southern Railroad has named the following gentlemen for positions, taking effect June 1: John Dwyer, superintendent of maintenance of way, his duties embracing the care of bridges, tracks and buildings, with headquarters in Norfolk.

President Joseph H. Young of the Norfolk Southern in a circular states that the maintenance of track, bridges, and buildings will be under the supervision of the general superintendent, and that new construction work will be under the supervision of the chief engineer.

Congressional Timber.

Charles T. Bland, a well known Portsmouth lawyer, and a good fellow as he is called, is being spoken of for Congress among a goodly number who know and admire him. But how about Princess Anne? At least one of her citizens is an avowed aspirant while another one equally prominent, while mum, is mentioned to succeed Mr. Holland. So it is certain the present Congressional incumbent will not make the race without opposition. We shall see what we shall see.

RAILROADS ORDER ALL TRUNKS VALUED

Baggage Checked After June 3 Must Have Price Set on It by Owner.

ADOPT AN INSURANCE PLAN

On and after June 3 all persons who check trunks on railroad tickets will be obliged under the provisions of the Cummins act amending the interstate commerce laws to declare the value of their baggage, and the baggage master—a man of many troubles—is beginning to suspect that he is due for an unusually unhappy Summer.

The railroads now carry trunks and other baggage not exceeding 150 pounds in weight free with tickets of transportation and assume liability in case of loss or damage up to $100. They declare they cannot assume unlimited liability as permitted under the Cummins act, but will accept the alternative of assuming the $100 liability on each piece of baggage checked and insuring the passenger for all over that amount on a basis of ten cents per $100, the rate laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The amendment speaks specifically of "shippers," and although no mention is made of passengers checking trunks the amendment is interpreted to mean that baggage constitutes a shipment in the meaning of the law. As shippers must sign a declaration as to the value of shipments it has been decided that each and every shipper of a trunk must declare the real value of its contents when he has his trunk checked.

Anyone who signs a declaration dishonestly, a railway official who has made a study of the new law says, will be guilty of a misdemeanor. For instance, if a trunk is sent as baggage and declared to be worth $100 and the trunk goes astray but turns up later and it is found that a $500 diamond ring is in the trunk the owner is liable to go to jail. It is equally an offence to overestimate the value of baggage.

It is understood that the railroads will consent to accept declarations as to values from agents of shippers, which might be a valet, or butler, or porter, or second cousin, or anybody who helps a shipper or passenger to make use of the checking privilege, but everybody has got to be mighty careful that no false declarations are made or there is sure to be trouble for somebody.

Railroad officials whose work will be increased by the new regulations, do not believe that passengers will be tickled over the necessity of taking time to go to a baggage master and sign a declaration setting forth the true value of the contents of trunks, particularly if it is near train time and another train isn't due for several hours. It is expected they will urge the traveling public to go to the station early and avoid the rush.

Just what will happen in the baggage room of a crowded city terminal or a lively Summer resort when long lines of impatient passengers are waiting to declare values is a matter they do not like to contemplate just now. It is comparatively easy to check a trunk in a hurry, but it will be more difficult for many passengers to make up their minds just what things are worth, and delays will try temper sorely.

As for the much abused baggage man he is hoping for the best.

Fire Damages Cottage.

The cottage in rear of the Ferbee Hotel belonging to Mrs. Booth of Petersburg, and occupied by Mrs. Griffith and Mrs. Showler, also of Petersburg, was damaged by fire to the extent of probably a thousand dollars early Thursday night, a defective flue being responsible for the blaze. Mr. Kelley of the "Raleigh" discovered the fire in the nick of time and sent a colored man to warn the ladies. This he did and to this no doubt the ladies owe their lives, and feel duly grateful. The volunteer fire department responded and with the advantage of a favorable wind the fire was kept from spreading.

LANDS AT AUCTION.

Judge A. J. Ackiss, acting under a decree of the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County, will expose several small tracts of land at auction in front of the Corporation Court in Norfolk on Saturday, June 5th. The decree grows out of a chancery suit of Capps and others against Capps and others. One is a tract of about 30 acres near Owl's Creek. The second body embraces three small tracts situated near Seacrest Station and contains about seven acres in all. These tracts are bounded by the lands of A. C. Smith, John Williams and others.

Wind and Rain Storm.

The second rain and wind storm in point of severity at the Beach this season set in Tuesday night and prolonged its grip throughout Wednesday to Thursday night, the rain ceasing during the night, though the wind kept up its fury, though in abated form, all day Friday. Fortunately little damage was done.

Council Meeting.

The June session of the Virginia Beach town council is scheduled to meet in their half Monday night, June 7. Among deferred matter to be considered is the one looking to drinking fountains for horses. This is along humane lines and will no doubt have favorable consideration.

Mr. Myron E. Bristow, of Gloucester county, announces that he has withdrawn his candidacy for commonwealth's attorney and entered the race for the Legislature. Mr. Bristow is a citizen of Gloucester Point and the good people of that county will be faithfully and ably represented if they elect him.

The Cuban American is welcome to our exchange list. It is published at La Gloria, Cuba, a town of a thousand American colonists. Fine schools, churches, stores, hotels and all other up-to-date requirements are enjoyed. The colony is thrifty and the people happy.

The Journal of United States Artillery magazine for June is on our table. It is brim-full of interesting matter pertaining to one of Uncle Sam's big institutions. Published by the Coast Artillery School press at Fort Monroe, Va.

NORFOLK-VIRGINIA BEACH BOULEVARD.

The road between Virginia Beach and Norfolk is almost prohibitive to such automobilists as value their lungs, their clothes or their cars. In dry weather this road is too dusty, in rainy weather it is too muddy, and under the very best of conditions it is a rough proposition. Between these two points we have one of the most delightful rides possible to conceive of. There is a panorama of field and woodland along the entire route and at the end of it the spacious ocean. The ride through "The Hollies" is perhaps one of the most picturesque and charming in this entire section. But in the present condition of the roads automobilists would venture at their peril. When we consider the fact that with the ancient Egyptians and Greeks good roads were a commonplace, and that some of these are still being used as highways of traffic after thousands of years of existence, it does seem supremely ridiculous, and is a reflection upon our intelligence to have to be continually discussing the advisability and value of good roads. So far from building good roads we do not seem to be even able to keep up repairs on such as we have. One of the very best investments for the two counties involved would be the construction of a broad and well-paved Boulevard between Virginia Beach and Norfolk.

We know cities in this country, cities of lesser population and importance than Norfolk, which, if they possessed the scenic environment which is ours, would have a wood-block or asphalt road of double width between these communities. But if we can not yet hope to get something so fine, at least oyster shell are plentiful and cheap in this section, and in connection with the State penitentiary authorities, who would probably furnish the labor, our county officials might be able to give us a boulevard between Virginia Beach and Norfolk that would be a pleasure and a profit to all parties concerned.

SPARE THE FORESTS.

The ruthless destruction for private gain and at individual caprice of the magnificent pine forests in this section is one of the most distressing contemplations of the lover of Nature. Even the younger generation has witnessed once glorious tracts of woodland converted into sun-baked wastes of shabby half-cultivated fields and shoddy suburbs of cheap wooden buildings. With the thousands of laws upon our statute books there is none to foster and protect the beauties and glories of Nature. A few month's activities of a noisy little saw-mill will suffice to destroy utterly and irrevocably that magnificent adornment which Nature provided through the slow process of centuries, and frequently the only excuse is that some individual needs the money which can be extracted from the commercialization of the timber. It is a shocking contemplation and a cruel injury to posterity. In both Princess Anne and Norfolk Counties there are still left some beautiful tracts of virgin forests. These constitute the chief charm of our landscapes and are the main factors in rendering adjacent sections beautiful and valuable. Much of the health-giving and invigorating quality of the ozone at Virginia Beach is due to the surrounding pine forests. We are making a fatal mistake to permit these woodlands to be ruthlessly cut away. While they are still with us—while there is yet time—something should be done to preserve the remnants of the forests of Tidewater section, either by State supervision and protection or by nature-loving public spirited individuals.

ROAD BUILDING IN WEST VIRGINIA.

A few days ago Mercer county, West Virginia, voted a supplemental bond issue of $350,000 to finish the good roads system under construction in that county. The bond issue carried by about 18,000 majority. Two years ago Mercer defeated a proposed bond issue for road betterment. But the agitation continued and 18 months ago the county voted a $600,000 bond issue to build a system of improved roads, 45 miles to be laid in macadam. This sum, after a years work, was found to be inadequate, and now the county that killed the first good roads proposition two years ago votes an additional $350,000 for precisely that purpose. Even Athens which voted "no" before, votes "aye" this time. People are learning that will build up a community as rapidly and as effectively as a good live local newspaper.

There is no logical reason why Virginia Beach should not be to the Middle West, South and South West what Atlantic City is to the East.

With the added advantage of being practically all year round resort, and with the splendid transportation facilities we enjoy from Washington, D. C. (I refer to the palatial steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Line) there is no reason why, with proper hotel accommodations, Virginia Beach should not be the mecca for our three hundred and thousand citizens, for a delightful winter resort and a cool night's sleep.

"It's a long way to Tipperary" and for the hostile armies it's a still longer way to Paris, to Berlin, to London, to Constantinople and Vienna.

The Times takes pleasure in publishing items of news sent to it to Virginia Beach. No section of Princess Anne is so remote or isolated to be known or heard from through the Times.

The poem, "A War Lament," by Norfolk's distinguished poet, George Frederic Viett, printed elsewhere in this issue, could grace the pages of the greatest newspaper or the most scholarly magazine in the land.

In the next issue of The Times there will appear a letter from a Norfolk gentleman setting forth a striking and sensational suggestion for a project that is perfectly feasible and which would be of immense interest and benefit to Virginia Beach and Cape Henry. Be sure and read it.

It has been said that "the retrospect of life swarms with lost opportunities." Buy a home at Princess Anne County or a little farm in Princess Anne County now, while prices are within your reach, and you will look back on one opportunity that was not lost, to your profit and contentment.

The projected organization of the York River Farmers' Exchange took definite shape last week at West Point by the election of permanent officers. Reports showed that the officials of the Chesapeake Steamship Company and those of the Southern Railway Company would do all in their power to make the exchange a success. They recognize the great value an exchange would be to the entire York River section. The Times suggests that the farmers of Princess Anne county get together in a similar organization. An interchange of ideas, a discussion of products pertaining to farm products, their marketing, etc., would produce results of the highest value.

VIRGINIA BEACH

One of Finest Beaches in the United States—Should Be All-Year-Round Resort.

ATLANTIC CITY OF SOUTH

We give space this week to another letter from Mr. R. P. Andrews, of Washington, D. C., who tells of the advantages and attractions possessed by Virginia Beach over other ocean resorts in the country. He thinks there is no logical reason why Virginia Beach to the Middle West, South and Southwest should not be what Atlantic City is to the East. Here is his letter:

Mr. W. H. French,

My dear Mr. French: I have received a copy of the first two numbers of the Princess Anne Times, and I wish to heartily congratulate you on the quality and typographical appearance of your paper. If you keep up the standard you have set in the first numbers, you should receive the unqualified support of the citizens of Virginia Beach and the County.

In my humble opinion, and I believe my experience has made me a fairly good judge, there is no medium that will build up a community as rapidly and as effectively as a good live local newspaper.

There is no logical reason why Virginia Beach should not be to the Middle West, South and South West what Atlantic City is to the East.

With the added advantage of being practically all year round resort, and with the splendid transportation facilities we enjoy from Washington, D. C. (I refer to the palatial steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Line) there is no reason why, with proper hotel accommodations, Virginia Beach should not be the mecca for our three hundred and thousand citizens, for a delightful winter resort and a cool night's sleep.

It seems to me, if those great transients, the Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Virginian, and Seaboard Air Lines, would feature Virginia Beach in their folders, they would ultimately build up a tourist patronage which would be free from competition.

Again, I wish you success, and I see no reason why the Princess Anne Times should not be a daily instead of a weekly within the next five years.

With personal regards, I beg to remain, most truly yours,

R. P. ANDREWS,
President and General Manager,

Virginia Beach Has a Newspaper.

The Princess Anne Times is the name of a weekly paper which made its appearance at Virginia Beach last week. W. H. French, a veteran newspaper man, is at the helm of the new paper and if he doesn't make a go of it no one else need try. The first issue of the Times looks good; looks better, indeed, than the average run of weekly papers that come among our exchanges. What's more the Times is well written—Plymouth, N. C., Independent, May 21, 1915.

Friendly Remarks by a Neighbor.

The maiden number of a clean-cut, crisp and newsy weekly, The Princess Anne Times, published at Virginia Beach, is welcome to the exchange list of the Star. The editor and manager, W. H. French, was formerly of this section, where he was well esteemed for many virtues and for capabilities that aptly fit him for the successful conduct of his new venture.

Brother French's friends of the fourth estate will cordially bespeak for both himself and his enterprise no end of good fortune.—Portsmouth Star, May 28.

Cause of Militarism Is Usually Commercialism, Never Patriotism

By HENRY FORD, Industrial Magnate

THE cause of militarism is never patriotism; it is usually commercialism. If people would but think these matters out! When the people start to think they usually think right.

THE COMMERCIALISTS OF EUROPE, THROUGH THEIR ONLY BAD COMMERCIAL METHODS, ARE RESPONSIBLE WITH THE POLITICIANS FOR THE EXISTING SITUATION. No; the politicians never could have brought it about had it not been sanctioned by the great commercialists.

We here in the United States are in grave danger of a similar fate. Commercialism plays its part in California's prejudice against the Japanese. The trouble is we're talking about this country, this state, this city, this factory, as if one country, one state, one city, one factory, could be of paramount importance. We boast of independence. There is only interdependence.

WE WANT TO STOP SUCH NARROW TALK. WE WANT TO TALK ABOUT THIS WORLD. IT IS TO THE INTEREST OF EVERY MAN ON EARTH THAT EVERY OTHER MAN ON EARTH SHALL BE PROSPEROUS AND HAPPY.

Democracy Is Making Tremendous Advances In Europe's War Zone

By ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE, Former Senator from Indiana

WE are too sordid and material in looking upon the situation. I went to Germany and then to France with the idea that we Americans picked up from our newspapers. They were all wrong ideas. My experience over there was simple. I was in a case of picking one reconnoitering.

When I tell you that we may come off the worst loser by this war I do not give you my own opinion merely. SOME OF THE FINEST MINDS IN EUROPE EXPRESSED THAT SAME IDEA TO ME.

The great gain of the war in Europe, whoever wins and however the issues come out, will be the tremendous advance of democracy.

All the sermons ever preached on peace from the pulpits have done less than this war has to produce a spirit of self sacrifice or devotion to the common cause.

AND IN THIS COUNTRY OUR BEST MEN HAVE ALMOST FORGOTTEN PATRIOTISM IN THE QUEST FOR BUSINESS ADVANTAGE.

Renaissance Will Force Artistic Europe to Sit at America's Feet

By DAVID SEABURY, Artist, President of the Society of the American Renaissance

THE world of today is proud to learn from American engineers and American business men. The time is coming, and when Europe will sit at the feet of American writers, American painters, American sculptors and American architects.

THE ANIMATING BREATH OF THE RENAISSANCE WILL BE THE SOCIAL SPIRIT, EVEN AS PHILOSOPHY IN GREECE AND FAITH IN ITS INSPIRED THEIR GREAT PERIODS.

Briefly, this means that we shall not try to produce "highbrow" work which only a select few may appreciate. Our pictures, poems and novels will have as their subjects crowded streets, sweatshops, huge electrical plants and elements swarming with humanity.

MOREOVER, THE AMERICAN RENAISSANCE WILL GIVE OPPORTUNITY FOR EXPRESSION TO TWO GROUPS WHO HAVE NEVER FULLY POSSESSED IT BEFORE—THE WOMEN AND THE POOR.

Korea and the Hellscape. Korea was furious when a storm wrecked his bridge of boats in the Hellscape from Alhuda to Boston. Not content with having the engineers decapitated, he ordered the infliction of 800 lashes upon the trait and the letting down into it of a net of letters. Herodotus derides the fact that Korea also sent iron to brand the trait. But the historians does give the "non-Hellenic and blasphemous terms" which the seagoers were ordered to use: "Thou better driver, this is the penalty which our master inflicts upon thee because thou has wronged him though he has never wronged thee. King Korea will cross thee, whether thou wilt or not, but thou deservest not sacrifice from any man, because thou art a treacherous driver of sail water."

AFFAIRS AT THE BEACH.

Miss Gertrude Waterford, of Norfolk, spent Monday at the Beach, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. C. Dasher.

And while Virginia Beach is pushing forward in sundry lines it is in order for her live young men to begin the organization of a band.

Although Virginia Beach has a full and a thousand population, there is little use for the form, the dishonest and rowdy being conspicuous by their absence. During the current week two poor unfortunate loaded up with a good-sized jug and landed behind the bars to sober up, repent and "wear off" again—until the next time.

The dancing at the Casino is beginning to draw to that popular amusement resort large gatherings of young people who delight in the pleasures of Terpsichore. The floor in charge of Prof. Lee Carrier, late of the Cafe Danes of the Monticello Hotel, Norfolk, and music by Prof. Charles Bories are a guarantee of the refined, exclusive and up-to-date manner in which the dancing is conducted.

Beach Realty Transactions.

Last week the Pollard-Seaton Company, general agents of the Virginia Beach Development Co., sold to G. S. Friebus of Norfolk thirteen lots for building purposes. These lots will be improved by the erection thereof of dwellings and cottages costing some thirty thousand dollars.

Prior to the above transaction this company sold to H. H. Trice fifteen lots on Maryland road, which he will improve in the near future. It may be also stated here that Abner Pope, who also bought eight lots, has improved two of them by erecting buildings thereon.

These recent transactions in Virginia Beach property by far-seeing business men is indisputable evidence that the old order of things has passed and that those who invest here will be richly rewarded through their sagacity and faith in the growth and prosperity of the Beach. Now is the time to buy.

Saginaw Valley Farmer.

The Times has on its table the May number of this periodical. It is published at Saginaw, Michigan, and has 24 pages filled with interesting and valuable matter, especially to farmers. Mr. L. S. Foote is at the helm. He is the editor, publisher and general manager, and that is taken at high value by those who know him and are acquainted with his untiring energy and systematic methods. He was for several years connected with one of the morning dailies of Norfolk, where his adaptability for newspaper work is known and appreciated by publisher and reading public. These qualifications he takes with him in the conduct of the Saginaw Valley Farmer, and thus it is that his paper bears evidence of thrift. It is a welcome visitor to our sanctum.

Patronize Home Industry! Citizens of Virginia Beach should remember that it is no longer necessary to send your Job Printing to Norfolk. The Times is well equipped to do this work in a satisfactory manner and at reasonable prices. Call and see us when in need of anything in this line. Estimates cheerfully given.

Where trains of outcast pilgrims tread
The plains where Freedom mourns her dead.

Where nations groan amid the strife
Behold red ruin and havoc rife!
For Lo! the elder Sins have opened
Their "brood,"—whereof the prophets warned—

That profane progeny of Pride
In crowds of Infamy allied!

O God, beneath thy dreadful frown
Shall Liberty be stricken down!
See—where the hell-bound hosts, of Hate
Swarm forth to rend and debilitate!
See, now, their baleful banners rise
To flout thy earth and foul thy skies!
Teuton, Vandal, Hun and Turk,
Behold, O God, their cursed work!

Not free from sin are we who plead
Thy mercy in this hour of need,
Yet have we scorned their dastard craft,

Their crimes plot, their poisoned shaft;
Not thus—O Lord—we dared thy wrath

Though far we wandered from thy path:
Before the fury of the foe
Our sacrifice we offer now!

Though we have failed in righteousness
Have mercy still on our distress:
Though we have fallen from thy grace
We rest no idle in thy place;
With contrite hearts we bear thy stroke,
But spare us—Lord—the tyrant's yoke!

Spare us, O God, the dreadful doom
Of serfdom's centuries of gloom!

Princess Anne County Candidates.

Glancing over the columns of some of our local exchange newspapers we find much interest and rivalry developing among the candidates submitting their names at the coming primary elections to be voted upon for the several offices. As an evidence of this, we find the West Point News has more than a column of announcement cards of King William county applicants; the Brunswick county Gazette publishes 15 announcement cards; Loudoun county News 9; the Green county Record 5; the Southampton county News 19; Orange county Observer has 6; Gloucester county Reporter 18; the Sussex county Enterprise 18; Nottoway county has 8, and so it runs as far as we have data.

Here in Princess Anne county, however, General Apathy, is in the saddle and the Times up to this date has only one "call" from a candidate, that of Mr. O. A. Land, who aspires to be one of the county's Board of Supervisors, and he means to win in a square and honorable contest at the polls on the third day of next August—if he can.

There are others no doubt, in fact from a list of candidates handed us some time ago which we cannot find at this writing, we know that Princess Anne county is well represented in the way of official aspirants, but they seem diffident in the way of letting their desires be known. Possibly it is a little hunt game they are playing! But now that Mr. Land has led off with a card to the people, which we publish elsewhere in this issue, others may follow his example.—We invite them to do so. Do not hide your light under a bushel, but let it shine from the columns of the Princess Anne newspaper. We are prepared at very small charge to publish the "cards" of all who apply, having set apart a column for that purpose. Call, or send your application by mail to the Times office, located in the Town Hall, Virginia Beach.

Since the above was put in type the Times has received the announcement of Mr. Edwin J. Smith, who is a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney. Mr. Smith is making a vigorous campaign for the nomination.

OUR NATIONAL CAPITAL.

How Washington Compares With the Great Centers of Europe.

In a paper prepared for the National Geographical Society Lord Bryce, former British ambassador to this country, considers Washington in comparison with the leading capitals of the world. After speaking a warm admiration for the idea, effect of the city—a beautiful amphitheater between hills that are rich with woods—and declaring that the surroundings of the American capital yield only to Constantinople, with its Bosporus, among the great capitals of the world for charm of setting, our friendly critic in Washington with its rural cities abroad.

"Whereas nature was most lavish in the artistry with which it molded the site for future Washington," he says, "Berlin stands in a sandy waste, perfectly flat, with here and there a swampy pond or lake, and washed by a sluggish stream. The German capital is stately, its streets are broad. They are bordered by many noble buildings, but the environs never can be beautiful because of an ungracious nature. Patroged, the great Russian capital, has but one beauty—that of its splendid river, the Neva. Besides this stream, there is a flat, often waterlogged, surrounding country, here and there dotted with stagnant pools and swamps, and stretching into an almost limitless distance, devoid of features.

"The landscapes around Paris are agreeable, but have nothing at all striking, nothing nearly so fine in the lines of their scenery as the hills that inclose the valley in which Washington lies and no such charm of such a still wild forest as Washington affords. Nor is the Seine a stream which can be compared to our Potomac. So, too, is the scenery of London, Madrid and Vienna behind that of Washington in its quality of being ancient, an old age which gives to them a certain number of picturesque buildings, crooked old streets, stately churches and spires hallowed by the names of famous men who were born there, died there or worked there. This advantage the American capital can hope to overcome with time."

Bismarck on the Throne of France.
Bismarck on the throne of France! Bismarck was once spoken of in that connection, and by Napoleon too. It was during the detention of the deposed emperor at Wilhelmshoe in 1871, when Napoleon and some members of his staff were discussing the probability of Napoleon reascending the French throne and news of the doings of the commune was brought in.

"Horrible—too horrible!" exclaimed his petti emperor.
And then, after a long silence, he resumed, "I know a man who, if on the French throne, would be master of Germany in six months."

"His name, sire?" asked his nephew.
"Bismarck," replied the emperor as he turned on his heel.

Fools Ask Questions.
When Mr. Selby Henry was an undergraduate his father told him as a warning, of a man he had known in his own university. This luckless student, though sitting for his "Little Go," had left quite unheeded the valuable advice given by St. Paul to the youthful Timothy, "Give attendance to reading." He was confronted with a paper so stiff that he could not answer a single question and in a fit of desperation wrote across it eight words, folded and sent it up. When the examiner opened it he read, "Fools ask questions which wise men cannot answer."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Ancient Ropes.
Ropes made of various kinds of fiber and leather are of very ancient date. Ropes of palm have been found in Egypt in the tombs of Beni-Hassan (about 3000 B. C.), and on the walls of these tombs is also shown the process of preparing hemp. In a tomb at Thebes of the time of Thothmes III. (about 1600 B. C.) is a group representing the process of twisting thongs of leather and the method of cutting leather into thongs.

MILITARY BANDS.

Musical Men a Marked Effect Upon the Men Who Do the Fighting.

Regiments without military bands do not fight as well, do not march as well and are not as contented and cheerful in camp as the men of the regiments which have bands.

Earl Roberts said in a speech shortly before his death:
"I can speak from my own experience of what use a regimental band is to a regiment. I have seen men weary, worn out with fatigue, hot and smothered with dust, brighten up the moment they heard the tap of the drum, indicating that the band was going to play a lively quickstep. It has the greatest effect on the men in camp and in quarters."

One of the most delightful bits of verse ever written by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow is a quatrain of "weary big dragons," whipped, retreating and discouraged, was drifting through a wrecked French town when one of the company for a child, by drum, and another found a penny in his waistline in the ruins of a shop. The one with the whistle struck up the "Marsellaise," and the one with the drum beat time to it. The straggling squadron halted, turned, reformed and to the beating of the child's drum and the strains of the tin whistle marched to victory.

Every one has read that stirring poem, "The Relief of Lucknow," of the British regiment that had been besieged and started to long, that had staved off massacre for so many days that it had about lost hope, when a Scotch maid heard away off in the distance the faintest note of a bagpipe.

"Dinna ye hear it?" she screamed, and then herself down with her head to the ground. Soon they all heard it, the bagpipes of the regiment came to rescue them.

"It was the pipers of the regiment! And now they played 'Auld Lang Syne.' It came to our men like the voice of God, they shouted along the line."

—Kansas City Star.

Funny For Me.
A New England lad was intently watching his aunt in the process of making pies and cake. He seemed very much inclined to start a conversation, an inclination, however, which the aunt in no way encouraging. She continued in silence to assemble the ingredients of a mammoth cake.

"Tell me something funny, auntie," finally ventured the boy.
"Don't you know, Tommy," said the aunt, "How can I when I am making cake?"

"Oh, you might say, 'Tommy, have a piece of the pie I've just made,' that would be funny for you,"—Exchange.

Hard Life of English Cabinet Men.

The laboriousness of a cabinet minister's life was realized by John Bright, who declared that a man in office required "very strong stomach and a very excellent stomach and a constitution that does not trouble him." Peel, according to Greville, when resigning the leadership, begged his friend, Lord Liverpool, to recall him, since he could not forget that Pitt, Fox and Canning had all died in office, the victims of overwork and worry, and that, worse still, Lord Castlereagh and Lord Liverpool had also died in office, the one a maniac and the other an idiot.—London Chronicle.

The Wherefore of School.

Little Henry was a very backward scholar, and his teacher frequently lost all patience with him. One day when he seemed to be more dense than usual the teacher exclaimed:
"You know you are never able to answer any of my questions, Herman. Why?"

"If I knew all the things you ask me, ma'am," replied Herman, "my father wouldn't go to the trouble of sending me here!"—New York Times.

A Trial Order Will Convince

The Princess Anne Times

VOLUME I NUMBER 4

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA FRIDAY, JUNE 4, 1915

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

WEEK OF RAIN HELPS CROPS

RICH FARMS IN THIS COUNTY

The welcome rains that have been falling for the past eight or ten days are worth millions of dollars to the farmer. Even here in Princess Anne county, to say nothing of the Tidewater section generally, the value of crops has been enhanced by these copious showers to the extent of thousands upon thousands of dollars. To be sure the temperature accompanying these rains has been chilly, below the normal, but this may only serve to make vegetation stronger and healthier, and with the advent of a bright and genial sun, now approaching, crops of all kinds will push forward by leaps and bounds; and the sturdy farmer of this peaceful and thrice blessed land should feel proud and thankful that his lot had been cast amid surroundings so favorable.

A recent hurried visit down along the Norfolk Southern as far as Munden gave the writer glimpses of the homes and farm conditions along the route, though little opportunity to chat with the people. At all sides between stations from Euclid on the big fields in cultivation showed that idlers had no place with the owners of the soil, as long rows of potatoes, corn and cabbage showed that the hand of industry and thrift were alert.

Though too early in the season to speculate as to corn prospects, the plants looked healthy and vigorous and with rain sufficient for several months the yield will be bountiful. Potatoes looked promising, though their growth it was stated, had been somewhat retarded by cold and unusually dry weather. However, there is time enough yet for maturing a satisfactory harvest and the farmer is by no means discouraged as to his potato crop.

The section of Princess Anne through which the Norfolk Southern passes as far down as Munden is remarkable for the beauty and fertility of the soil, and while as yet the lands are cheap and easily secured, there being a number of large tracts capable of subdivision, the time is rapidly approaching when even a moderate-sized home cannot be had for ten times the amount it could be bought for at present. The lands are easily cultivated, the markets are convenient and remunerative, the climate exceptionally mild and tempting both winter and summer—all conspire to make this section of Princess Anne one of the most valuable garden spots of Tidewater Virginia.

Over in Northampton county, as the writer well knows, it is now almost impossible to buy a farm for love or money at any price. Should there be by chance a strip of land offered, it would be picked up by some one before breakfast. The lands down Munden-way are just as valuable as are the Northampton lands and the time will come when they will find as ready sale and at figures equally high. Now is the time to buy a Princess Anne home.

CANCER REMEDY IS CALLED A SUCCESS

PLANS FOR FREE TREATMENT

Dr. S. P. Beebe, Professor of Experimental Therapeutics at Cornell University Medical College, presents in the current issue of the New York medical Journal a preliminary report of a treatment of inoperable cancer. Dr. Beebe is widely known as an authority on cancer and its treatment.

Recent investigations by both the Harvard Cancer Commission and the Crocker Cancer Research Fund of Columbia University have shown that radium's chief value is in superficial growths and that radio-activity from this element does not reach far enough to destroy the more remote cells in deep-seated cancer.

The new remedy has been used at the Polyclinic Hospital without any accessory treatment, such as x-rays, radium, etc., and the results have been more brilliant than those obtained at the General Memorial Hospital.

It was learned that upward of 30 cases of inoperable and incurable cancer had been treated at the Polyclinic Hospital with the remedy under the joint supervision of Doctor Beebe and Dr. J. Wallace Beveridge and that not a death from cancer had occurred in the institution since the remedy was introduced there. The majority of these patients have already been discharged as recovered.

The new treatment as used is of vegetable origin and is administered with the hypodermic needle.

The discoverer of the remedy is Alexander Horowitz, Ph. D., an Austrian chemist and biologist, who carried on his preliminary studies in his native country. He has been carrying on experimental work for the purpose of improving the method of treatment for the last year.

A county-wide plan for the free treatment of cancer patients is being worked out. Three hospitals will be used in New York, with other hospitals located in other large cities of the United States.

In referring to his remedy Dr. Beebe recalls that other widely heralded remedies have ultimately failed and hence he writes with much reserve. He first gives the details of three cases of superficial cancer treated outside the hospital. One of six years' standing healed completely in eight weeks. A second, which had been retarded by over-exposure to x-rays, healed in two and a half months and remains healed, a period of six months having elapsed. A third of 11 years' standing, healed in six weeks and remains healed. The second group was treated at the General Memorial Hospital. The majority of them died, some of hemorrhages as the result of the denudation of large blood vessels. These cases were all treated with other remedies beside that devised by Doctor Horowitz. One of these cases was treated with radium, which produced a marked beneficial effect, with almost complete healing over the surface of the growth. But unfortunately, a few weeks later the tumor recurred, growing with unusual rapidity, in spite of the heretofore useful methods of treatment.

It is said that the remedy attacks the growths in a uniform manner, no matter where they are located.

Convicts to Build Roads.

A representative meeting of citizens of Southampton county was held last week at Courtland, in behalf of securing convict labor for building roads for that county. A number of speeches were made and much earnestness in the movement was manifested.

Guy T. Horner, who is the representative of Southampton county in the Legislature, and who had gone thoroughly into the subject of convict labor on the public highways, presented some interesting data on the work of the thirty-three different convict road camps of the State, addressed the meeting on the advantages of convict labor. This gentleman stated that each convict camp cost the State on an average of $8,300 to organize and equip, but that the average cost to the county using the convicts was from 25 to 35 cents per convict per day. The State houses, clothes, feeds, guards and otherwise provides for the convicts, the county providing the materials for road work and the necessary medical attention.

The county Board of Supervisors was present at the meeting and was unanimous in its decision to try the convict road camp in Southampton county, and took steps to make application to the State Highway Commission for a convict road force in 1916.

The subject of better highways is one of vital concern, and is one that is being agitated with considerable force at this time in Princess Anne county, there being a general and popular feeling that the roads of the county should be improved as far as possible.

Good roads pay and money wisely expended to make good roads is the best possible use of the county's funds.

Oyster Growers and Dealers Meet

The annual meeting of the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America will be held in Washington, D. C. June 15 and 16, with headquarters in the New Willard Hotel. From present indications it appears that this is going to be the best convention ever held. Everything points to a good attendance, and the program that is being arranged will be the most interesting and attractive that has ever been gotten up. The list of speakers for this year includes some of the best known authorities on seafood products of America. There will be none of the long scientific papers that have a tendency to tire the members, but rather, everything said at the sessions will be couched in the plain everyday language that all of us will readily grasp. In other words this is going to be one grand old-fashioned heart-to-heart talk, with a lot of good things thrown in.

At a meeting of the Baptist ministers in Norfolk this week a committee was named to protest to the Postmaster General against the appointment of State Senator John A. Leaser as postmaster for the city of Norfolk.

HOTEL PROJECT IS UP TONIGHT

Meeting is Called to Explain Details of the Plans to Those Interested.

ALL ARE URGED TO ATTEND

The committee appointed by President Grice of the Chamber of Commerce to promote the financial requirements of the proposed hotel on the site of the old Princess Anne hotel has called a meeting for tonight, at 8 o'clock, in Mason's Hall, at which they urgently request the attendance of every resident of the Beach, either permanent or transient, who has the building of a report that will be the rival of any on the Atlantic coast at heart.

It is the duty of all who have property interests at the Beach to be present and express their views. The committee extend a special invitation to the ladies.

The Truck Experiment Station.

Prof. T. C. Johnson, director of the Virginia Truck Experiment Station, located at Diamond Springs, has furnished the Times with a copy of an interesting article on a plant disease properly known as Root Rot, which is widely distributed. We would be much pleased to publish the article for the benefit of the farmers and truckers of Princess Anne, but cannot do so at present on account of our limited space. The experiment station at Diamond Springs is doing valuable work for agriculturists and this paper not only endorses the efforts it puts forth in behalf of the tillers of the soil, but hopes to be in position later on to give publicity to such matter as Prof. Johnson may see proper to furnish us for publication.

Norfolk Southern Appointments.

The Norfolk Southern Railroad has named the following gentlemen for positions, taking effect June 1: John Dwyer, superintendent of maintenance of way, his duties embracing the care of bridges, tracks and buildings, with headquarters in Norfolk.

President Joseph H. Young of the Norfolk Southern in a circular states that the maintenance of tracks, bridges, and buildings will be under the supervision of the general superintendent, and that new construction work will be under the supervision of the chief engineer.

Congressional Timber.

Charles T. Bland, a well known Portsmouth lawyer, and a good fellow as he is called, is being spoken of for Congress among a goodly number who know and admire him. But how about Princess Anne? At least one of her citizens is an avowed aspirant while another one equally prominent, while mum, is mentioned to succeed Mr. Holland. So it is certain the present Congressional incumbent will not make the race without opposition. We shall see what we shall see.

RAILROADS ORDER ALL TRUNKS VALUED

ADOPT AN INSURANCE PLAN

On and after June 3 all persons who check trunks on railroad tickets will be obliged under the provisions of the Cummins act amending the interstate commerce laws to declare the value of their baggage, and the baggage master—a man of many troubles—is beginning to suspect that he is due for an unusually unhappy Summer.

The railroads now carry trunks and other baggage not exceeding 150 pounds in weight free with tickets of transportation and assume liability in case of loss or damage up to $100. They declare they cannot assume unlimited liability as permitted under the Cummins act, but will accept the alternative of assuming the $100 liability on each piece of baggage checked and insuring the passenger for all over that amount on a basis of ten cents per $100, the rate laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The amendment speaks specifically of "shippers," and although no mention is made of passengers checking trunks the commission has interpreted the act so as to include baggage carried by passengers in the meaning of the law. As shippers must sign a declaration as to the value of shipments it has been decided that each and every shipper of a trunk must declare the real value of its contents when he has his trunk checked.

Anyone who signs a declaration dishonestly, a railway official who has made a study of the new law says, will be guilty of a misdemeanor. For instance, if a trunk is sent as baggage and declared to be worth $100 and the trunk goes astray but turns up later and it is found that a $500 diamond ring is in the trunk the owner is liable to go to jail. It is equally an offence to overestimate the value of baggage. It is understood that the railroads will consent to accept declarations as to values from agents of shippers, which might be a valet, or butler, or porter, or second cousin, or anybody who helps a shipper or passenger to make use of the checking privilege, but everybody has got to be mighty careful that no false declarations are made or there is sure to be trouble for somebody.

Railroad officials whose work will be increased by the new regulations, do not believe that passengers will be tickled over the necessity of taking time to go to a baggage master and sign a declaration setting forth the true value of the contents of trunks, particularly if it is near train time and another train isn't due for several hours. It is expected they will urge the traveling public to go to the station early and avoid the rush.

Just what will happen in the baggage room of a crowded city terminal or a lively Summer resort when long lines of impatient passengers are waiting to declare values is a matter they do not like to contemplate just now. It is comparatively easy to check a trunk in a hurry, but it will be more difficult for many passengers to make up their minds just what things are worth, and delays will try tempers sorely.

As for the much abused baggage man he is hoping for the best.

Fire Damages Cottage.

The cottage in rear of the Ferbee Hotel belonging to Mrs. Booth of Petersburg, and occupied by Mrs. Griffith and Mrs. Showler, also of Petersburg, was damaged by fire to the extent of probably a thousand dollars early Thursday night, a defective flue being responsible for the blaze. Mr. Kelley of the "Raleigh" discovered the fire in the nick of time and sent a colored man to warn the ladies. This he did and to this no doubt the ladies owe their lives, and feel duly grateful. The volunteer fire department responded and with the advantage of a favorable wind the fire was kept from spreading.

LANDS AT AUCTION.

Judge A. J. Ackiss, acting under a decree of the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County, will expose several small tracts of land at auction in front of the Corporation Court in Norfolk on Saturday, June 5th. The decree grows out of a chancery suit of Capps and others against Capps and others. One is a tract of about 30 acres near Owl's Creek. The second body embraces three small tracts situated near Sea-ack Station and contains about 100 acres in all. These tracts are bounded by the lands of A. C. Smith, John Williams and others.

Wind and Rain Storm.

The second rain and wind storm in point of severity at the Beach this season set in Tuesday night and prolonged its grip throughout Wednesday to Thursday night, the rain ceasing during the night, though the wind kept up its fury, though in abated form, all day Friday. Fortunately little damage was done.

Council Meeting.

The June session of the Virginia Beach town council is scheduled to meet in their hall Monday night, June 7. Among deferred matter to be considered is the one looking to drinking fountains for horses. This is along humane lines and will no doubt have favorable consideration.

Mr. Myon E. Bristow, of Gloucester county, announces that he has withdrawn his candidacy for commonwealth's attorney and entered the race for the Legislature. Mr. Bristow is a citizen of Gloucester Point and the good people of that county will be faithfully and ably represented if they elect him.

The Cuban American is welcome to our exchange list. It is published at La Gloria, Cuba, a town of a thousand American colonists. Fine schools, churches, stores, hotels and all other up-to-date requirements are enjoyed. The colony is thrifty and the people happy.

The Journal of United States Artillery magazine for June is on our table. It is brim-full of interesting matter pertaining to one of Uncle Sam's big institutions. Published by the Coast Artillery School press at Fort Monroe, Va.

NORFOLK VIRGINIA BEACH BOULEVARD.

The road between Virginia Beach and Norfolk is almost prohibitive to such automobilists as value their lungs, their clothes or their cars. In dry weather this road is too dusty, in rainy weather it is too muddy, and in the winter it is a road of mud.

Between these two points there have been the most delightful rides possible to conceive of. There is a panorama of field and woodland along the entire route and at the end of it the spacious ocean. The ride through "The Hollies" is perhaps one of the most picturesque and charming in this entire section. But in the present condition of the roads automobilists would venture at their peril. When we consider the fact that with the ancient Egyptians and Greeks good roads were a commonplace, and that some of these are still being used as highways of traffic after thousands of years of existence, it does seem supremely ridiculous, and is a reflection upon our intelligence to have to be continually discussing the advisability and value of good roads. So far from building good roads we do not seem to be even able to keep up repairs on such as we have. One of the very best investments for the two counties involved would be the construction of a broad and well-paved Boulevard between Virginia Beach and Norfolk.

We know cities in this country, cities of lesser population and importance than Norfolk, which, if they possessed the scenic environment which is ours, would have a wood-block or asphalt road of double width between these communities. But if we can not yet hope to get something so fine, at least oyster shell are plentiful and cheap in this section, and in connection with the State penitentiary authorities, who would probably furnish the labor, our county officials might be able to give us a boulevard between Virginia Beach and Norfolk that would be a pleasure and a profit to all parties concerned.

SPARE THE FORESTS.

The ruthless destruction for private gain and at individual caprice of the magnificent pine forests in this section is one of the most distressing contemplations of the lover of Nature. Even the younger generation has witnesses once glorious tracts of woodland converted into sun-baked wastes of shabby half-cultivated fields and shoddy suburbs of cheap wooden buildings. With the thousands of laws upon our statute books there is none to foster and protect the beauties and glories of Nature. A few month's activities of a noisy little saw-mill will suffice to destroy utterly and irretrievably that magnificent adornment which Nature provided through the slow process of centuries, and frequently the only excuse is that some individual needs the money which can be extracted from the commercialization of the timber. It is a shocking contemplation and a cruel injury to posterity. In both Princess Anne and Norfolk Counties there are still left some beautiful tracts of virgin forests. These constitute the chief charm of our landscapes and are the main factors in rendering adjacent sections beautiful and valuable. Much of the health-giving and invigorating quality of the ozone at Virginia Beach is due to the surrounding pine forests. We are making a fatal mistake to permit these woodlands to be ruthlessly cut away. While they are still with us—while there is yet time—something should be done to preserve the remnants of the forests of Tidewater section, either by State supervision and protection or by nature-loving public spirited individuals.

ROAD BUILDING IN WEST VIRGINIA.

A few days ago Mercer county, West Virginia, voted a supplement of $350,000 to the road system under construction in that county. The bond issue carried by about 18,000 majority. Two years ago Mercer defeated a proposed bond issue for road betterment. But the agitation continued and 18 months ago the county voted a $600,000 bond issue to build a system of improved roads, 45 miles to be laid in macadam. This sum, after a years work, was found to be inadequate, and now the county that killed the first good roads proposition two years ago votes an additional $350,000 for precisely that purpose. Even Athens which voted "no" before, votes "aye" this time. People are learning that there are uses for money which will do them many times more good than to hoard it in the bottom of a long purse.

The merry month of May seemed bent on giving June a chilly reception. The good old Summer-Time is behind its schedule.

"It's a long way to Tipperary" aid for the hostile armies it's a still longer way to Paris, to Berlin, to London, to Constantinople and Vienna.

The Times takes pleasure in publishing items of news sent to it from Virginia Beach. No section of Princess Anne is too remote or isolated to be known or heard from through the Times.

The poem, "A War Lament," by Norfolk's distinguished poet, George Frederic Viets, printed elsewhere in this issue, could grace the pages of the greatest newspaper or the most scholarly magazine in the land.

In the next issue of The Times there will appear a letter from a Norfolk gentleman setting forth a striking and sensational suggestion for a project that is perfectly feasible and which would be of immense interest and benefit to Virginia Beach and Cape Henry. Be sure and read it.

It has been said that "the retrospect of life swarms with lost opportunities." Buy a home at Virginia Beach or a little farm in Princess Anne County now, while prices are within your reach, and you will look back on one opportunity that was not lost, to your profit and contentment.

The projected organization of the York River Farmers' Exchange took definite shape last week at West Point by the election of permanent officers. Reports showed that the officials of the Chesapeake Steamship Company and those of the Southern Railway Company would do all in their power to make the exchange a success. They recognize the great value an exchange would be to the entire York River section. The Times suggests that the farmers of Princess Anne county get together in a similar organization. An interchange of ideas, a discussion of topics pertaining to farm products, their marketing, etc., would produce results of the highest value.

VIRGINIA BEACH MECCA FOR 300,000 One of the Finest Beaches in the United States—Should Be All-Year-Round Resort. ATLANTIC CITY OF SOUTH

We give space this week to another letter from Mr. R. P. Andrews, of Washington, D. C., who tells of the advantages and attractions possessed by Virginia Beach over other ocean resorts in the country. He thinks there is no logical reason why Virginia Beach to the Middle West, South and Southwest should not be what Atlantic City is to the East. Here is his letter:

Mr. W. H. Frenger,
Virginia Beach, Va.
My Dear Mr. Frenger:—I have received a copy of the first two numbers of the Princess Anne Times, and I wish to heartily congratulate you on the quality and typographical appearance of your paper. If you keep up the standard you have set in the first numbers you will receive the unsolicited support of the citizens of Virginia Beach and the County. In my business and social life my experience has made me a fairly good judge, there is no medium that will build up a community as rapidly and as effectively as a good live local newspaper.

There is no logical reason why Virginia Beach should not be to the Middle West, South and Southwest what Atlantic City is to the East.

With the added advantage of being practically an all year round resort, and with the splendid transportation facilities we enjoy from Washington, D. C. (I refer to the passenger steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamship Line) there is no reason why, with proper hotel accommodations, Virginia Beach should not be the mecca for our three hundred and fifty thousand citizens, for a delightful vacation and a cool night's sleep with a short trolley ride at the end, which relaxes at what I believe is one of the finest ocean beaches in the United States. This should also be true of our "suburban" city, Baltimore. It seems to me, if the great trunk lines, the Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Virginia, and Seaboard Air Line, would feature Virginia Beach in their folders, they would ultimately build up a tourist patronage which would be free from competition.

Again, I wish you success, and I see no reason why the Princess Anne Times should not be a daily issue of a weekly within the next five years. With personal regards, I beg to remain, most truly yours,

R. P. ANDREWS,
President and General Manager,
R. P. Andrews' Paper Co.,
Washington, D. C., May 27, 1915.

Virginia Beach Has a Newspaper.

The Princess Anne Times is the name of a weekly paper which made its appearance at Virginia Beach last week. W. H. Frenger, a veteran newspaper man, is at the helm of the new paper and if he doesn't make a go of it no one else need try. The first issue of the Times looks good; looks better, indeed, than the average run of weekly papers that come among our exchanges. What's more the Times is well written—Plymouth, N. C., Independent, May 21, 1915.

Friendly Remarks by a Neighbor.

The maiden number of a clean-cut, crisp and newsy weekly, The Princess Anne Times, published at Virginia Beach, is welcome to the exchange list of the Star. The editor and manager, W. H. Frenger, was formerly of this section, where he was well esteemed for many virtues and for capabilities that apply to him for the successful conduct of his new venture.

Brother Frenger's friends of the fourth estate will cordially bespeak for both himself and his enterprise no end of good fortune.—Portsmouth Star, May 25.

Cause of Militarism Is Usually Commercialism, Never Patriotism

By HENRY FORD, Industrial Magnate

THE cause of militarism is never patriotism; it is usually commercialism. If people would but think these matters out! When the people start to think they usually think right.

THE COMMERCIALISTS OF EUROPE, THROUGH THEIR OWN BAD COMMERCIAL METHODS, ARE CORRESPONSIBLE WITH THE POLITICIANS FOR THE EXISTING SITUATION. No; the politicians never could have brought it about had it not been sanctioned by the great commercialists.

We here in the United States are in grave danger of a similar fate. Commercialism plays its part in California's prejudice against the Japanese. The trouble is we're talking about this country, this state, this city, this factory, as if one country, one state, one city, one factory, could be of paramount importance. We boast of independence. There is only interdependence.

WE WANT TO STOP SUCH NARROW TALK. WE WANT TO TALK ABOUT THIS WORLD. IT IS TO THE INTEREST OF EVERY MAN ON EARTH THAT EVERY OTHER MAN ON EARTH SHALL BE PROSPEROUS AND HAPPY.

Democracy Is Making Tremendous Advances In Europe's War Zone

By ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE, Former Senator From Indiana

WE are too selfish and material in looking upon the situation. I went to Germany and then to France with the idea that we Americans pick up from our newspapers. They were all wrong ideas. My experience over there was simply a case of dropping "one's preconception" after another. When I tell you that we may come off the worst loser by this war I do not give you my own opinion merely. SOME OF THE SOFTEST THINKERS IN EUROPE EXPRESSED THAT SAME IDEA TO ME.

The great gain of the war in Europe, whoever wins and however the issues come out, will be the tremendous advance of democracy. All the sermons ever preached on peace from the pulpits have done less than this war has to produce a spirit of self sacrifice or devotion to the common cause.

AND IN THIS COUNTRY OUR BEST MEN HAVE ALREADY FORGOTTEN PATRIOTISM IN THE QUEST FOR BUSINESS ADVANTAGE.

Renaissance Will Force Artistic Europe to Sit at America's Feet

By DAVID SEABURY, Artist, President of the Society of the American Renaissance

THE world of today is proud to learn from American engineers and American business men. The time is coming, and soon, when Europe will sit at the feet of American writers, American painters, American sculptors and American architects.

THE ANIMATING BREATH OF THE RENAISSANCE WILL BE THE SOCIAL SPIRIT, EVEN AS PHILOSOPHY IN GREECE AND FAITH IN ITALY INSPIRED THEIR GREAT PERIODS.

Briefly, this means that we shall try to produce "highbrow" work which only a select few may appreciate. Our pictures, poems and novels will have as their subjects crowded streets, sweatshops, huge electrical plants and tenements swarming with humanity.

MOREOVER, THE AMERICAN RENAISSANCE WILL GIVE OPPORTUNITY FOR EXPRESSION TO TWO GROUPS WHO HAVE NEVER FULLY POSSESSED IT BEFORE—THE WOMEN AND THE POOR.

Red Rod For Trout Fishing.

RODS OF SPILT BAMBOO ARE produced by cementing together a number of triangular strips split from the whole cane-to-tern with joint; the rod of six strips is the choice of most anglers. Weight for weight—and, of course within reason, the lighter the rod the better the angler. Bamboo rods are stronger and have more casting power and better action than rods of any other material. Very property according that the choice of a 5 ft rod is practically limited to the rod of split bamboo, you cannot go far wrong in selecting one five feet in length. Such a rod for the light work of our average trout streams should not weigh over five and a quarter ounces.

Any rod seriously worth consideration has snake guides, german silver reel seat and ferrules and a solid cork hand grip. It is very well when making your selection to try out several rods answering to the above specifications, in order to decide, if possible, getting a rod that is just to your taste or too flexible—Outing.

Strength in Maliciousness.

The stems of bamboo, grasses, wheat and oats are hollow, although they grow to great heights in comparison to their thickness. It might naturally be supposed that to gain strength as they grew the stems ought to be solid at the base, but it is not so. Careful experiments have proved that a solid column subject to bending strains is no stronger than a hollow one. Consequently all iron shafts are made hollow, and the steel shafts which drive the screws of steamships have a hole bored down the center to reduce the weight. But this does not reduce the strength. The thickness of the branches of trees is in proportion to the weight to be borne. Horizontal branches, such as those of the cedar and elm, are much thicker than the almost vertical branches of the poplar. The average natural force in breaking is about one in ten, exclusive of wind pressure, and engineers employ a factor of six in building with timber.

Canes at the National Museum.

A collection of canes made of practically every kind of suitable material and representing forty-five foreign countries, as well as twenty-one states of the Union, forms one of the most interesting exhibits at the National Museum at Washington. Forty different kinds of wooden canes are on exhibition, as well as cane made of ivory, bone, horn, silk, paper, tin, wire and other substances. In this collection are many canes that are artistic and others that are merely made for emergency use. Among the latter are a stretching cane with drawing materials stored in the handle, a number equipped with match safe, mountain climbing cage with sharp spiked ferrules, an officer's "swagger stick" and a sword and gun cases of various types. The most interesting feature of the exhibit perhaps is the historical element—Popular Mechanics.

Xerxes and the Hellespont. Xerxes was furious when a storm wrecked his bridge of boats in the Hellespont from Abydos to Gallipoli. Not content with having the engineers deputed, he ordered the infliction of 300 lashes upon the timid and the letting down into it of a set of fetters. Herodotus discredits the story that Xerxes also sent iron to brand the dirt. But the historian does give the "no-hellectic and blasphemous terms" which the scourged were ordered to use. "Thou bitter water, drink up the penalty which our master inflicts upon thee because thou hast wrought him though he has never wronged thee. King Xerxes will come thee, whether thou wilt or not, but thou deservest not sacrifice from any man, because thou art a treacherous river of salt water."

A Narrow Escape from Being Drowned

Last week during the storm, Mr. Barcroft, the Mail Carrier between Virginia Beach and False Cape had a narrow escape from drowning near the Club House at Back Bay. His horse got stuck in a hole which was situated that it could not be seen from the Club House. The horse had dislocated his hip in straining to get out of the hole. Mr. Barcroft worked with him for three hours without success when he tied the horse to a nearby stump and made his way to Mr. Roe's for assistance. The horse is still incapacitated, perhaps beyond recovery.

Services are held every Sunday morning at eleven o'clock in Galilee Episcopal church. Sunday School held nine-thirty. Rev. Edward Patton Minor, Rector.

The collapse of a fine brick dwelling at Ocean View through the undermining of its foundation by an unusually high tide should serve notice upon all prospective builders of houses in proximity to the Beach that the foundations of such structures must always be upon piles. The relatively small extra cost of this item will prove a large economy in the end.

Mrs. M. M. Booth, of Petersburg, is the guest of Mrs. W. B. Rudolph for a week.

Mrs. Spencer Vaughan and daughters have rented the Booth cottage for the month of June.

Rev. Father Curran, of Pittsburgh, Pa., is visiting Mrs. W. B. Rudolph.

Mrs. C. C. Rutch, of Henderson, Ky., has at her cottage, the Borden, as her guests for the summer, Mrs. Dixon and daughter of Henderson.

Mrs. T. Pannell of the Wild Rose cottage has arrived for the summer and has opened her cottage. The cottage has been thoroughly overhauled and nicely painted and renovated.

Mr. Wm. Meldrum, of Washington, is spending the summer at the Driftwood.

Mrs. W. E. David of Switzerland, is registered at the Driftwood.

Mrs. T. C. Jones and daughter, Miss Belle, have arrived at the Beach, and will spend three months at the Driftwood.

Mrs. L. S. Moore and little son, of Birmingham, Ala., are registered at the Driftwood.

Miss Arabell Pfeiffer, of Richmond, is a guest of the Driftwood.

Mr. J. C. Flynn and son Dudley, of New Castle, Pa., is visiting his sister Mrs. M. H. Lynde at the Driftwood.

Mrs. and Mrs. Irving Storres and children, Miss Elsie and master William, have returned home after spending a month at the Driftwood.

Mr. William Hart, of Pittsburgh, Pa., spent a few days at the Rudolph Cottage.

The Regular Thing. The little boy felt that at last his conduct entitled him to recognition and reward.

"See here, mother," he said, "are you going to buy me that goat?"

"Not just now, Willie," she replied.

"Of course not! Of course not!" exclaimed Willie bitterly. "That's always the way. No matter how good I am, all you will do about this goat business is to let me be one."

—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Simple Kindness. The spirit of unwearying good will is the great lifting power of the world. When we can do nothing else to right wrong, lessen burden or mend life's hard places for weary feet, we can at least be kind—kind in face, voice and deed. And how many dark places would brighten, heavy loads grow light and new courage come to the heart if only simple kindness were the rule of each!

War A Crime.

Time was when it was considered honorable to go to war—to offer oneself as a target and spend days trying to murder other men.

But, despite all contrary signs, the very idea of a broader civilization is spreading, and many, many people of today recognize war as the thing it is—a crime—a crime of such stupendous size that there exists no court of justice of sufficient jurisdiction to punish it.

If it is a crime to murder one man, it is a crime to slay a thousand. If it is a crime to slay in private life, it is a crime to slay as a profession. And, a fact much nearer home, it is a crime to hang or electrocute a murderer.

Of course all of us are potential murderers. We have tempers; tempers make quarrels, and quarrels make murders.

There is so simple a fact that all of us can grasp it.

But what can explain the action of the thousands who go forth to battle for no better reason than that some two-legged man in high place orders them to go?

We can think of but one explanation. It is because the men who fight are devoid of thinking brains and of manhood.

We whoop a lot about the glorious courage of men who face shot and steel without flinching, but the chances are these men don't know what they are fighting for. Where is anything glorious about such a situation?

Two tom cats with tails fastened over a clothes line display as much "sublime heroism" and a lot more sense than these human cattle who allow some man of assumed authority to rush them into carnage.

When a man or a nation fights for home or honor we can understand, and sympathize, but when it happens, as in the present case, that the men who do the fighting know very little about the principles they are fighting for, we long to see the rank and file turn and rend their rulers, and clear the way for democracy, for independence and for individuality.

Is that socialism? If so it is God's truth.

Growing Mushrooms. In Abilene, Kansas, a mushroom grower has a cave 100 feet long, 10 feet deep, roofed over with clay. The mushrooms are grown on the floor of the artificial cave in a rich compost.

They are started from spawn which is obtained in brick shaped quantities and broken up for planting. The cave is kept dark all the time, but is wired for electricity.

Big Trees. Near Federalburg, Md., A. W. Thompson cut an oak tree that saved 1,964 feet of lumber.

He also cut a gum tree that measured 44 inches across the stump, making four logs 18 feet long, one log 14 feet, one log 7 feet, the smallest log being 14 inches across the small end. Then he felled an oak tree that contained a swarm of bees, an old squirrel in her nest and a snake four feet long. The bees, squirrel and snake were not six feet apart in the hollow.

Fisherman Suffer Less. At least $1000 loss to Virginia Beach Fishermen, each, was occasioned by the storm that swept the coast last week, to say nothing of time lost. Damage to nets, poles, etc.

Supreme Test of a Nation Is the Power to Be Master of Itself

By President WOODROW WILSON.

THERE are many tests by which a nation makes proof of its greatness, but it seems to me the supreme test is self possession, the power to resist excitement, to think calmly, TO THINK IN MOMENTS OF DIFFICULTY AS CLEARLY AS IN MOMENTS OF EASE—TO BE ABSOLUTELY MASTER OF ITSELF AND OF ITS FORTUNE.

It seems to me that the object of traditions such as this society (Daughters of the American Revolution) cherishes and means to assist in perpetuating is to show us the basis of principle upon which we shall keep our pole.

Such ideals cannot be maintained with steadiness of view and content, and excitement, and what I am constantly hoping is that every great influence such as you ladies exercise, for example, will be exercised to produce the sober second thought upon every critical matter that arises. The first thought is apt to proceed from impulse, from prejudice, from predilection, from some transient sympathy. But we cannot afford to sympathize with anybody, or anything except the passing generations of human beings.

AMERICA FORGETS WHAT SHE WAS BORN FOR WHEN SHE DOES EXACTLY THE WAY EVERY OTHER NATION DOES—WHEN SHE LOSES HER RECOLLECTION OF HER MAIN OBJECT, AS SOMETIMES NATIONS DO AND AS SOMETIMES, PERHAPS, SHE HERSELF HAS DONE, IN PURSUING SOME IMMEDIATE AND TRANSITORY OBJECT.

Piling Up of Foreign Trade Balances Sure to Stimulate Business

By JOHN H. FAHEY, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America

ALL the evidence which comes to my attention indicates that business conditions throughout the country are slowly but surely improving.

ABSOLUTELY WE HAVE ALREADY BEEN A REMARKABLE RECOVERY FROM THE UNCERTAINTY AND DISTURBANCE CAUSED BY THE CRASH OF WAR.

The tremendous purchasing power of the western part of the United States as a result of a record breaking crop at high prices is now making itself felt, as it always has in normal times.

The employees of the establishments furnishing supplies to the warring nations are now buying the products of other kinds of factories, and thus, little by little, business is being extended.

In general, however, the piling up of tremendous foreign trade balances and the reserve power of this country cannot fail to be effected. Aside from this, it is worth while remembering that in ALL THE HISTORY OF COMMERCE DURING GREAT WARS NEUTRAL NATIONS, WHILE AT FIRST MUCH DISTURBED, HAVE FINALLY ADJUSTED THEMSELVES TO CONDITIONS AND INvariably HAVE FOUND NEW OPPORTUNITIES DEVELOP.

European War an Error of Statesmanship, Not a Visitation of God

By FLORENCE GUERTIN TUTTLE, Author

THE war will have a revitalizing effect upon Christianity. In this European chaos it is not Christianity that has failed, for that in reality has never been tried. MATERIALISM HAS GONE UNDER, AS IT ALWAYS MUST WHEN IT BECOMES TYRANNICAL IN THE MINDS OF MEN.

Already the war is driving the people back to the idea of God. For a time it was the fashion to assume that science had destroyed God. Now we know that it has revealed God—a God of law and order instead of anarchy and chance. A difference exists, though, between the old and the new faith. We no longer charge God with the results of our own blunders. The European conflict is seen to be an error in statesmanship, not a visitation of God.

It matters not how we designate God—whether as the principle of goodness, as absolute energy or as a power higher than ourselves. All Europe is lifting its voice to the idea that it calls God.

MEN AND WOMEN WHO SEE SPIRITUAL AS WELL AS NATURAL CAUSE AND EFFECT SEE GOD EVEN BEHIND THIS MAN MADE EVIL. CAN ANY ONE OBSERVE THE SPIRIT OF REGENERATION THAT IS PERMEATING FRANCE OR THE VOLUNTARY MOVE TOWARD PROHIBITION ON THE PART OF ENGLAND AND DOUBT THE OPERATION OF SPIRITUAL FORCE?

Men Are More Intelligent and Efficient Than Women of the Same Class

By MISS AGNES REPLIAR, Noted Essayist and Author

AFTER the war there will be greater opportunities for women if they are able to do the work. Women can't compete with men, however. They are far less efficient and less intelligent. MEN HAVE BEHAVED WITH THE UTMOST GENEROSITY IN THIS, AS IN EVERYTHING ELSE CONCERNING WOMEN, AND HAVE ADMITTED WOMEN INTO EVERY PROFESSION AND INDUSTRY WHEN THEY HAVE ASKED TO ENTER.

The men of every class are more intelligent and more efficient than the women of the same class. The average workman is more intelligent than the average working woman, and the average lawyer is superior to the average woman lawyer. Women are bright and clever in a species way, but men have a higher order of intelligence.

And, further, men have far more principle and more honor. They are less virtuous than women; but they have their own virtues. They have all the qualities of a higher type of mind.

THEY HAVE GREATER ENDURANCE, MENTALLY AND PHYSICALLY, THAN WOMEN. AFTER ALL, THE MENTAL QUALITIES DEPEND TO A GREAT EXTENT ON THE PHYSICAL, AND NATURE HAS MADE MEN PHYSICALLY MORE FIT.

Road Meeting at Oceana.

The meeting held at Oceana Thursday, June 10, was attended by a goodly number of people interested. E. W. James of Washington, D. C., of the Bureau of Public Roads, and F. D. Henley of the State Highway Commission, were present and made addresses.

On motion of A. J. Ackiss, of Virginia Beach, a committee will be appointed by R. H. Gordon, president of the Good Roads County Association, to distribute good roads literature throughout Princess Anne County.

Mr. James, in his address said that sand-clay roads, which were possible for Princess Anne, could be maintained at a cost of about $30 a mile a year. Maintenance, he explained, was to keep the road as good as when first built, and not to make improvements. The road, he said, would have to be gone over with a grading machine about once a year.

Mr. Henley, of the State highway commission, was favorably impressed with the local conditions for sand-clay roads. They can be built, he said, for $600 or $700 a mile. He advocated the bond issue plan as the best in which to provide the money. Mr. Henley has had general supervision of sand-clay road building in 25 counties, and on the whole these roads have done fairly well, he said. Citizens interested were warned that the State's good roads money would likely be given to some county other than Princess Anne if this county does not do something positive this year.

Revered After Sixty Years.

Sixty years ago, when a lad of 10, he fell from the limb of a giant tree and broke a leg, forcing him to spend his birthday in bed, Carl Grossmayer, of Evansville, Ind., vowed that on his 70th birthday he would blow the tree from the ground. Recently Grossmayer, now a veteran of the Second regiment of Indiana Civil war veterans, kept his vow by blowing from the ground the stump of the tree. When he met with the accident he lived on a farm of 180 acres. Now that area has shrunk to a house and three lots. The elderly veteran's only relative, a son living in St. Louis, came to this city to see his father keep his 60-year-old vow. A stump was all that remained of the oak, but Grossmayer drilled under it and with a charge of dynamite, blew it from the ground.

Catholic Church.

Contractor Johnston is making things lively at the site of the Catholic Church now being erected at the Beach. Big piles of material, busy workmen and favorable weather are conditions now being taken advantage of for the early completion of the edifice.

Scarcity of Locals.

This issue of the Times is shy on local items this week. With a re-organized typographical force we assure our readers no matters of local importance will be overlooked.

The Carrington Cottage.

The name of the Hanover Cottage, immediately on the ocean front and opposite Lake Station, has been changed to The Carrington, and opened for the season by Mr. J. P. Branch, an experienced hotel gentleman. Bathing, boating and fishing are among the attractions at this resort. The Cottage has been thoroughly overhauled and renovated.

A Delightful Social.

Last Saturday night a delightful social event took place at the Fitzhugh Cottage, Virginia Beach, the occasion being the celebration of the birthday of one of its most popular guests, Mrs. W. G. Jones, wife of Mr. W. G. Jones, Principal of Madison School, Richmond, Va.

The table was beautifully decorated with red and white sweet peas and red ribbons. A large frosted cake ornamented with red candles occupied the center of the table. At the conclusion of the supper a tray was placed on the table with gifts for Mrs. Jones. Each gift was marked with a card on which was written a verse of poetry appropriate to the occasion, and to the recipient of the gift.

The entertainment was closed with the singing of toasts and the playing of games. Altogether it was a most enjoyable affair. The guests present were Mrs. S. T. Adair, Mrs. and Miss Denham, of Florida; Misses Louise Miller and Jane Goss, Richmond; Mrs. W. G. Jones, Miss C. S. Adair, Rev. William Denham, of Bethel, and Miss Emily Taylor, of Richmond.

This cottage has been fortunate in having quite a number of pleasant and congenial guests this season so that dull care was driven away in spite of the gloomy weather.

Among the recent arrivals at the cottage are Mrs. Gibson, Miss Ollie Gibson, Miss Burch, Miss Binford and Miss Normert of Richmond.

The following are the guests at the Waverly: J. A. Murray and party, Glasgow, Ky., Miss Majorie Longen, Kansas City, Mo., Miss Katherine Tucker, Norfolk, Va., Wm. F. Bahman, Kansas City, Mo., P. C. Warwick Jr., wife and children, Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Wm. F. Gregory, Mrs. Caldwell Bradshaw, and Miss Martha Bradshaw, Birmingham, Ala.

Arrivals at the Gardner Cottage: Carrie H. Manson, W. W. Harrington, M. C. Russell, Washington, D. C., Frederic Cohn, Hamburg, Germany, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Hooker, Greenville, N. C., Miss Minnie Lee Baker, Norfolk, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Engle, Huntington, W. Va., Mrs. Charlotte E. Baldwin, Newark, N. J.

The guests at the Pocahontas are: Mr. J. P. Laffey, Cincinnati, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Scott, Jane, Va., Vernon Nolins and Wife, Louisville, Ky., Frances Carpenter, N. Y. City, Orina Olson, N. Y. City, H. M. Jones, J. C. Bowen, Emmel L. Hargrove, Elsie McCoy, Norfolk, Va., Mr. and Mrs. S. Correll, Indianapolis, Indiana, Charles Neville Buck, Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Newton and Mrs. Shields came to the Beach yesterday to look after their cottage and to make necessary repairs.

Mrs. John Jackson goes to Old Point tomorrow to meet her sister from Richmond.

Mrs. Jane Laffey has opened up the Harmony Lodge for the season.

Mr. Winslow Simpson has just returned home from the University of Virginia, where he has been the past season.

A PROPOSITION THAT MERITS ATTENTION.

Last week we gave notice of a letter of importance to appear in this issue and which communication will be found elsewhere in these columns. Upon reflection we believe that the idea therein set forth will be found to constitute one of the most logical and valuable suggestions ever tendered looking to the advancement of Virginia Beach and the efficiency of our Army and Navy. The article is by a gentleman of distinction in literature whose high capabilities as a scholar and a thinker are acknowledged and appreciated by the State. Whatever he has to say, whether it be in the realm of poetry or about the matter-of-fact things of ordinary affairs, is always of importance, and his voice should be more frequently heard in matters of public concern. Mr. Vieth has given expression to a thought which doubtless has occurred to many others, which is that our national military departments are no less free from the same kind of stagnation common to all branches in which routine has been permitted to usurp authority and official regulations, and perfunctory exercises have become the main consideration. Bodies of the national forces are kept constantly segregated in reservations and fortresses and year after year go through the same drills and the same theoretical exercises in the art of warfare. In this respect the Navy has somewhat the advantage of the Army because the ships at intervals go out to sea and engage in battle practice, yet even here we are prone to believe that one very important element is lacking, which is the practical co-operation of army and navy in maneuvers likely to occur in actual war conditions, a most important feature of which would seem to be the landing at fairly difficult points along the coast of bodies of sailors, marines and infantry to contest with each other for strategic positions.

If there is in the United States any better or more convenient a location for such practice than the section which includes Cape Henry and Virginia Beach we stand to be informed. Within a few miles are located three of our greater military reservations, and at frequent intervals our great fleet is anchored for days in the adjoining waters. Moreover, the attack and defense of these positions the very probable occurrences which would follow our embroilment with any first-class power. The capture of Norfolk and its Navy Yard to use as a base of operations against the more important cities of the Chesapeake would doubtless be the first objective of a vigorous assailant. This territory, once in possession of the enemy, would open the way for a combined land and sea attack on Monroe, whose fall would expose Washington and Baltimore to disaster.

The present has shown the extreme difficulty in dislodging a strong enemy who has once entrenched himself upon conquered territory. We believe our correspondent's suggestion is eminently practical and that it should be urged upon the consideration of both the Army and Navy Departments by a special committee.

Copies of this issue of the Times will be sent to both Secretary Daniels and Garrison and it is our hope that this summer and every succeeding summer will witness at least one "real" sham battle with large forces among the sand dunes and along the coast of our beautiful Atlantic headland.

Was Will Continue Three Years.

Henry M. Pindell, newspaper editor of Peoria, Ill., has just returned from Europe, and says the war will last three more years and millions more men will be slain. "I am not a peace propagandist," said Mr. Pindell, "but if all Americans could see what I have seen in the trenches they would never go to extreme measures except as a last resort." "I talked," said he, "to a man near Carey, a member of a regiment which started out with 4,600 men. He was one of 200 that were left. He described a certain battle as a mingling of terrific noises, a shaking and trembling of the air, blinding, choking smoke, hiding all sight of both friend and foe, the screams of the wounded and dying, and then the confusion of retreat. Neither he or his comrades had any idea what they were accomplishing."

Experiment Station Inspected.

Pending the renewal of the State appropriation to pay the running expenses of the Virginia Truck Experiment Station at Diamond Springs, Princess Anne county, the State Board of Agriculture sent a committee to look into the work and management of the station. The committee visited the station last week and in company with a delegation of Southern produce board of directors looked over the station and station work; and spent some time studying up the agricultural interests of Tidewater Virginia. The State Board of Agriculture is composed of some of the ablest farmers in the State and in connection with the State commission of agriculture and immigration, is doing much to advance the agricultural interests of the State. It is to be hoped that nothing will interfere to impair the usefulness of such an important feature as the Virginia Truck Experiment Station.

The members of the board comprising the party are B. D. Adams, of Charlotte county, president; Henry S. Bowen, of Tazewell; R. H. Gray, of Leesburg; R. H. Angell, of Roanoke; J. S. Taylor, of Beech; A. J. McMath, of Accomac, and Frank Lindsay, of Portsmouth.

Berries Shipped.

The round-up of the berries shipped from this section this year is set down as 165,544 crates. The principal crop moving to markets are figured as follows: Cabbage, 57,268 barrels; beans, 49,750 bushels; potatoes, 7,446 barrels. The cool, cloudy, windy weather following the flood will doubtless help to lessen the damage. The potato in the upland, on well drained land, especially that that is land-drained, suffered least and it is to be hoped that the total damage is not more than one-fourth of the midsummer crops. Three-fourths of a crop of the present acreage will be plenty.

Picnics Coming.

It has been arranged that the joint picnic of the St. Paul's and St. Thomas Episcopal, Armstrong Memorial Presbyterian and First Christian Sunday Schools of Norfolk and Berkley will come to Virginia Beach on Wednesday, June 16th, for their summer outing. The cars will accommodate the Berkley people by leaving there direct.

Financial Condition of United States Strongest in the World

By WILLIAM G. MADDOX, Secretary of the Treasury

THE treasury department has just published a summary of the reports of nicely bank examiners whose combined jurisdiction covers every portion of the United States. They show that in every section of the country there is now a pronounced business revival except in Maine and in a few isolated districts and that confidence and optimism prevail everywhere.

Pampering of Convicts Results in an Increase of Crime

By Judge EDWARD SWANN, Supreme Court of New York

It seems to me that a man with a criminal record can get work easier these days than an honest man. Under present conditions and sentiment the honest man is almost forced to become a criminal in order to keep himself alive.

The glamour of crime seems to attract the employer. BUSINESS MEN ARE KNOWN TO INVEST IN THE BUSINESS OF CRIME TO OBTAIN CRIMINALS FOR WORK IN THEIR ESTABLISHMENTS.

When I impose an indeterminate sentence of from two to twenty years I cannot help thinking how farcical is the indeterminate sentence. The man will come out of prison automatically at the end of two years—that is, if he behaves himself.

The criminal has to receive a shock to bring back his senses. He doesn't get such a shock in prison. When he enters he is told: "You are more sinned against than sinning. You are the product of a defective civilization." We must not pamper criminals in this dovetail fashion.

WHAT IS THE RESULT OF ALL THIS PAMPERING? CAN ANY ONE SAY CRIME IS DECREASING? I HEARD FOUR HUNDRED AND FIVE FELLOW CASES IN THE MONTH OF MARCH. ALL OTHER SPECIAL SESSIONS JUDGES ARE OVERWORKED JUST NOW.

Japan Asks From Us Same Treatment Given Other Nations

By Dr. H. B. BENNINGHOFF of Waseda University, Japan

FAIR treatment is all the Japanese ask from us, the same rights that we give to other nations; no more.

It is time for us to face this situation squarely and fairly, and when we do so the problem that perplexes us will no longer exist. IS OUR TREATY GUARANTEEING JAPANESE IMMIGRANTS THE SAME RIGHTS AS THOSE OF OTHER COUNTRIES BUT "A SCRAP OF PAPER?"

To America, first of all, is Japan's challenge, because America, first of all, had a hand in her awakening. America opened her eyes and showed her the wonders of civilization after she had slept so many centuries in pagan darkness. AMERICA HAS FURNISHED MORE EDUCATIONAL AND MORAL STIMULUS TO MODERN JAPAN THAN ALL OF THE OTHER COUNTRIES.

THE USEFUL PAINT BRUSH.

How Springtime Inspires Toward a General Freshening Up of the Home. Paint and putty brush should be as essential to the housewife as any needle and thread. There is the baby buggy of wicker, stained and dirty from long use. A small can of stain and a couple of coats of black on the springs and wheels will make it with stand the still harder test of spring showers. The baby's iron crib looks so though it has a case of implicit measles where baby has dented off the enamel with the stick of its toy gun. A coat of white enamel or better, three coats of white paint and enamel will cover the blemishes and make the crib as sanitary and pleasing as when new.

On close inspection the gas stove and the pipes appear rustily dingy and down to the month, as it were. Ah, just the thing: a small can of special stove paint, black will make the stove gleam happily again and remove the dangerous air. Perhaps, too, the radiator pipes are rusted and abused. It is only the work of a half hour to paint them with special silver or gold radiating paint, so that they will look as if they were glowing with heat. The kitchen in an important place for the use of paint brush and putty. Preserving of brightly shining—say, a silver-plated table—may be made attractive by the various lacquer paints. The putty should never be hard to clean if they are made in one or two coats of white enamel. Table drawers also can be painted, which will prevent them from becoming greasy and getting so dirty. The legs and front of the only kitchen table will look better and stay cleaner if given a coat of paint. The legs and front of the other tables, too. Wooden mill boxes, strips on which to hang utensils, the space between shelves in many closets, can also be made better and more sanitary by a liberal use of paint.

All woods with exposed pores should be stained and grained. Water enters the pores, causes them to swell and thus become disfigured. The more impervious the wood surface can be made the easier it is to keep it clean and the longer the wood will last. Paint, varnish and stain, whose base should always be the best bleached oil, fill all the pores, coating and protecting it impervious. And paint is not hard to clean. It is the open, untreated woodwork which looks dingy, absorbs grease and is hard to care for.

HOW TO PROVIDE THE HOME WITH SEVERAL USEFUL ARTICLES.

A simple and ingenious device has been created to take care of the dolly. Without requiring much space and insuring freedom of motion, the dolly can be made into a useful article. A foot or two in length is attached to a piece of the material, which holds about the dolly and the pole and is in a small box.

Particularly serviceable for use under the trees is the lace cake cover. This, square or oblique cover, which is very attractive and easily made. A small screen frame of wire or wood is covered with silk. Gold lace and any material can be used for trimming, with a trailing or a loop at the edges.

The lamp and lamp shade are useful articles in the home. The lamp is a simple article of furniture. The newest form is that of the shade, charmingly simple and useful. It can be used as a stand for desk or table or even tall enough for the floor, painted in enamel yellow and black or ivory and black, is surmounted by a canary or ivory shade. On the yellow or ivory ground are stenciled the most delicate of silhouettes and copies of old and modern masterpieces. Eloquent bits of poetic life depict themselves with all the dainty grace of which they are capable. While the best effect is obtained when the lamp is illuminated the black figures hold their own excellently in an outside light.

Do not put water in the pan unless you wish to steam the fish instead of boiling it. After the fish has been well cleaned scrub with the following dressing, which is sufficient for a fish weighing from four to six pounds: Take one cupful of cracked corn meal, one cupful of cracked corn meal, one spoonful of salt, same amount of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, tablespoonful of chopped celery, spoonful of capers and one teaspoonful of chopped pickles; also add one-quarter cupful of melted butter, one egg and mix well. The fish will make a dry dressing. If you prefer a wet dressing, which many people do, use stale bread crumbs and moisten with one beaten egg. Use the butter or mustard the cracker crumbs with warm water. Place in pan, put two or three tablespoonfuls of butter over and near the end, when the steam has lowered back, stir with the melted butter. Bake until brown and be sure to baste often.

BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT

Meets Here July 6th and Closes July 15th—Interesting Program and Large Attendance.

The Virginia Baptist Summer Encampment and Ocean side Chautauque will hold its sessions this year at Virginia Beach from Tuesday, July 6, to Thursday, July 15. One of the most interesting and instructive programs of similar kind ever made has been prepared for the occasion, including a course of Chautauque lectures by some of the best speakers in the Baptist church. The encampment constituency is made up principally of Baptist pastors, Sunday school superintendents, secretaries and teachers, home department visitors, B. Y. P. U. officers and members, officers and teachers of organized churches, W. M. U. and Y. W. A. leaders. Maryland and North Carolina churches, as well as those of Washington, have sent a number of their best workers every year to Virginia Beach for training. The largest number yet is expected to visit the encampment this year in spite of the fact that the North Carolina Baptists have decided to establish an encampment at Wrightsville Beach, near Wilmington. A later date this paper will publish the program.

When the plate is that of a good collector it constitutes an advertisement and adds a certain interest and value to the volume. I was once going through the collection of a friend, and, observing the absence of a bookplate, I asked him why it was. He replied, "The selection of a bookplate is such a serious matter."—Atlantic.

Can Say Only Five Words.
"Hello, yes, this is central," are the only words a girl found unconscionable on an elevated railway platform in New York Monday can utter. She fell after a train had pulled out from the station and was taken to Knickerbocker Hospital. Physicians there declare her malady is syncope. She is unconscious, and can utter no other words than those quoted, and works her hands continually as though she was sticking "plugs" into a switchboard.

Historic Warship Sold.
The historic old sloop of war Portsmouth, which took possession of San Francisco Bay for the United States in 1846, destroyed the Chinese fortifications in Canton in 1856, and later fought with Admiral Farragut, has been sold for $3,662 to John H. Gregory, of Perth Amboy, N.J.
The old ship lies sunk at her berth in the Norfolk Navy Yard, and is good only for the material in her hull. Since the Civil War she has been used as a training ship.

A NOVEL SUGGESTION.
Correspondent Would Have Army and Navy Contribute to Pleasure and Profit of Virginia Beach.

To the Editor Princess Anne Times:
Among the many suggestions looking to the advancement and betterment of our great seaside resort there is one which seems to have been entirely overlooked and I should be glad of the opportunity to first give it publicity. It is not generally appreciated at its real value what a tremendous asset is possessed by this section in the location here of the several navy and army posts. The presence of U. S. soldiers and sailors upon our streets is so familiar a sight as to attract little attention and inspire contempt on the part of the native, yet nevertheless we all know the immense interest that is aroused when there is an occasional parade of these regulars on the streets of Norfolk when practically the entire population turns out to witness the spectacle. And there are few things more designed to arouse interest and enthusiasm. When a regiment of these troops comes marching down the street, led by a crack band, such as the magnificent musical unit of Fort Monroe, the man who fails to get a thrill of deeper pleasure and patriotism must be a dullard indeed. Such displays, like all the finer and better things of existence, are unfortunately all too rare, but few as they are we should realize that there are thousands of targeteers throughout the United States which never have the opportunity to witness such, and still more thousands when a sailor in uniform has never been seen.

It is in my opinion unfortunate that our national forces are so practically secluded and aloof from the great mass of the people, and in my humble judgment it would be well for both the Navy and Army departments if they took measures to correct this condition. For instance it would seem that the real training of our forces for actual conditions of warfare could be better accomplished on the march through the country than in special reservations exclusively. The whole people are taxed to support these forces and why should they not all have the opportunity to share in the pleasure of witnessing their drills and tactics? It seems unfair, for instance, that the community of Old Point should be daily treated to a drum parade with splendid martial music while nearby cities like Richmond, Lynnhaven, Petersburg, etc. never once in the whole course of their existence see so much as a corporal's guard. This leads me to the main point of my letter. I have witnessed numerous sham battles at the St. Helena station. While the spectacle is inspiring one cannot help but feel that it is purely perfunctory, the same from year to year, and of little service to the operations of actual warfare, and with this observation I have in mind the grand maneuvers of the European countries where troops are dispatched to different sections of the country to meet at unknown and unprepared points for the final issue. Why should it not be the same in this country? And in this connection what better topography is afforded for the actual conditions of warfare than the section lying between and including Cape Henry and Virginia Beach? Oyster how convenient this section is to the military stations located in Virginia, and imagine for an instant the grand display that would be afforded by the joint maneuvers of the army and navy having all their objectives the capture or protection of Cape Henry and Virginia Beach, which present the possibilities of actual warfare! What better practice could be afforded than the landing of battle ships and transports of men at these two points, the invaders at Virginia Beach and the defenders at Cape Henry? What better practice for trench work than the great sand dune at Cape Henry, and what more glorious spectacle than the view of the invaders up the beach to the attack? This grand display would draw thousands of visitors from every section of the country and it would afford our military the very practice they need to meet actual conditions of modern warfare. A sham battle on the great sand dune at the Cape with the men behind the entrenchments that had been prepared, the big guns and rapid fires in vigorous action, the warships in the offing belching forth their broadsides, with the great smoke forest as a background, would present a spectacle of warlike pageantry such as a hundred of the smallest St. Helena could not equal either in spectacle or value.

It seems to me that if these ideas were brought by a representative body of our citizens to the attention of the War and Navy Departments that they would not fail to be convinced of the value of the suggestion and that later on during the Summer months Cape Henry and Virginia Beach might be the scene of pomp and pageantry to which their convenient, valuable and unique situations and topographies entitle them. At any rate nothing can be lost by making the effort. I am, sir, respectfully yours,
GEOSEPH J. VANCE.

May Weather, 1915.
Mr. John P. Newsom, Chief of the Weather Bureau at Cape Henry, has kindly furnished this paper with a copy of the observations furnished by him for May, 1915. They are valuable and should be filed for reference.
Temperature—Highest, 86 on the 16th; lowest, 46 on the 29th; greatest daily range of temperature, 31 on the 4th; least daily range of temperature, 10 on the 29th.
Precipitation—Total for May 1.36 inches, greatest in 24 hours, .28, on 12th-13th. Normal for this month, 4.03 inches; deficiency for month, .73.
Wind—Prevailing direction, south; total movement, 8,766 miles; average hourly velocity, 117; maximum velocity for five minutes, 41 miles per hour, from northeast.
Weather—Number of clear days, 10; partly cloudy, 14; fog which, on 11th, or more of precipitation occurred, 14.
Miscellaneous Phenomena—No hail and no sleet; fog prevailed on the 2d, 11th and 30th; thunderstorms occurred on the 3d, 4th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 28th and 30th.

Test of Thaw's Sanity.
Harry K. Thaw will have his sanity tested before a jury, commencing on June 16, if the Court of Appeals does not uphold the State's objection. Thaw was brought before Justice Hendrick Monday and stated that he was anxious to have his case settled at this term of court. Representatives of the Attorney-General's office said that the State would take at least three days to present its case. A large number of alienists will be called by both sides. It is expected that the decision of the Court of Appeals will be handed down before June 16.

A New Industry at Lynnhaven.
At Lynnhaven A. L. Lowe has ordered a complete vegetable canning outfit and will start active work this season, canning tomatoes, string beans, &c., for the market. He does not expect to make much of a success this year as very few truckers have put much ground in tomatoes, but he expects by actual demonstrations to show those interested how much more valuable the tomatoes and string beans are when they can be canned at once at home. Mr. Lowe wants to be informed, however, soon how many bushels he can rely upon so as to make arrangements for the canning, getting the necessary help, etc. He desires truckers to communicate with him giving the necessary information.

Miss Camilla Brinkley, of Manteo, N. C., died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Herman Drinkwater, of Virginia Beach, Saturday night, June 6th. She had been living at the Beach for several years and was well known. She was in the 26th year of her age and quite popular with all who knew her. Her remains were taken to her old home in Manteo for interment.

Galilee Guild.
Visitors at the Beach who desire to be called upon by the ladies of Galilee Church, or by the Rector, are invited to indicate their wish by placing a card on the collection plate, or by speaking to any of the ladies of the Guild.

The Garden Party Bazaar, under the auspices of Galilee Guild, will be held on the Church lawn on Wednesday and Thursday, June 23 and 24. Everybody is cordially invited.

Economy Hints
A penny saved is a penny earned.—Benjamin Franklin.
Dainty Aprons are useful additions to the wardrobe of the woman who does her own housework. These are seen at their best when colored linens are used. The face, gown, blouse, and red and brown look well with a narrow band of contrasting color or tiny piping of plain white linen, bordering neck and armholes.
The same careful woman protects her hair from dust while busy about the home by wearing a dainty cap made of white muslin and lace over a wire frame. This frame is turban shape and is economical because it is the wire frame which protects the coiffure from disarrangement.
For the housewife who thinks in advance this is the time to purchase really excellent half size of 35 cents a pair. An inventive woman recently purchased a dozen pairs of these hose, which were plain. She was disappointed on their small delicate designs of polka dots, tiny roses and even a pattern of tiny clover blossoms done in French knot with silk of the same shade as the stockings.
If gloves or shoes of any color but black have become spotted by water and are allowed to dry there is no hope for them. They are dry, aridly rigid. But if, while they are still damp, they are kept on hands or feet and rubbed with a damp cloth the spots will disappear. Then brush lightly with a dry soft women cloth.
A young business woman manages a dainty conception in collars and cuffs for her blue serge office frock by a novel use of narrow hemstitched or embroidered edge handkerchiefs. Two handkerchiefs make a set. One is folded cornerwise and cut in half. These pieces, with the cut edge hemmed, are the cuffs. The second handkerchief is also cut in half and one half folded out to fit the neck. The remaining half is again cut in two parts and folded over the bodice in the form of revers. These sets are inexpensive and give an attractive touch to the office dress.

FOR THE BEDROOM.
How to Make the Stranger Within Your Household Comfortable.
The first consideration for a guest is comfort. She may be delighted with the view of flowers that greets her from a table, but she will be sure to appreciate a pretty negligee hanging in the closet. Ingeborg sets out a pair of slippers to slip into is often a comfort indeed. Feet are apt to be tired, and still slippers arrive the feet warm and glad to rest in a pair of simple bed room slippers. These are really no trouble at all to make. You just take a pair of lamb's wool socks and a strip of ribbon long enough to go around the sole and four inches wide. One edge is sewed to the edge of the sole, and the other is turned down to make a hem through which is run a narrow elastic. This draws the ribbon up, shaping it into a shoe.
Supposing you choose blue ribbon and work a few rounds on the toes in subsidiary silk and make a simple kimono of pale blue cotton cap trimmed with a frill of white lace and finished with a lace belt of pink ribbon. This would be a dainty outfit and cost but little. Four yards of cap at 15 cents a yard, plus of flowered in two yards and two yards of lace at 10 cents a yard, will be ample. In fact, if one looked around for bargains it would probably cover the entire cost.
Curtains can be made before they are needed, and dainty inexpensive materials can be had in the early spring. The printed lawn in the dress goods section make the prettiest curtains. The scrim and curtain moieties are not desirable. White cotton voile can be used for the back curtains edged with lace. The colored curtains should be made with a valance, and if made as follows material may be saved. Cut two lengths, each measuring two and one-half yards, and hem one end. Cut a strip the entire width of the goods and stretch entire width. Hem one end and sew the edge of the voile to the top of the two curtains (coming between them) and making one long straight edge. Hem this and pass the thread through, then hang.
The bedspread edged with a frill might be of the same material as the curtains, and slips for cushions could be simple white material over a color or decorated in a color.
How to Use Old Felt Hats.
Instead of throwing away your old or light colored felt hats let them rest overnight in good soapuds, then wash thoroughly and let dry. You cannot say finer material for making soft shoes for the baby nor yet walking. They are soft, comfortable and can easily be kept clean. Wash soiled hats can be washed on the washboard and soaked into shape, letting them stand until dry. The cost is only a little silk thread for trimming.

THE HUMBLE BARNACLE.
It is One of the Most Curious Forms of Marine Life.
Barnacles, which constitute a most curious form of marine life, do not, so far as known, perform any important function in the economy of nature, either constructive or destructive.
Curiously enough, naturalists assign barnacles to that great subdivision of the animal world which includes insects—a, arthropoda (joint footed). Barnacles pertain to that class of crustaceans which includes lobsters and crabs and constitute the order of cirripedia, a term that means "jointed feet."
The young in no respect resemble adults. When the newly born barnacle emerges from its egg it shows itself as a free swimming little creature with one eye, six legs and one shell. It undergoes the operation of molting several times and finally appears with two eyes, twelve legs and two shells. When it has attained this stage of development it fixes no longer, but attaches itself to some convenient object by means of its antennae, secreting a sort of cement whereby it glues itself quite fast. It is then that it undergoes a metamorphosis that completely changes its appearance. It loses its blue-grey shell and its eyes and acquires its characteristic feathery legs. Furthermore, it takes on an entirely new shell.
Three orders of barnacles are later. Members of one order are attached by the shell directly to rocks, timbers or other convenient objects. Those of another order are attached to floating objects by means of a long stalk. The barnacles of the third order are sessile upon coral and other marine structures. When extended from the shell the curled, feathery appendages are in constant motion, serving to create currents in the water which convey to the curious little creatures their food, consisting of many species of minute forms of life.
"Sea acorns" are nothing more than barnacles of the genus Balanus. There are a number of varieties of these, having shells of white, greenish white, pink or purplish color. These barnacles attach themselves to rocks, shellfish, the piling of piers and sometimes even to ships. The law of the shell is glued fast to the supporting object, there being no stem.
Ship barnacles are true wanderers of the deep, since the same species are frequently upon the hulls of vessels proceeding from the most remote and widely separated regions. They present an odd appearance, for the shell is attached to the end of a flexible stalk, which varies in length from an inch in some species to twelve inches in others. Generally speaking, the shell of the ship barnacle is of a white or bluish white hue, and the stalk is brown or slate colored.—Chicago Herald.

The Japanese Fan.
Fans are put to all sorts of curious uses in Japan. At wrestling and fencing matches the umpire always uses a large fan, and the various motions of this fan constitute a language which the contestants understand perfectly and to which they pay prompt attention. The servant girl has a fan made of rough paper to blow the charcoal fires with or use as a dustpan. The farmer has a stout fan to winnow his grain. Another variety is made of waterproof paper, which can be dipped in water and creates great coolness by evaporation.
"Flower Carnival."
Professor Kent will be at the Mason's Hall on Saturday, June 12, at 4:15 p. m., and at 7:30, p. m., to rehearsal. All who wish to take part will come to the rehearsals. Children at 4:15, and adults at 7:30.

The Virginia Beach Public Library will be open Mondays, Wednesdays and Friday mornings from 9 to 11 o'clock. They have about forty new books at present.

Renaissance Will Force Artistic Europe to Sit at America's Feet

By DAVID SEABURY, Artist, President of the Society of the American Renaissance

THE world of today is proud to learn from American engineers and architects that the time is coming, and soon, when Europe will sit at the feet of American writers, American painters, American sculptors and American architects.

THE ANIMATING SPIRIT OF THE RENAISSANCE WILL BE THE SOCIAL SPIRIT, EVEN AS PHILOSOPHY IN GREECE AND FAITH IN ITALY INSPIRED THEIR GREAT PERIODS.

Briefly, this means that we shall not try to produce "highbrow" work which only a select few may appreciate. Our pictures, poems and novels will have as their subjects crowded streets, sweatshops, huge electrical plants and tenements swarming with humanity.

MOREOVER, THE AMERICAN RENAISSANCE WILL GIVE OPPORTUNITY FOR EXPRESSION TO TWO GROUPS WHO HAVE NEVER FULLY POSSESSED IT BEFORE—THE WOMEN AND THE POOR.

—The Quarter Given—

"It is forbidden to declare that no quarter shall be given." So say the Hague regulations. That is a more modern rule than any we have. The Duke of Wellington said that he understood that the defenders of a fort taken by storm had to fight to the death, although he himself did not as a rule adopt such a cruel practice.

A century ago, when a feeble garrison stubbornly held out in a beleaguered place against a force of superior and apparently able to take it eventually, it was usually released quartered. There was an attempt to justify the refusal by a doctrine of "futile resistance"—that he who miserably resisted and caused needless bloodshed deserved to have his own life spared. But that doctrine has been rejected.

As an elephant's shoulder is never still in a lifetime, so the life of the animal is a continuous struggle.

—A Troublesome Cargo—

A number of elephants were taken on board a vessel at Calcutta, and the steamer went to a foreign port. It might be anchored off a point. The sea was as still as oil, but the ship rolled so much that the elephants were in danger of the poles.

Why Milk Boats. We are told by those who study the ways and ravages of the microbe that the milk boat is a very bad thing.

Democracy is Making Tremendous Advances In Europe's War Zone

By ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE, Former Senator From Indiana

WE are too sordid and material in looking upon the actual situation. I want to tell you that we Americans pick up our newspapers. They were all wrong ideas.

THE great gain of the war in Europe, whoever wins and however the issues come out, will be the tremendous advance of democracy.

AND IN THIS COUNTRY OUR BEST MEN HAVE ALMOST FORGOTTEN PATRIOTISM IN THE QUEST FOR BUSINESS ADVANTAGE.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1915

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

MANY SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Virginia Beach Favorable to all Religious Denominations for their Picnic-Excursions

That Virginia Beach possesses all the advantages required to make it an ideal resort for Sunday School picnics is being evidenced every day by the arrival of one and sometimes two schools from the same town or city—Norfolk, Portsmouth and Berkeley sending their schools to breathe the pure free air of the ocean, to plunge in the invigorating and exhilarating surf, to romp, swing, ride the hobby horses and to enjoy the sweet strains of music and the great variety of attractions that a sojourn at the sea-side affords. And then as to the ride to the Beach over the Norfolk Southern electric or steam lines—it is simply one of the most refreshing and enjoyable little trips that can be taken. There is no dust, no loss of time, no jerking of cars, and the trip from start to finish is a round of real enjoyment to big and little people.

On Wednesday of this week, that is on June 16, the joint picnics coming from Berkeley of St. Paul's and St. Thomas' Episcopal churches, the schools of the First Christian church and that of Armstrong memorial, enjoyed the day at the Beach. These schools arrived at the Beach over the steam line and six coaches were filled with happy faces of big and little people. With the exception of a heavy down-pour of rain in the afternoon there was nothing to mar in the least a most happy sea-side outing.

On Thursday, June 17, Prentiss Place Baptist and Elm Ave. Methodist Churches of Portsmouth had their picnic jointly, and came down to enjoy a day at the ocean.

Friday, June 18, the Spurgeon Memorial Baptist Church, of Norfolk, had its Sunday School, down on the sands of the sea enjoying the day.

And so the week ending June 19th wound up with the visit of several Sunday Schools.

The Norfolk Southern is booking dates for the future. The following dates and schools have been listed:

Monday, June 21, Fourth St. Baptist of Portsmouth.

Tuesday, June 22, St. Luke's Episcopal of Norfolk and First Presbyterian of Portsmouth.

Wednesday, June 23, Trinity of Portsmouth and Berkeley Avenue of Berkeley.

Thursday, June 24, South St. Baptist of Portsmouth and Park Place Methodist of Norfolk.

Friday, June 25, McKendree Church Sunday School of Norfolk.

Tuesday, June 29, Berkeley Memorial.

Wednesday, June 30, Brambleton Avenue Methodist and Third Christian.

The foregoing list is not complete. The Norfolk Southern will have other denominations for publication, and the list will be revised and published next week.

"The Pottsville Postoffice."

This play will be given at the temporary Hall for the benefit of the Lynnhaven Library Association, at Lynnhaven Station, on Friday night, June 25, 1915. The public is cordially invited. The admission will be 25 cts. Refreshments extra.

THE BEACH BIG NEW HOTEL

Encouraging Report to Chamber of Commerce: The Building Soon To Be Assured

The meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in Mason's Hall, Monday night, June 14, was well attended and much enthusiasm elicited at the favorable report of the committee. The question of securing funds sufficient to insure the erection of the big hotel at Virginia Beach was paramount, and the committee's report on that subject most encouraging. About twenty-five per cent of prospective subscribers, only, had been approached, yet some $25,000 had already been secured, or one-half of the sum needed. This, it is believed, practically insures the building on the old "Princess Anne" Hotel site, one of the best hotels on the Atlantic coast.

Road improvement was not overlooked, President Greig, who presided, reported conducting an educational campaign among the farmers of Princess Anne county in the interest of the good road movement.

The Sanitary Committee is formulating plans for the exterminating mosquitoes at Virginia Beach. It is reported that the mosquitoes are fewer this year than in previous years, but the committee is doing everything possible to get rid of the few that are at the Beach.

Norfolk Baptist Boys.

It has been arranged to have boys belonging to the First Baptist Church of Norfolk spend a whole week on the sea-side at Virginia Beach.

A furnished cottage has been engaged, and this, supplemented with tents will be ample. The pastor, Rev. John Stratton will be present all the time and hold religious services daily. It is estimated $4 will cover the expense of each boy. One of the ladies of the church will go with her husband and look after the cooking end.

The expedition will leave on Norfolk Southern cars, Monday morning, June 21, and return Saturday afternoon June 26.

Two Sunday Schools Meet.

Spurgeon Memorial Baptist Sunday School came down from Norfolk, early Friday morning and had a splendid day of enjoyment, drinking in the bracing ocean ozone, rollicking in the waves, romping, swimming, jumping, singing, yelling—well, it was just a season of fine fun that will not soon be forgotten. Later on in the day while the "Spurgeon" contingent was rollicking in sea side sport, the Baptist School from Virginia, Va., arrived, all unannounced, and it was a joyous commingling of congenial spirits two schools with but a single thought—a day of rational pleasure. They had it.

The Little Tots.

That most praiseworthy institution at Virginia Beach, the Infant Sanitarium, is now at work in its efforts for tiny humanity. At this time, according to information given this paper, there are about fifteen babies that are being tenderly looked after and are "doing finely," as the lady in charge expressed it. They come from all parts—Norfolk, Portsmouth, Berkeley, and even Richmond. Before the season gets well under way several hundred little ones will likely receive attention.

CROSSED OVER THE RIVER

Louis Wasserman, Well Known Norfolk Business Man, Dies—Well Known in Princess Anne County

Born on the 8th of January, 1856, in Tauberbischofsheim, Baden, Germany, Louis Wasserman passed from the living and joined the "great majority" in death on the 16th day of June, 1915, closing his earthly career in Norfolk, where he had resided over forty-four years. He came to the city of his adoption in 1872, and engaged in the butchering business, which he successfully prosecuted and accumulated considerable property. He was a member of Ober Shofom congregation; belonged to the Pythian Knights, to the Red Men and to the Eagles—in all of which societies he was highly esteemed. And not only was he deceased popular in Norfolk, but was known and well-thought of by many citizens of Princess Anne county. Besides his wife he is survived by three daughters and four sons. Two sisters and five brothers survive him—all of whom reside in Germany except two of the brothers, Moritz Wasserman of Phoebus and Samuel Wasserman, who is in business on 17th street, Virginia Beach, the latter being a twin brother of the deceased, and so striking was the resemblance between these twins that identity was difficult.

The interment was made in the Hebrew cemetery Thursday, June 17th. Peace to his ashes.

Lively at the Casino.

Getting things a shade to accommodate all who arrive at the Casino is now the watch-word of those in charge, and look where you will you will observe the eye of watchfulness on the alert. General Manager G. M. Reynolds, whose cosy home is near Lake Station, and who is a popular fellow, is fully alive to what is required and is leaving no "stone unturned" in having all the departments prepared to respond to each and every call. President A. Padas, who looks over the bathing end, is now fully prepared to accommodate all who delight in a plunge into the "briny deep," and thousands go away saying no finer, better equipped or safer bathing beach can be found on the Atlantic coast. And there is Treasurer John Rambalis, in charge of the magnificent buffet, whose skill, experience and popularity make him the right man in the right place; and near by is the carefully watched over by Mr. Jake Karamgelman, and who is receiving gratifying patronage. And so it runs all along the line. The Saturday evening dances, with fine music under the management of Mr. Lee Carrier, are being largely attended and highly enjoyed by great crowds.

At the Virginia Beach Methodist church, on eighteenth street, there will be services at 8 o'clock in the evening, Rev. Daniel G. C. Butts officiating. Sunday school in morning at 10 o'clock. Visitors are invited.

Virginia Beach Locals.

Mrs. M. E. VonMueller, of Oklahoma and her mother, of Portsmouth, Va., spent the week-end at the Leelauchur Cottage, as guests of Mrs. William Lee. All concerned enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

BIBLE CONFERENCE

Will be Held in Princess Anne Inn and Rudolph Cottage—Lasts 15 Days

The International Bible Conference, which will include a boy's camp, a young woman's conference, a baracca camp, a Gideon's conference, a temperance conference and a peace conference will be held at Virginia Beach from June 20 to July 5. Rev. G. W. Griffin is in charge of the conference.

The Princess Anne Inn and the Rudolph cottage have been rented by the conference for accommodations and there is now in process of erection a large tent by the side of the Rudolph cottage in which sessions will be held.

A large attendance of boys will be one of the prominent features, and to accommodate them as they arrive arrangements to take care of 200 boys at a time have been made. The boys will be under suitable leadership.

The program is being prepared and the public made acquainted with details.

The first meeting will be held in the Baptist Tabernacle on Seventeenth street Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, June 30. The meeting is free for all.

Scalded by Steam.

Last Monday George N. Everton was quite badly scalded while cleaning out a Steam Injector at the Portable Saw Mill of Mr. J. L. Burgess, near Shelton station, Princess Anne County. Boiling water sprayed over his right side, his arms, shoulders and back of his head. Immediately following the accident a physician was sought but as none could be found in the neighborhood the injured man was looked after and carried to St. Vincent's Hospital, Norfolk, in the Automobile of Mr. Lam Frizzell, who resides near the scene of the accident. At last accounts Mr. Everton was doing well but, of course, suffering quite much.

It proved later, after the patient's injuries had been examined, that his condition was not at all serious, and accordingly he was discharged the next day from the Hospital and sent to his home in an automobile.

Maj. R. E. Banks.

Major R. E. Banks, who died at Lee Camp Soldier's Home, Richmond, Wednesday morning, was widely known in this section. He was a former mayor of Norfolk, collector of customs, and in all relations, public and private, was held in the highest esteem. He belonged to the Sacred Heart Catholic church, Norfolk, where the funeral services were conducted. He was 75 years of age.

"Satanet."

Now that the hot weather is on us in earnest, it will be of interest to learn that under the above name one of the most delightfully cool and refreshing soft drinks has been put on the market and is gaining popularity. It is highly recommended. Manufactured by the Lemon-Kola manufacturing company of Norfolk. See "ad" in another column.

If the Cottages having news items, the coming or going of guests and friends, or anything of interest to Virginia Beach will leave same at the store of E. P. Holland. It will have space and careful attention.

WONDERFUL GROWTH

OF CITY POINT, VA.

From Small Village Has Sprung Into a City of 17,000 Inhabitants

POWDER PLANT, THE MOVING FACTOR

City Point, which was hardly heard of a few months ago, is now on the lips of every one in all parts of the United States. Then it had a population of a few hundred—now it has grown to a city of 15,000 or 20,000.

The new settlement embraces 2,000 acres of land owned by the Dupont powder people, who are constructing thereon a ten million dollar plant. The lands are surrounded on one side by City Point, and the Appomattox and James river on the other. Stores, hotels, bakeries and other buildings of all kinds are rapidly going up and the city will be able to take care of its people. Petersburg, which has been withered out much animation since the Civil War has been galvanized into new life.

A hardware dealer last month received a $40,000 order for hardware for the munitions plant, and for double the amount this month. The hotels are crowded. A short time ago Petersburg boasted less than half a dozen automobiles for hire. Now there are 125, from sight seeing cars to runabouts, all getting a share of the new rush of business. They charge 25 cents a trip to the new city ten miles out, and make several trips a day. Rooms in Petersburg are at a premium and near the new settlement farmers are renting tent space on their land.

The county officials are in despair at the havoc wrought on the county road from Petersburg to the new community by the automobile traffic. The road is repaired and ruined daily. A traction line to carry both passenger and freight traffic is now planned from Petersburg to City Point in the expectation that it will relieve county road traffic.

It is said that within two weeks after the sinking of the Lusitania 7,000 additional men were rushed to the powder plant to hurry on its completion. Day and night shifts are worked.

Extraordinary precautions against espionage or accidents are used at the works. The plant is entirely surrounded by a barbed wire fence eight miles long and twelve feet high, and three hundred armed guards, mounted and unmounted, patrol the grounds. Newspaper men are barred, and none but employees are admitted through the gates.

Whether the United States government is back of the rush of activity at the plant is unknown, but the coming of the army of workmen has created a remarkable situation. In the wake of the workers 5,000 others have followed, with more coming every day. Two-thirds of this population has arrived within the last month. The exciting scenes of the over-night settlements on Western Indian lands are being duplicated on a larger scale.

The building construction within the last two months has been something marvelous. Numbers of men are living in tents and others have constructed temporary houses with tarpaper roofs in order to get shelter over their heads.

Now there are under construction three banks, eight or ten hotels and rooming houses, and the city shows an activity that was never witnessed in Virginia.

The inhabitants of the old conservative city of Petersburg look upon it as a perfect wonder, and the country people go around with their mouths open, wondering what will be built next. The story goes that a blind man passed through the town the other day and said to himself, "It beats anything I ever saw."

Grand Jury Indictments.

At the Princess Anne Court House, Monday, June 14, the Grand Jury returned the following indictments:

G. E. Nason and D. F. Myers, charged with maiming.

Archie Wright, charged with maiming.

Frank Smith, charged with attempted murder.

Clarkwell Sanderlin, charged with murder.

Maurice Wright, charged with criminal assault.

J. Karsengeld, charged with assault.

Joah Morris, charged with maiming.

Henry Plummer, charged with horse stealing.

An Artist's Impromptu Solo.

Pierre Garat, the singer and exquisite of Napoleonic France, was not merely a glaze of fashion and a wonderful self instructed singer, but an artist devoted to his art. "But in the following," says Bernard Mill in his biography, "an example of stercority in art or of love of attracting attention." Company had supplied him with a "romance" to be set to music. When the two met Garat replied, "I have not hit upon an idea as yet." One day Company was walking down the Rue Neuve des Petits Champs. Hearing a sound of some one running up behind him, he turned. It was Garat, who seized him by the arm, dragged him up the stairs of a neighboring house and, halting on the first landing, exclaimed, "We're off!" At once he began to sing the romance through at the top of his voice. The inhabitants of the house began to open their doors, heads were projected over the banisters, finally they began to approach. But Garat, having finished, set down the stairs like a monkey, dragging the bewildered poet with him.—York's Companion.

Lord Chesterfield, when he had only a short while to live, was, on the advice of his physician, taken out for an easy drive. As the equipage was proceeding slowly along it was met by a lady who remarked pleasantly, "Ah, my lord, I am glad to see you able to drive out." "I am not driving out, madam," answered Chesterfield, "I am simply rehearsing my funeral."

Bounced His Bouncer.

"John," said Mrs. Billis after the caller had gone away, "I wish you wouldn't bounce your bouncer so." "What do you mean, Maria?" asked Mr. Billis. "I didn't mind your telling her that you were ten years older than I, but you followed it up a minute later by letting it slip that you were fifty-two."—Chicago Tribune.

Times Change.

"What is the principal difference between modern and ancient times?" "One of the main points was that the modern ones lived longer, while the ancient ones died."

ALL TO-GETHER FOR THE NEW BEACH HOTEL

The report of the committee appointed by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, to raise funds for the erection of a suitable hotel, which was handed-in to the meeting of that body Monday night, was of most favorable character. That the hotel will be built now seems sure.

The plans of the new "Princess Anne Hotel" give promise of a palatial structure equal to the finest and best of the famed resort hostilities of the nation. This is as it should be, and those who have set this great enterprise in motion should be satisfied with nothing less. It was announced that the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce would engage in a whirlwind campaign for subscriptions to the new hotel stock. It is to be hoped that they will not let up until the last dollar has been subscribed, and their efforts should have the active support of every progressive citizen of the county. The proposition is to have the hotel ready for guests by July 1st, 1916. While we know little about building operations we are still a little of the opinion that this is all to short a time for the erection of a structure of such magnitude and solidity as is proposed. While time is, of course, a factor, and the sooner the hotel is erected the better, yet no undue haste should be permitted to operate against the architectural substantiality of the structure. Virginia Beach has waited for eight years to get the project in operation and it could afford to wait a couple of years for the reality if the added time of construction assures a building that will leave nothing to be desired. The new "Princess Anne Hotel" should be storm-proof and time-proof as well as fire-proof. It should be an asset to the owners and the community for a century to come, and not, because of poor or hurried construction, a liability. In this respect it were well to make haste slowly.

MAKE LIFE-SAVING STATIONS CONTINUOUS.

The recent unprecedented storm that swept these coasts during the early days of this month is sufficient argument for the abolition of the yearly closing down of the life-saving stations on our seaboard. The coast guard should be on service every minute of the year. The small saving effected by the two month's vacation is perhaps more than offset by the deterioration of property through neglect during that period. Certain it is that the one hundred thousand dollars saving effected by the closing down should not for an instant be balanced against the possible loss of human lives.

Some idea of the firmness of building construction, not at all uncommon in this section, may be gathered from the fact that during the recent severe storm, which was, however, in no sense a cyclone or hurricane, a two-story brick house, in course of construction in a Norfolk suburb, and in which the floors had been placed and the walls had been leveled by the wind. Such a structure when completed is a liability, expense and nuisance to the owners and occupants and a menace to the community.

WEST VIRGINIA DEBT QUESTION DECIDED.

The United States Supreme Court in Washington, on Monday decided the long-standing Virginia-West Virginia debt case holding West Virginia should pay $12,393,929 as its net share of the Virginia debt at the time of the partition of the states.

In addition to $13,393,929 net West Virginia must pay $9,176,000 interest. This amount was arrived at by charging 3 percent on the principal from January 1, 1891, to date, and four percent for the period from 1861 to 1891. Justice Hughes announced the court's decision. He stated that the decree would provide that interest would be charged at the rate of five percent from the date of the decree until the judgment was paid.

A dispatch from Charleston, W. Va., announced that the question of calling an extra session of the Legislature of that State is being considered, the object of which was not stated, though it pertains to the debt question. Governor H. D. Hatfield conferred with counsel as to what course to pursue.

MEXICO PACIFIED.

President Wilson announces a tentative policy of "pacification" of Mexico and already the military experts are busy figuring on how many troops will be necessary for the purpose. Mexico has done us grievous wrong. Some half dozen of our citizens have been killed while lingering around the shooting area, and considerable damage has been done to the property of some American trusts. This calls for the conquest of Mexico and annexation to the United States. In the meantime if we wait a year or so before interfering Mexico may automatically pacify herself, and the last solitary revolutionist, gazing on the desolation about him, may commit suicide and thus leave the country open to quiet possession by a committee of Congress.

BOYS AS FARMERS.

Way down in Georgia, where farming seems to be taking a fresh start, banks are doing the unprofessional thing of loaning money to boys to buy pigs and that, too, without security.

But the bankers know what they are about, they know if the boys in the country get the pig fever and get started right, they will make successful farmers and will naturally bank their profits with the financial institution that aided them to start.

In 14 counties in which the pig club work is now being carried on the banks have offered to lend money to junior members for the purchase of pure-bred pigs. In other counties wealthy residents see the advantage of the plan, are also assisting the children with loans.

Each boy who borrows is required to grow one acre of corn so as to have abundant feed, and some corn to sell and pay off his obligations. A bank in Brooks county, Georgia, loaned as high as $10 each to boys, over their own signature, without security and in only a few instances did the borrowers ask for an extension of time.

This movement by the banks instill thrift into the boy and often starts them with bank accounts. One bank in Macon has set aside $500 this year to loan to boys who wish to purchase pure-bred pigs. Recently a well-to-do farmer came into the bank and indorsed his son's note for $10. The cashier asked him why he did it when he had a substantial checking account of his own in the bank. "Oh, I just wanted to see how the boy handles this obligation. If he does not pay it, I will, but it will be worth $10 to me to know what kind of a boy I have," replied the farmer.

PEACE CONVENTION BY SOCIALISTS

ALL NEUTRAL NATIONS ARE INVITED

A correspondent of the Associated Press, writing from The Hague, says: The Great International Congress of Socialists will be held at The Hague early in July, and that all neutral countries will be represented; that delegations have already been selected from England and Germany, but it is not certain that Russia, France and Belgium will participate. The Russian Socialist leaders have accepted the invitation subject to certain special conditions. The Belgian leader, J. Vandervelde, has refused point blank to have anything to do with conference in which Germany participates. The French Socialists and Syndicalists also decline the invitation in the first place. The Italian Socialist party has gone to Paris in hopes of persuading them to reconsider. Austria and Hungary will be represented if it is possible for their delegates to get through Germany for this purpose. The leading German delegation will be Messrs. Scheidegger and Bernstein. The English delegates, although already chosen, have not been announced; they include representatives of both peace and anti-war movements in the British Labor Party.

The preliminary organization of the congress is under charge of the Swiss Socialists. The tentative platform, which is understood to have been adopted by the general committee in Germany, Austria, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, contains the following demands relating to the European war:

1. Evacuation of Belgian and French territory and indemnity to Belgium.
2. Suppression in future of all secret treaties.
3. Immediate limitation of armaments by all countries, with a view of ultimate abolition, altogether all armed forces of individual states.
4. Obligatory arbitration and conciliation in cases of disputes between states.
5. Absolute rights of all small nations to decide their future destiny; the decision to be made a matter of referendum in which all adult males and females shall participate.

According to reports reaching Socialists headquarters at The Hague, the German government's attitude toward the party has been growing more severe during the past two months. A number of Socialist newspapers have been suppressed and Socialist meetings have been prohibited or allowed only under strict police supervision. At Rueselsdorf, it is said to be the center of a pronounced peace propaganda, there have been frequent police raids and searching of Socialist houses.

A number of Socialist meetings have been held in Bavaria, Wurtemberg, Baden, Hesse and the Rhine provinces recently to discuss the rise in the price of many of the necessities of life. Altogether more than 40 meetings were held within a few days, and many of the speakers dealt very frankly with the broader issues of the war and its problems. In more than half of these meetings resolutions were adopted which amounted to a demand for the speedy conclusion of peace. Some of the speeches were strongly anti-war, and the whole movement was regarded by the military authorities as seditious. Newspapers were prohibited from quoting the terms of the resolutions passed, or from giving any extended reports of the speeches, and the Volksrecht, a socialist journal published at Solingen, was suppressed for referring too freely to the tone of the demonstration.

Women in Iron Mills.

J. G. Butler, Jr., steel manufacturer, manager and president of the Bessemer Pig Iron Association, who has studied conditions, believes a vital problem confronting the iron and steel industries is a threatened shortage of labor. He says this shortage will become more pronounced in the European war situation, and says he believes that it would "not be surprising to find thousands of women in mills, blast furnaces and mines doing the work of men before the war was over." This would be an extraordinary condition in the United States, but in Europe women work in iron and steel industries are common.

"We cannot expect much of an increase in immigration until long after the conflict has been settled.

Moving Pictures.

To achieve fame over night and become a "greatest ever" in a day, it is only necessary to move to New York City, identify itself with some spectacular money-making business, and then get a friend booster to boost them in the Sunday issue of a New York newspaper. Thus found out one manager of a New York Moving Picture Studio, who gets one hundred thousand dollars a year, and of whom his friends say that he is the most intensely grand and great figure the moving-picture king, in the spot-light world. The strange thing is that this party, during his years of management, has never yet produced a picture worthy to be called art, and that the mass of films turned out by his firm are a positive offense to good taste and an affront to intelligence.

The Rest Cure.

The late Dr. Wm. Mitchell, neurologist and author introduced the treatment. It is for neurasthenia—hereditary exhaustion or prostration and consists of absolute rest in bed, with the most rigid diet and nursing and isolation for several weeks. The idea is to enable the body to store up energy.

Stonewall Jackson.

Thomas J. Jackson was born in Harrisonburg, Virginia, in the year of 1824. He was the son of Jonathan and Julia Neale Jackson.

He did not receive a good education with family very poor. When eighteen years of age he went to West Point. He felt mortified that he knew so much less than the other boys, but he studied very hard, and when he graduated he was the head of his class.

He fought in the Mexican war and was promoted for being brave. He became second lieutenant when he left West Point, then captain, and last major. He played in everything he was told to do.

He next became a professor at the Virginia Military Institute. Here he became a Christian Hero.

In 1860 the Southern States left the Union, he approved of their course, and offered to fight for Virginia. He drilled the Virginians, for they then knew nothing about war.

At the battle of Manassas General Lee took up to Jackson and said: "General, the enemy are getting ahead of us."

"Well, give them bayonet," was Jackson's answer.

General Lee rode back to his men and said: "There is Jackson standing with a stone wall, rally behind the Virginians."

After that he was always known as "Stonewall" Jackson.

During the battle of Chancellorsville Jackson crossed the Rappahannock with some of his men. He rode off in the dusk of evening with his staff to find the exact position of the enemy. He placed a party of his men on the road which the enemy might follow, with orders that they should fire on any body of cavalry that appeared from that direction.

When coming back his soldiers thinking it was a Yankee shot and killed him. His last words were: "Let us cross the river and rest in the shade of the trees." He died in the year 1863.

England's Blue Book.

In the form of a Blue Book an inch thick, the British government has issued a collection of diplomatic documents relating to the outbreak of the war. It includes a reprint of the British diplomatic correspondence, the French Yellow Book, the Russian Orange Book, the Belgian Gray Book, the Serbian Blue Book, the German White Book, the Austrian Red Book.

These are supplemented by a series of subsequent documents, including the telegrams exchanged between King George, the German emperor and the emperor of Russia prior to the war.

A million copies of the report of Lord Bryce's commission on German atrocities are to be printed for free home-to-house distribution in all parts of Great Britain.

President Wilson Monday appointed John A. Lesner to succeed Maj. Clinton L. Wright as postmaster of Norfolk. He was the choice of Congressman Holland. Will go into office July 1st.

Quit Growing, For Once.

The recent rains have worn out a mint of money to the farmers of Virginia and all over the South. The trucking lands, the corn lands, the tobacco lands, the cotton lands, that all of the other lands, are now blossoming like a rose, and as for fruit, well there was never anything like it. It looks very much now as if this year old Southern country, especially the Virginia part of it, is going to have the best and most prosperous year it has known for a decade or more. In this connection there is one suggestion to be made and that is to the effect that "we farmers" quit growing. There is nothing to grow about and for a year, at least, it would be a good idea to give the lie to the long standing aphorism that the farmer is a chronic growler and a natural pessimist.

Plaster Statistics.

A simple but effective method for removing the grime which plaster statues, etc., gather in the atmosphere of cities is suggested by Lex Annies. A thick solution of starch, such as landrunners use, is made, and the object is covered with it, care being taken to have it penetrate every crevice. The starch paste is then allowed to dry, whereupon it crumbles away, carrying with it the dirt on the surface of the plaster.

The Note to Germany.

President Wilson's delightfully mild remonstrance to Germany on the sinking of the Lusitania with one hundred American lives, and some other trifles of that nature, appears to be meeting with an equally delightful response from a portion of the German press. They point out that the note paves the way for a lot of friendly discussion on Germany's position and why it is necessary for her to continue the submarine warfare, and also see in it a means whereby Great Britain may be forced to give over to Germany "the freedom of the seas" for which that chivalrous nation is contending in behalf of a long suffering world. If these little love-taps and flow of repartee between the United States and the beloved Fatherland keep up long enough it may be possible to lay the whole blame upon Great Britain and unite with Germany in attacking that usurper of the seas and source of all our woes and pains.

Eating Without a Stomach.

Myer Caplan, a merchant from Newberry, S. C., is at a Baltimore Hospital. He went to Baltimore to be treated for tumor of the stomach and the surgeons removed all but about two inches of this organ. This small flap attaching to the esophagus was joined to the duodenum, a part of the small intestines, and he is now able to take into his system food that is easily digested. He must take his food standing, however, a spoonful at a time, so that each meal takes about two hours.

The surgeons think he has many years of usefulness ahead of him.

Civil War Veteran Drops Dead.

Joseph Crisman, of Kernstown, Frederick County, Va., dropped dead Saturday. He served four years in the Civil War in the Twelfth Virginia Cavalry, at first commanded by General Ashby, and engaged in a sword fight with Sir Henry Wyndham, an Englishman at the head of Federal troops, who had threatened to annihilate Ashby's men, and although severely wounded, Crisman captured Wyndham and the latter's sword. Being a private, Crisman turned the sword over to an officer, and the weapon now hangs in the home, at Winchester, of Major Holmes Conrad. It is a surviving member of General Thomas L. Rosser's staff.

Mr. Crisman was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany.

Masonic Tablet Unveiled.

In Richmond, Monday, the Masonic fraternity unveiled a tablet at Masons' Hall, Eighteenth and Franklin streets, the oldest Masonic building in the United States. The structure was erected in 1785, Richmond-Blindfold Lodge, No. 19, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, and has been in continuous use by that organization for one hundred and thirty years.

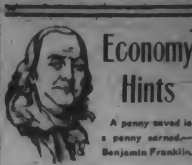

The tablet was donated by the city of Richmond at the solicitation of Dorothy Payne Madison Chapter, Daughters of the War of 1812, to commemorate the fact that the hall was used as a military hospital during America's second war with England.

Young Bride.

Fourteen years is a very tender age for a girl to take voyage on the sea of matrimony, but down in Pasquotank County, N. C., on Sunday morning, June 13, Miss Minnie Mabel Reeves, age 14, and yet in short dresses, took the plunge, for better or worse, marrying Noah M. Toler, of the same county, aged 20. All will be well if it turns out not to be another case of marrying in haste and repenting at leisure.

The Seal of Virginia.

The seal of Virginia was designed by Mason. It represents Virtue, dressed as an Amazon, with a sword in one hand and a spear in the other, trampling Tyranny, which is represented by a man prostrate, his crown fallen from his head. In his left hand is a broken chain, and in his right a scourge. Over the head of Virtue is the word Virginia, and underneath, "She sower tyrants," which means, "Thus always with tyrants."

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.—Benjamin Franklin.

An economical wardrobe is here given for the young girl who follows to a modified degree the fashion of her elders. That means for this year spring skirt, short or round waist, will some jumpers—always a useful style for remodeling old frocks—short coats, usually belted for that nature, appears to be meeting with an equally delightful response from a portion of the German press.

From three to three and a half yards round is a good width for the skirt of a schoolgirl, which she should reach to her shoe tops. The extra-wide flare, often seven and eight yards around, not only takes more material, but means much more sewing and is far from girlish. The skirts are not especially hard to make, as they are kept rather close fitting around the hips, and the flare is made by the cut. Often the skirt is gathered to the waist band, sometimes laid in plaits, and some pretty girlish models show the fullness held in by shirring at the hip.

Tucks around the skirts are a favorite trimming. A girlish trimming is a three inch hem at the bottom of the skirt with two three inch tucks six inches apart.

For the separate waist three may be of muslin or lawn made on tailor lines. Often the young girl makes all her sport blouses over the "middy" pattern. Both long and three-quarter sleeves are permissible, and the neck is slightly V. The collars may be atached or adjustable, as preferred.

Three blouses may be of muslin, dotted swiss or far best of all, over lace in a girlish design of dot or small flower of point d'esprit.

A fine serge is the nicest thing for a midday suit. One of the cotton gowns may be a middie in white kindergarten cloth, in which there may be several sets of collars and cuffs—one dull blue, another rose, a third white with red or blue handkerchiefs or mercerized braid. Another cotton gown may be pink chambray made without other trimming than tucks. This is good either on jumper blues to be worn with white culotte or with a single breast of blouse opening up the front, slightly V neck and worn with white all over embroidery or embroidered lines over collars and cuffs.

For the afternoon dresses lawn, dimity, dotted swiss, cotton voile, muslin, though it wrinkles badly—mull and lawn are all good. For the silk frock or tulle silk give girlish ruffles. Be sure they are spot proof; better yet, that they wash. The suit may be of serge, covert cloth or poplin. Serge tones are popular, but a warm navy blue is the best choice for a girl who must wear her suit two years. If there is a good suit from last year, provided the skirt is not too narrow, the new suit may be of white serge for next wear. This is well when it has been cleaned several times.

For the sport coat choose a light-weight tweed or one of the summer weight checkings or wool mixtures. These are more sensible than the linen or fancy mercerized silk and cotton mixtures that are stylish, but do not give enough protection after tennis and other heating sports.

For the dancing dresses, which may include a graduation gown, mull, embroidered batiste, netted, plain or the new craquelé patterns—or flowered organizes are dainty, girlish and inexpensive. They are far better for summer wear than a craquelé de chiffon or silk.

Eating with the Knife.

Use of the fork is comparatively modern. The original fork was two pronged, and its adoption was held to betoken an unusual degree of elegance and refinement. "The taste for cleanliness has procured the use of steel forks with two prongs," writes Lady Newdigate. (Shakespeare to the closing years of the eighteenth century.) "With regard to little bits of meat, which cannot so well be taken hold of with the two pronged forks, recourse is had to the knife, which is broad and round at the extremity." Peas at that time were eaten with a knife.

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a becafin, said to be the smallest bird known, except a humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

The Detrimental.

Ma—You can't tell what she can see in him? My dear girl, the man has five thousand a year; and in his right a scourge. Over the head of Virtue is the word Virginia, and underneath, "She sower tyrants," which means, "Thus always with tyrants."

FRESH WATER PEARLS.

The Lure That Keeps Our Mussel Dredgers Hard at Work.

"You don't hear much about fresh water pearls," said a Madden Lane jewelry dealer, "but we raise them in this country just the same, and you may be surprised to know that their annual product runs up into the millions on the very far side of course, as do imported salt water pearls; but far enough to reach with the pearl buttons made from the shells to a value of about $7,000,000.

"These pearls come from the bivalve known as the mussel, and there are several varieties. The great bulk of them come from the Mississippi river and its tributaries. The Mississippi valley pearl fishers are not at all of the same class as their confreres of the gulf, and as poet has yet found any poetry in the prosaic day labor they perform designing and wading and scraping for mussels.

"Pearls have been found worth as much as $2,000 each, possibly more than that, but when a fine large one is found it is quietly slipped with the salt water, higher priced importations, and just what price it will bring, then, nobody knows but the man who sells it as imported, and he is not telling.

"These American pearl fishers, however, keep at their work, dreaming always of making the great find, as the gold diggers do, who starve and freeze living on long till they die in despair. It is rare even to find one worth $50, but numerous small ones are found, though in the final summing up of receipts the fishers get more for the humble shells from the Eastern factories. Then they do for the pearls they seek in the shells. They make a fair thing out of the shells as they never would out of the pearl, which contains a moral, if you want to look for it."—New York Sun.

Mastication.

"The body is a manufactory," said a doctor recently. "It has to manufacture bone and blood and muscle and brain, and a wonderful process it is. Now, the first part of the process takes place in the mouth, and, as in most factories, the first is the most important. If a wrong start is made, everything that follows is put wrong. If the food isn't well masticated and mixed with the saliva the stomach, the liver and the intestines are thrown out of gear consequently most of the more advanced doctors are paying a great deal of attention to the condition of their patients' teeth. They know, to garish, Shakespeare a bit, that 'good digestion waits on mastication, and health on both.'

National Parks.

Our national parks are: Yellowstone National park, in Wyoming; Montana and Idaho; Yosemite National park, California; Glacier National park, Montana; Mount Ranier National park, Washington; Sequoia National park, California; General Grant National park, California; Grand Lake National park, Oregon; Wind Cave National park, South Dakota; Sully's Hill park, North Dakota; Platt National park, Oklahoma; Mesa Verde National park, Colorado; Casa Grande ruins, Arizona; Hot Springs reservation, Arkansas. In addition a number of objects of antiquity, natural curiosities and prehistoric ruins have been set aside as "national monuments."

Man's Future.

A man is a bundle of relations, a knot of roots, whose flower and fruitage is the world. All his faculties refer to nature out of him. All his faculties predict the world he is to inhabit, as the fins of the fish foreshadow that water exists on the wings of an eagle in the egg presuppose a medium of light air to sustain and yet destroy him. He cannot live without a world.—Emerson.

Quite Useful.

"There is one power in nature, which the greatest engineer could never utilize."

"What is that?"

"The horse power of a cold."—Baltimore American.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JUNE 18, 1915.

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

MANY SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Virginia Beach Favorable with all Religious Denominations for their Pupils Enrollings

That Virginia Beach possesses all the advantages required to make it an ideal resort for Sunday School picnics is being evidenced every day by the arrival of one and sometimes two schools from the same town or city—Norfolk, Portsmouth and Berkeley sending their schools to breathe the pure free air of the ocean, to plunge in the invigorating and exhilarating surf, to romp, swing, ride the hobby horses and to enjoy the sweet strains of music and the great variety of attractions that a sojourn at the sea-side affords. And then as the ride to the Beach over the Norfolk Southern electric or steam lines—it is simply one of the most refreshing and enjoyable little trips that can be taken. There is no dust, no loss of time, no jerking of cars, and the trip from start to finish is a round of real enjoyment to big and little people.

On Wednesday of this week, that is on June 16, the joint picnics coming from Berkeley of St. Paul's and St. Thomas' Episcopal churches, the schools of the First Christian church and that of Armstrong memorial, enjoyed the day at the Beach. These schools arrived at the Beach over the steam line and six coaches were filled with happy faces of big and little people. With the exception of a heavy down-pour of rain in the afternoon there was nothing to mar in the least a most happy sea-side outing.

On Thursday, June 17, Prentiss Place Baptist and Elm Ave. Methodist Churches of Portsmouth had their picnic jointly and came down to enjoy a day at the ocean.

Friday, June 18, the Spurgeon Memorial Baptist Church, of Norfolk had its Sunday School down on the sands of the sea enjoying the day.

And so the week ending June 19th wound up with the visit of several Sunday Schools.

The Norfolk Southern is booking dates for the future. The following dates and schools have been listed:

Monday, June 21, Fourth St. Baptist of Portsmouth.

Tuesday, June 22, St. Luke's Episcopal of Norfolk and First Presbyterian of Portsmouth.

Wednesday, June 23, Trinity of Portsmouth and Berkeley Avenue of Berkeley.

Thursday, June 24, South St. Baptist of Portsmouth and Park Place Methodist of Norfolk.

Friday, June 25, McKendree Church Sunday School of Norfolk.

Tuesday, June 29, Berkeley Memorial.

Wednesday, June 30, Brambleton Avenue Methodist and Third Christian.

The foregoing list is not complete. The Norfolk Southern will have other denominations for publication, and the list will be revised and published next week.

"The Pottsville Postoffice."

This play will be given at the temporary Hall for the benefit of the Lynnhaven Library Association, at Lynnhaven Station, on Friday night, June 25, 1915. The public is cordially invited. The admission will be 25 cts. Refreshments extra.

THE BEACH BIG NEW HOTEL

Encouraging Report to Chamber of Commerce, Its Building Seems To Be Assured

The meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in Mason's Hall, Monday night, June 14, was well attended and much enthusiasm elicited at the favorable report of the committee. The question of securing funds sufficient to insure the erection of the big hotel at Virginia Beach was paramount, and the committee's report on that subject most encouraging. About twenty-five per cent of prospective subscribers, only, had been approached, yet some $25,000 had already been secured, or one-half of the sum needed. This, it is believed practically insures the building on the old "Princess Anne" Hotel site, one of the best hotels on the Atlantic coast.

Road improvement was not overlooked, President Grice, who presided, reported conducting an educational campaign among the farmers of Princess Anne county in the interest of the good road movement.

The Sanitary Committee is formulating plans for the exterminating mosquitoes at Virginia Beach. It is reported that the mosquitoes are fewer this year than in previous years, but the committee is doing everything possible to get rid of the few that are at the Beach.

Norfolk Baptist Boys.

It has been arranged to have boys belonging to the First Baptist Church of Norfolk spend a whole week on the sea-side at Virginia Beach.

A furnished cottage has been engaged, and this, supplemented with tents will be ample. The pastor, Rev. John Stratton will be present all the time and hold religious services daily. It is estimated $4 will cover the expense of each boy. One of the ladies of the church will go with her husband and look after the cooking end.

The expedition will leave on Norfolk Southern cars, Monday morning, June 21, and return Saturday afternoon June 26.

Two Sunday Schools Meet.

Spurgeon Memorial Baptist Sunday School came down from Norfolk, early Friday morning and had a splendid day of enjoyment, drinking in the bracing ocean ozone, rollicking in the waves, romping, swinging, jumping, singing, yelling—well, it was just a season of fine fun that will not soon be forgotten. Later on in the day while the "Spurgeon" contingent was rollicking in sea side sport, the Baptist School from Virginia, Va., arrived, all unannounced, and it was a joyous commingling of congenial spirits two schools with but a single thought—a day of rational pleasure. They had it.

The Little Tots.

That most praiseworthy institution at Virginia Beach, the Infant Sanitarium, is now at work in its efforts for tiny humanity. At this time, according to information given this paper, there are about fifteen babies that are being tenderly looked after and are "doing finely," as the lady in charge expressed it. They come from all parts—Norfolk, Portsmouth, Berkeley, and even Richmond. Before the season gets well under way several hundred little ones will likely receive attention.

CROSSED OVER THE RIVER

Louis Wasserman, Well Known Norfolk Business Man, Dies—Well Known in Princess Anne County

Born on the 8th of January, 1856, in Tauberbischofsheim, Baden, Germany, Louis Wasserman passed from the living and joined the "great majority" in death on the 15th day of June, 1915, closing his earthly career in Norfolk, where he had resided over forty-four years. He came to the city of his adoption in 1872, and engaged in the butchering business, which he successfully prosecuted and accumulated considerable property. He was a member of Ohel Shalom congregation; belonged to the Pythian Knights to the Red Men and to the Eagles, in all of which societies he was highly esteemed. And not only was deceased popular to Norfolk, but was known and well-thought of by many citizens of Princess Anne county.

Besides his wife he is survived by three daughters and four sons. Two sisters and five brothers survive him—all of whom reside in Germany except two of the brothers, Moritz Wasserman of Phoebus and Samuel Wasserman, who is in business on 17th street, Virginia Beach, the latter being a twin brother of the deceased, and so striking was the resemblance between these twins that identity was difficult.

The interment was made in the Hebrew cemetery Thursday, June 17th. Peace to his ashes.

Live at the Casino.

Getting things in shape to accommodate all who arrive at the Casino is now the watch-word of those in charge, and look where you will you will observe the eye of watchfulness on the alert. General Manager G. M. Reynolds, whose cosy home is near Lake Station, and who is a popular fellow, is fully alive to what is required and is leaving no "stone unturned" in having all the departments prepared to respond to each and every call. President A. Padas, who looks over the bathing end, is now fully prepared to accommodate all who delight in a plunge into the "briny deep," and thousands go away saying no finer, better equipped or safer bathing beach can be found on the Atlantic coast. And there is Treasurer John Bambalis, in charge of the magnificent buffet, whose skill, experience and popularity make him the right man in the right place; and near by is the cafe, ably watched over by Mr. Jake Karamelman, and who is receiving gratifying patronage. And so it runs all along the line. The Saturday evening dances, with fine music, under the management of Mr. Lee Carrier, are being largely attended and highly enjoyed by great crowds.

At the Virginia Beach Methodist church, on eighteenth street, there will be services at 8 o'clock in the evening, Rev. Daniel G. C. Butts officiating. Sunday school in morning at 10 o'clock. Visitors are invited.

BIBLE CONFERENCE

Will be Held in Princess Anne Inn and Rudolph Cottage—Lasts 15 Days

The International Bible Conference, which will include a boy's camp, a young woman's conference, a baracca camp, a Gideon's conference, a temperance conference and a peace conference will be held at Virginia Beach from June 20 to July 5. Rev. G. W. Griffin is in charge of the conference.

The Princess Anne Inn and the Rudolph cottage have been rented by the conference for accommodations and there is now in process of erection a large tent by the side of the Rudolph cottage in which sessions will be held.

A large attendance of boys will be one of the prominent features, and to accommodate them as they arrive arrangements to take care of 200 boys at a time have been made. The boys will be under suitable leadership.

The program is being prepared and the public made acquainted with details.

The first meeting will be held in the Baptist Tabernacle on Seventeenth street Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, June 30. The meeting is free for all.

Scalded by Steam.

Last Monday George N. Everton was quite badly scalded while cleaning out a Steam Injector at the Portable Saw Mill of Mr. J. L. Burgess, near Snelton station, Princess Anne County. Boiling water sprayed over his right side, his arms, shoulder and back of his head. Immediately following the accident a physician was sought but as none could be found in the neighborhood the injured man was looked after and carried to St. Vincent's Hospital, Norfolk, in the Automobile of Mr. Lun Frizzell, who resides near the scene of the accident. At last accounts Mr. Everton was doing well but, of course, suffering quite much.

It proved later, after the patient's injuries had been examined that his condition was not at all serious, and accordingly he was discharged the next day from the Hospital and sent to his home in an automobile.

Maj. R. E. Banks.

Major R. E. Banks, who died at Lee Camp Soldier's Home, Richmond, Wednesday morning, was widely known in this section. He was a former mayor of Norfolk, collector of customs, and in all relations, public and private, was held in the highest esteem. He belonged to the Sacred Heart Catholic church, Norfolk, where the funeral services were conducted. He was 75 years of age.

"Satanet."

Now that the hot weather is on us to earnest, it will be of interest to learn that under the above name one of our most delightfully cool and refreshing soft drinks has been put on the market and gaining popularity. It is highly recommended. Manufactured by the Lemon-Kola manufacturing company of Norfolk. See "ad" in another column.

If the Cottages having news items, the coming or going of guests and friends, or anything of interest to Virginia Beach, will leave same at the store of B. F. Holland. It will have space and careful attention.

WONDERFUL GROWTH OF CITY POINT, VA.

From Small Village Has Sprung Into a City of 17,000 Inhabitants

POWDER PLANT THE MOVING FACTOR

City Point, which was hardly heard of a few months ago, is now on the lips of every one in all parts of the United States. Then it had a population of a few hundred—now it has grown to a city of 15,000 or 20,000.

The new settlement embraces 2,000 acres of land owned by the Dupont powder people, who are constructing thereon a ten million dollar plant. The lands are surrounded on one side by City Point, and the Appomattox and James river on the other. Stores, hotels, bakeries and other buildings of all kinds are rapidly going up and the city will be able to take care of its people. Petersburg, which has been without much animation since the Civil War has been galvanized into new life.

A hardware dealer last month received a $40,000 order for hardware for the munitions plant, and for double the amount this month. The hotels are crowded. A short time ago Petersburg boasted less than half a dozen automobiles for hire—now there are 125, from sight seeing cars to runabouts, all getting a share of the new rush of business. They charge 25 cents a trip to the new city ten miles out and make several trips a day. Rooms in Petersburg are at a premium and near the new settlement farmers are renting tent space on their land.

The county officials are in despair at the havoc wrought on the county road from Petersburg to the new community by the automobile traffic. The road is repaired and ruined, daily. A traction line to carry both passenger and freight traffic is now planned from Petersburg to City Point in the expectation that it will relieve county road traffic.

It is said that within two weeks after the sinking of the Lusitania 7,000 additional men were rushed to the powder plant to hurry on its completion. Day and night shifts are worked.

Extraordinary precautions against espionage or accidents are used at the works. The plant is entirely surrounded by a barbed wire fence eight miles long and twelve feet high, and three hundred armed guards, mounted and unmounted patrol the grounds. Newspaper men are barred, and none but employees are admitted through the gates.

Whether the United States government is back of the rush of activity at the plant is unknown, but the coming of the army of workmen has created a remarkable situation. In the wake of the workers 5,000 others have followed, with more coming every day. Two-thirds of this population has arrived within the last month. The exciting scenes of the over-night settlements on Western Indiana lands are being duplicated on a larger scale.

The building construction within the last two months has been something marvellous. Numbers of men are living in tents and others have constructed temporary houses with tarpaper roofs in order to get shelter over their heads.

Now there are under construction three banks, eight or ten hotels and rooming houses, and the city shows an activity that was never witnessed in Virginia. The inhabitants of the old conservative city of Petersburg look upon it as a perfect wonder, and the country people go around with their mouths open, wondering what will be built next. The story goes that a blind man passed through the town the other day and said to himself, "It beats anything I ever saw."

Galilee Guild.

Visitors at the Beach who desire to be called upon by the Ladies of Galilee Church or by the Rector, are invited to indicate their wish by placing a card on the collection plate, or by speaking to any of the Ladies of the Guild.

Miss Minnie MacAvery of London Bridge, Princess Anne county, is on a visit to Norfolk friends.

Capt. Shipp, one of the most popular passenger conductors of the Norfolk Southern, is having his home beautified by giving his house a coat of paint, building a new fence and having his leveled area and planted in roses and shrubbery.

Grand Jury Indictments.

At the Princess Anne Court House, Monday, June 14, the Grand Jury returned the following indictments:

G. B. Nixon and D. E. Myers, charged with maiming.

Arcile Wright, charged with maiming.

Frank Smith, charged with attempted murder.

Childwell Sandelin, charged with murder.

Frank Wright, charged with criminal assault.

J. Karangelis, charged with embezzlement.

Josiah Morris, charged with maiming.

Henry Plummer, charged with horse stealing.

An Artist's Impromptu Solo.

Pierre Grant, the singer and ex-squid of Napoleonic France, was not merely a glaze of fashion but a wondrous self instructed singer, but an artist devoted to his art. "But is the following," asks Bernard Moll in his biography, "an example of sincerity in art or of love of attracting attention?"

Coupage had supplied him with a "sonnet" to be set to music. When the two met Grant replied, "I have not hit upon an idea as yet."

One day Coupage was walking down the Rue Neuve des Petits Champs. Hearing a sound of some one running up behind him, he turned. It was Grant, who, seized him by the arm, dragged him up the stairs of a neighboring house and, bailing on the first landing, exclaimed, "I've got it!"

At once he began to sing the romance through at the top of his voice. The inhabitants of the house began to open their doors, heads were projected over the banisters, finally they began to approach. But Grant, having finished, took down the stairs like a monkey, dragging the bewildered poet with him.

—Youth's Companion.

Lord Chesterfield, when he had only a short while to live, was, on the advice of his physician, taken out for an easy drive. As the equipage was proceeding slowly along it was met by a lady who remarked pleasantly, "Ah, my lord, I am glad to see you able to drive out."

"I am not driving out, madam," answered Chesterfield, "I am simply rehearsing my funeral."

Burned His Blinders.

"John," said Mrs. Billus after the caller had gone away, "I wish you wouldn't burn your blinders so." "What do you mean, Maria?" asked Mr. Billus. "I didn't mind your telling her that you were ten years older than I, but you told her it up a minute later by telling it slip out that you were fifty-two."—Chicago Tribune.

Virginia Beach, Virginia, Friday, June 14, 1919

ALL TOGETHER FOR THE NEW BEACH HOTEL.

The report of the committee appointed by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, to raise funds for the erection of a suitable hotel, which was handed in to the meeting of that body Monday night, was of most favorable character. That the hotel will be built now seems sure.

The plan of the new "Princess Anne Hotel" give promise of a palatial structure equal to the finest and best of the famed resort hotels of the nation. This is as it should be, and those who have set this great enterprise in motion should be satisfied with nothing less. It was announced that the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce would engage in a whirlwind campaign for subscriptions to the new hotel stock. It is to be hoped that they will not let up until the last dollar has been subscribed, and their efforts should have the active support of every progressive citizen of the county. The proposition is to have the hotel ready for guests by July 1st, 1916. While we know little about building operations we are still a little of the opinion that this is all to short a time for the erection of a structure of such magnitude and solidity as is proposed. While time is, of course, a factor, and the sooner the hotel is erected the better, yet no undue haste should be permitted to operate against the architectural substantiality of the structure. Virginia Beach has waited for eight years to get the project in operation and it could afford to wait a couple of years for the reality if the added time of construction assures a building that will leave nothing to be desired. The new "Princess Anne Hotel" should be storm-proof and time-proof as well as fire-proof. It should be an asset to the owners and the community for a century to come, and not, because of poor or hurried construction, a liability. In this respect it will well to make haste slowly.

MAKE LIFE-SAVING STATIONS CONTINUOUS.

The recent unprecedented storm that swept these coasts during the early days of this month is sufficient argument for the abolition of the yearly closing down of the life-saving stations on our seaboard. The coast guard should be on service every minute of the year. The small saving effected by the two month's vacation is perhaps more than offset by the deterioration of property through neglect during that period. Certain it is that the one hundred thousand dollars saving effected by the closing down should not for an instant be balanced against the possible loss of human lives.

Some idea of the flimsiness of building construction, not at all uncommon in this section, may be gathered from the fact that during the recent severe storm, which was, however, in no sense a cyclone or hurricane, a two-story brick house, in course of construction in a Norfolk suburb, and in which the floors had been placed and the walls had been completed up to the roof, was leveled by the wind. Such a structure when completed is a liability, expense and nuisance to the owners and occupants and a menace to the community.

WEST VIRGINIA DEBT QUESTION DECIDED.

The United States Supreme Court in Washington, on Monday decided the long-standing Virginia-West Virginia debt case holding West Virginia should pay $12,393,929 as its net share of the Virginia debt at the time of the partition of the states.

In addition to $13,393,929 net, West Virginia must pay $9,178,000 interest. This amount was arrived at by charging 3 per cent on the principal from January 1, 1861, to date, and four per cent for the period from 1861 to 1891. Justice Hughes announced the court's decision. He stated that the decree would provide that interest would be charged at the rate of five per cent from the date of the decree until the judgment was paid.

A dispatch from Charleston, W. Va., announced that the question of calling an extra session of the Legislature of that State is being considered, the object of which was not stated, though it pertains to the debt question. Governor H. D. Hatfield conferred with counsel as to what course to pursue.

MEXICO PACIFIED.

President Wilson announced a tentative policy of "pacification" of Mexico and already the military experts are busy figuring on how many troops will be necessary for the purpose. Mexico has done us grievous wrong. Some half dozen of our citizens have been killed while lingering around the shooting area, and considerable damage has been done to the property of some American trusts. This calls for the conquest of Mexico and annexation to the United States. In the meantime if we wait a year or so before interfering Mexico may automatically pacify herself, and the last solitary revolutionist, gazing on the desolation about him, may commit suicide and thus leave the country open to quiet possession by a committee of Congress.

BOYS AS FARMERS.

Way down in Georgia, where farming seems to be taking a fresh start, banks are doing the unprofessional thing of loaning money to boys to buy pigs and that, too, without security.

But the bankers know what they are about, they know if the boys in the country get the pig fever and get started right, they will make successful farmers and will naturally bank their profits with the financial institution that aided them to start. In 14 counties in which the pig club work is now being carried on the banks have offered to lend money to junior members for the purchase of pure-bred pigs. In other counties wealthy residents, seeing the advantage of the plan, are also assisting the children with loans.

Each boy who borrows is required to grow one acre of corn so as to have abundant feed, and some to sell and pay off his obligations. A bank in Brooks county, Georgia, loaned as high as $10 each to boys, over their own signature, without security and in only a few instances did the borrowers ask for an extension of time.

This movement by the banks instill thrift into the boy and often starts them with bank accounts. One bank in Macon has set aside $500 this year to loan to boys who wish to purchase pure-bred pigs. Recently a well-to-do farmer came into the bank and indorsed his son's note for $10. The cashier asked him why he did it when he had a substantial checking account of his own in the bank. "Oh, I just wanted to see how the boy handles this obligation. If he does not pay it, I will, but it will be worth $10 to me to know what kind of a boy I have," replied the farmer.

PEACE CONVENTION BY SOCIALISTS

ALL NEUTRAL NATIONS ARE INVITED

A correspondent of the Associated Press, writing from The Hague says: The Great International Congress of Socialists will be held at The Hague early in July, and that all neutral countries will be represented; that delegations have already been selected from England and Germany but it is not certain that Russia, France and Belgium will participate. The Russian Socialist leaders have accepted the invitation subject to certain special conditions. The Belgian leader, M. Vandervelde, has refused point blank to have anything to do with a conference in which Germany and Socialists also decline the invitation in the first place. But M. (Roderic) Moret, leader of the Italian Socialists, early has gone to Paris in hopes of persuading them to reconsider. Austria and Hungary will be represented if it is possible for their delegates to get through Germany for this purpose. The leading German delegates will be Messrs. Scheidemann and Bernstein. The English delegates, although already chosen, have not been announced; they include representatives of both pro-war and anti-war movements in the British Labor Party. The preliminary organization of the congress is under charge of the Swiss Socialists. The tentative platform, which is understood to have received the approval of committees in Germany, Austria, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, contains the following demands relating to the European war:

1. Evacuation of Belgian and French territory and withdrawal to Belgium.
2. Suppression in future of all secret treaties.
3. Immediate limitation of armaments by all countries, with a view of ultimately abolishing altogether all armed forces of land and sea.
4. Obligatory arbitration and conciliation in cases of disputes between states.
5. Absolute right of all small nations to decide their future destiny by referendum in which all adult males and females shall participate.

According to reports reaching Socialist headquarters at The Hague, the German government's attitude toward the party has been growing more severe during the past two months. A number of Socialist newspapers have been suppressed and many a Socialist meeting have been prohibited or allowed only under strict police supervision. At Dusseldorf, which is said to be the center of a pronounced peace propaganda, there have been frequent police raids and searching of Socialist houses.

A number of Socialist meetings have been held in Bavaria, Wurtemberg, Baden, Hesse and the Rhine provinces recently to discuss the rise in the price of many of the necessities of life. Altogether more than 60 meetings were held within a few days, and many of the speakers dealt very frankly with the broader issues of the war and its problems. In more than 10 of these meetings resolutions were adopted which amounted to a demand for the speedy conclusion of peace. Some of the speeches were strongly anti-war, and the military movement was regarded by the military authorities as seditious. Newspapers were prohibited from quoting the terms of the resolutions passed, or from giving any extended reports of the speeches, and the Volksfreund, a socialist journal published at Solingen, was suppressed for referring too freely to the tone of the demonstration.

Women in Iron Mills.

J. G. Butler, Jr., steel manufacturer, manager and president of the Bessemer Pig Iron Association, who has studied conditions, believes a vital problem confronting the iron and steel industries is a threatened shortage of labor. He says this shortage will become more pronounced as the European war advances, and says he believes that it would "be very surprising to find thousands of women in iron mills, blast furnaces and mines doing the work of men before the European war closes. This would be an extraordinary condition in the United States, but in Europe women working in iron and steel industries are common."

"We cannot expect much of an increase in immigration until long after the conflict has been settled."

Moving Pictures.

To achieve fame over night and become a "great star" in a day, it is only necessary to move to New York City, identify himself with some spectacular money-making business, and then get a friend booster to boost thee in the Sunday issue of a New York newspaper. Thus found out one manager of a New York Moving Picture Studio, who gets one hundred thousand dollars a year, and of whom his friends say that he is the most intensely grand and great figure the moving-picture king, in the spot-light world. The strange thing is that this party, during his years of management has never yet produced a picture worthy to be called art, and that the mass of films turned out by his firm are a positive offense to good taste and an affront to intelligence.

Stonewall Jackson.

Thomas J. Jackson was born in Hardin county, Virginia, in the year 1792. He was the son of Jonathan and Julia Weir Jackson. He was a poor, but a good educated, and his family were very poor. When eighteen years of age he went to West Point. He felt mortified that he knew so much less than the other boys, but he studied very hard, and when he graduated he was the head of his class.

He fought in the Mexican war and was promoted for being so brave. He became second lieutenant when he left West Point, then captain, and last major. He died in everything he was told to do.

He next became a professor at the Virginia Military Institute. Here he became a Christian Hero.

In 1861 the Southern States left the Union, he approved of their course, and offered to fight for Virginia. He defied the Virginians, for they then knew no other war.

At the battle of Manassas General Lee rode up to Jackson and said: "General, the enemy are getting ahead of us."

"Well, give them bayonet," was Jackson's answer.

After that he was always known as "Stonewall" Jackson.

During the battle of Chancellorsville, Jackson crossed the Rappahannock with some of his men. He rode off in the dusk of evening with his staff to find the exact position of the enemy. He placed a part of his men on the road which the enemy might advance, with orders that they should not on any day of safety, that appeared from that direction. When some of his soldiers thinking he was Yankee shot and killed him. His last words were: "Let us cross the river and rest in the shade of the trees." He died in the year 1863.

England's Blue Book.

In the form of a Blue Book an inch thick, the British government has issued a collection of diplomatic documents relating to the outbreak of the war. It includes a reprint of the British diplomatic correspondence, the French Yellow Book, the Russian Orange Book, the Belgian Gray Book, the Serbian Blue Book, the German White Book, the Austrian Red Book. These are supplemented by a series of subsequent documents, including the telegrams exchanged between King George, the German emperor and the emperor of Russia prior to the war. A million copies of the report of Lord Bryce's commission on German atrocities are to be printed for free house to house distribution in all parts of Great Britain.

Raise More Fruit, Mr. Farmer.

If an inventory was taken to day of the farms of this entire county, it would be discovered that not one farmer in fifty has an adequate supply of fruit. He planted the leading large fruits, such as apple, peach, pear, cherry, plum and quince growing upon his homestead for the family supply.

President Wilson Monday appointed John A. Lesner to succeed Maj. Clinton L. Wright as postmaster of Norfolk. He was the choice of Congressman Holland. Will go into office July 1st.

Quit Growing, For Once.

The recent rains have been worth a million dollars to the farmers of Virginia and all over the South. The trucking lands, the corn lands, the tobacco lands, the cotton lands, and all the other lands are now blossoming like a rose, and as for fruit, well there was never anything like it. It looks very much now as if this good old Southern country, especially the Virginia part of it, is going to have the best and most prosperous year it has known for a decade or more. In this connection there is one suggestion to be made and that is to the effect that "two farmers" quit growing. There is nothing to grow about and for one year, at least, it would be a good idea to give the land to the long standing aphorism that the farmer is a chronic grower and a natural pessimist.

Plaster Statistics.

A simple but effective method for removing the grime which plaster takes, etc., gather in the atmosphere of cities is suggested by Los Angeles. A thick solution of starch, such as landrunes use, is made, and the object is covered with it, care being taken to have it penetrate every crevice. The starch paste is then allowed to dry, whereupon it crumbles away, carrying with it the dirt on the surface of the plaster.

Their hearing and sight are just as keen as ours, and very often better, as they frequently see and hear things long before we can see and hear them. Another thing, cheap reins and bitless bridles are cruel things and should be forbidden by law.

A company has been organized, to be known as the Manufacturing Jewelers of America, and to have a capital of $1,000,000. M. J. Greenwood, a Norfolk Jeweler, is identified with the company. This company proposes to manufacture, under one roof, every article and appliance sold by jewelers, of which the member firms will be the purchasers.

Premier Asquith on moving a vote of credit to the British Parliament. Monday that the struggle with Germany will cost $75,000,000 a day during the next three months.

The Note to Germany.

President Wilson's delightfully full remonstrance to Germany on the sinking of the Lusitania with one hundred American lives, and some other trifles of that nature, appears to be meeting with an equally delightful response from a portion of the German press. They point out that the note paves the way for a lot of friendly discussion on Germany's position and why it is necessary for her to continue the submarine warfare, and also see in it a means whereby Great Britain may be forced to give over to Germany "the freedom of the seas" for which that chivalrous nation is contending in behalf of a long suffering world. If these little love-taps and flow of repartee between the United States and the beloved Fatherland keep up long enough it may be possible to lay the whole blame upon Great Britain and unite with Germany in attacking that usurper of the seas and source of all our woes and pains.

Eating Without a Stomach.

Myer Caplan, a merchant from Newberry, S. C., is at a Baltimore Hospital. He went to Baltimore to be treated for tumor of the stomach and the surgeons removed all but about two inches of this organ. This small flap attaching to the esophagus was joined to the duodenum, a part of the small intestine, and he is now able to take into his system food that is easily digested. He must take his food standing, however, a spoonful at a time, so that each meal takes about two hours.

The surgeons think he has many years of usefulness ahead of him.

Civil War Veteran Drops Dead.

Joseph Crisman, of Kernstown, Frederick County, Va., dropped dead, Saturday. He served four years in the Civil War in the Twelfth Virginia Cavalry, at first commanded by General Ashby, and engaged in a sword duel with Sir Percy Wyndham, an Englishman at the head of Federal troops who had threatened to annihilate Ashby's men, and although severely wounded, Crisman captured Wyndham and the latter's sword being a private, Crisman turned the sword over to an officer, and the weapon now hangs in the hall at the Winchester, of Major Holmes Court, a surviving member of General Thion's 1st Cavalry.

Mr. Crisman was born in Hesse Darmstadt, Germany.

Masonic Tablet Unveiled.

In Richmond, Monday, the Masonic fraternity unveiled a tablet at Mason's Hall, Eighteenth and Franklin streets, the oldest Masonic building in the United States. The structure was erected in 1785, Richmond-landolph Lodge, No. 19, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, and has been in continuous use by that organization for one hundred and thirty years. The tablet was donated by the city of Richmond at the solicitation of Josephine Payne Madison Chapter, Daughters of the War of 1812, to commemorate the fact that the hall was used as a military hospital during America's second war with England.

Young Bride.

Fourteen years is a very tender age for a girl to take voyage on the sea of matrimony, but down in Pasquotank County, N. C., on Sunday morning, June 13, Miss Minnie Mabel Reaves, age 14, and yet in short dresses, took the plunge for better or worse, marrying Noah M. Toler, of the same county, aged 20. All will be well if it turns out not to be another case of marrying in haste and repenting at leisure.

The Seal of Virginia.

The seal of Virginia was designed by Mason. It represents Virtue, dressed as an Amazon, with a sword in one hand and a spear in the other, treading Tyranny, which is represented by a man prostrate, his crown fallen from his head. In his left hand is a broken chain, and in his right a scourge. Over the head of Virtue is the word Virginia, and underneath, "Eo semper tyrannus," which means, "Thus always with tyrants."

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny secured—Benjamin Franklin.

A woman's wardrobe is here given to the young girl who follows in a modified degree the fashion of her elders. That means for this year flaring skirts, short or round waists, with some pommers—always a useful style for remodeling old frocks—short coats, usually buttoned for the young girl, though knee and below sometimes coming to the fore.

From three to three and a half yards round is a good width for the skirt of a schoolgirl, which all reach to her shoe tops. The excessive flare, often seven and eight yards around, and only taking more material, but means much more sewing and is far from girlish. The skirts are not especially hard to make, as they are kept rather close fitting around the hips, and the flare is made by the cut. Often the skirt is gathered to the waist band, sometimes in plaits, and some pretty girlish models show the fullness held in by shirings at the hip.

To the round the skirts are a favor to the trimmer, and giving a line to three inch belt at the bottom of the skirt with two three inch tucks at the top.

For the separate waists there may be of middie or lawn made on tailored lines. Often the young girl makes all her separate blouses over the "middie" pattern. Both long and three-quarter sleeves are permissible, and the neck is slightly V. The collars may be atached or adjustable, as preferred.

Three blouses may be of mull, because, dotted swiss or, far best of all, give lace in a girlish design of dot or small flower of solid tucks.

A fine serge is the nicest thing for a middle suit. One of the cotton gowns may be a middie in white kindergarten suit cloth, to which there may be several sets of collars and cuffs—one dull blue, another rose, a third white with red or blue bandings or mercerized braid. Another cotton gown may be pink chambray made without other trimming than tucks. This is good subject for future use to be worn with white gaiters or with a single broad white blouse opening up the front, slightly V neck and worn with white all over embroidery or embroidered lines cuffs and collar.

For the afternoon dress, lawn, dimity, dotted swiss, cotton voile, flannel, though it is really only—well—made—these are all good. For the silk frocked or—well—silk—girl's results. Be sure they are not poor; better yet, that they wash. The suit may be of serge, cover cloth or poplin. Soft tones are popular, but a warm navy blue is the best choice for a girl who must wear her suit two years. If there is a good suit from last year, provided the skirt is not too narrow—the new suit may be of white, or better yet, best year. This does well when it has been cleaned several times.

For the sport coat choose a light weight tweed or one of the summer weight chinchillas or wool mixtures. These are more sensible than the linen or fancy mercerized silk and cotton mixtures that are stylish, but do not give enough protection after tennis and other heating sports.

For the dancing dresses, which may be a graduation gown, simple, and brooked tulle; nets—dotted, plain or the new crumple pattern—or now and ordinals are dainty, girlish and inexpensive. They are far better for summer wear than crepe de chine, chiffon or silk.

Eating With the Knife.

Use of the fork is comparatively modern. The original fork was two pronged, and its adoption was held to broken an unusual degree of elegance and refinement. "The taste for cleanliness has preserved the use of steel forks with two prongs," writes Lady Newdigate. (She spoke to the closing years of the eighteenth century.) "With regard to little bits of meat, which cannot so well be taken hold of with the two pronged forks, recourse is had to the knife, which is broad and round at the extremity." Pass at that time were eaten with a knife.

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian banquets is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, and the pigeon is stuffed with a quail, and a bearded, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

The Detrimental.

"Ma—You can't tell what she can see in him? My dear girl, the man has five thousand a year." "Mamie—What a pity! Ma—a pity? Surely money is no drawback to a man?" "Mamie—No, but the man's such a drawback to the money!—Spiny Bulletin.

FRESH WATER PEARLS.

The Love That Keeps Our Muses Dressed in Black.

"You don't hear much about fresh water pearls," said a Maiden lady jewelry dealer, "but we raise them in this country just the same, and you may be surprised to know that their annual product runs up into the millions—but very far, of course, as do imported salt water pearls, but far enough to reach with the pearl buttons made from the shells to a value of about $7,000,000.

"These people come from the United States, and the pearls they have are several varieties. The great bulk of them come from the Mississippi river and its tributaries. The Mississippi valley pearl fishers are not at all of the same class as their confreres of the orient, and no poet has yet found any poetry in the prosaic day labor they perform dredging and waiting and waiting for mussels.

"Pearls have been found worth as much as $2,000 each, possibly more than that, but when a fine large one is found it is quietly slipped in with the salt water, higher priced importations, and just what price it will bring, then nobody knows, but the trade who sell it is as imported, and he is not telling.

"These American pearl fishers, however, keep at their work, dreaming always of making the great find, as the gold diggers do who starve and freeze, lying on hope till they die in despair. It is rare even to find one worth $50, but numerous small ones are found, though in the final summing up of receipts the fishers get more for the lustrous shells from the button factories than they do for the pearls they seek in the shells. They make a fair living out of the shells, as they never would out of the pearl, which contains a moral, if you want to look for it."—New York Sun.

Mastication.

"The body is a manufactory," said a doctor recently. It has to manufacture bone, and blood and muscle and brain, and a wonderful process it is. Now, the first part of the process takes place in the mouth, and, as in most factories, the first is the most important. If a wrong start is made, everything that follows is put wrong. If the food isn't well masticated and mixed with the saliva the stomach, the liver and the intestines are thrown out of gear, consequently most of the more advanced doctors are paying a great deal of attention to the condition of their patients' teeth. They know, to quote Shakespeare a bit, that "good digestion waits on mastication, and health on both."

National Parks.

Our national parks are: Yellowstone National park, in Wyoming; Montana and Idaho; Yosemite National park, California; Glacier National park, Montana; Mount Ranier National park, Washington; Sequoia National park, California; General Grant National park, California; Crater Lake National park, Oregon; Wald Lake National park, South Dakota; Sully's Hill park, North Dakota; Platt National park, Oklahoma; Moss Verde National park, Colorado; Casa Grande ruin, Arizona; Hot Springs reservation, Arkansas. In addition a number of objects of antiquity, natural curiosities and prehistoric ruins have been set aside as "national monuments."

Man's Future.

A man is a bundle of relations, a knot of roots, whose flower and fruitage is the world. All his faculties refer to nature out of him. All his faculties predict the world he is in to inhabit, as the fin of the fish foreshadow that water exists or the wings of an eagle in the egg foreshadow a medium of light air, insulate and von destroy him. He cannot live without a world.—Ferguson.

Quite Useful.

"There is one power in nature which the greatest engineer could never utilize."

"What is that?"

"The house power of a cold."—Baltimore American.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1915

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

AFFAIRS AT THE BEACH.

Mrs. Ida W. Sneed is stopping at the Carrington.

Mrs. Max Moser and daughter have returned from an extended northern trip.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fantone spent the week end with her mother at the White cottage.

Dr. Whitehead has been very busy cleaning up around his cottage on 15th street.

Mr. Pointer, the new telegraph operator, took charge at the 17th street station last Monday.

Mr. W. S. McClanan is now at home in his attractive new residence down at Lake Station.

Mrs. Edward Benson has returned home to Richmond after a visit at the Burbank Cottage.

E. B. Downing and J. D. Slatery, of Norfolk, spent Thursday at the Beach and had a plunge in the briny deep.

Mrs. Bender, and Miss Pierce of Norfolk, and Mr. and Mrs. Holmes of Washington, are stopping at the Atlantic.

Miss Lillie White, of Virginia Beach, has been transferred from Washington, to Brooklyn as naval trained nurse.

Miss Annie Pierce of Norfolk is preparing to build a residence on Maryland avenue, with R. E. Johnson, contractor.

S. L. Boxwell, has purchased through W. E. Carmen, two nice lots on Maryland avenue, and will build thereon in the fall.

J. Edwin Smith, who has no competitor as Commonwealth's Attorney for Princess Anne, paid us a visit on Thursday. Come again.

Mrs. Charles T. Ingram, of Lynnhaven was at the Beach Wednesday, and gave the Times a call. She is an indefatigable church worker.

Dr. Emerson Land has bought half interest in the Princess Anne Inn and Rev. Griffin will run it as a rooming house this season.

Mrs. Homer Atkinson, of the Atkinson Cottage, has returned from Baltimore, where she spent the winter, and has opened her cottage for the season.

A. C. Smith, one of our best-known county men and largely interested in the financial matters of the Beach, graced our sanctum Thursday, his first visit.

Capt. Payne says the fishing interests here have been profitable this season owing to the adverse meteorological conditions. He trusts the worst is over.

Dr. R. E. Perkins, of Lynnhaven, one of the oldest Masons in Virginia, being in his 93d year, has been visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. C. White on 16th street.

The announcement card of Mr. W. V. Cason appears in another column. Mr. Cason is in the field for County Treasurer, and has the confidence that he will triumph at the polls.

Mr. B. B. Jones, a banker of Petersburg, and quite popular at home and here about the Beach, was in Norfolk several days this and last week looking over his property here. He returned Sunday evening.

J. H. Kelley, proprietor of the Raleigh Rathskeller, will give a free crab supper every week during the summer on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at 8 p. m. He invites everybody to come and enjoy themselves.

NATURE'S SELECT LOCALITY

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS OF TIDEWATER VIRGINIA NOT EXCELLED IN ANY PART OF UNITED STATES.

In an article coming under our notice several months ago, which had been prepared by Dr. W. A. Flecker, a well-known authority, he presents an array of facts that should have favorable bearing upon the question of building a suitable hotel at Virginia Beach to accommodate not only summer but winter guests and tourists as well.

Dr. Flecker, who is a citizen of Hampton, Va., in referring to the climate of the Hampton Roads section, claims that Los Angeles, California, owes its growth in the main to its climatic conditions, and says that during the greater part of the year the climate in this part of Tidewater Virginia is not excelled by that of California, or in fact by any other part of the United States.

To be sure, in mid-summer and in mid-winter we have spells of disagreeable weather. But the summer heat is modified by the briny breezes which blow continuously from the sea, and the cold of the winter is tempered by the same influences sweeping across the Gulf Stream. We rarely have a hot spell or a cold spell which endures for more than a few days at the time.

As for spring, autumn, the early summer and the early winter our climate is almost ideal. It is certainly not excelled if indeed it be equaled anywhere on the Atlantic coast.

There is a limited area of the earth's surface in which the elements of latitude, range of temperature, proximity to the ocean and prevailing direction of the winds, together with an agreeable quantity of moisture, and a large proportion of clear days are found happily blended into one harmonious whole. In the western hemisphere there is no one spot so nearly meets all the requirements of a perfect coast climate as Tidewater Virginia, centering around the finest and most beautiful of our American harbors, Hampton Roads.

Of the climate, Dr. Flecker says that freezing weather rarely begins before the latter part of December, occurring in spells, lasting usually for two or three days. The average temperature for the winter months is 41.9, against an average of 33.4 at Atlantic City, 31 for New York and 28 for Boston.

The summer average is 77.4, spring 67 and autumn 60.4. The annual range of temperature is 96, against 106 for Atlantic City and 141 for Boston.

This section makes equally as favorable an exhibit in the matter of humidity, which is as follows: Spring 67.8; winter 71.8; autumn 74.8; summer 72.6; for the entire year 71.8. The yearly average at Atlantic City is 79.4.

In the matter of sunshine, Hampton Roads holds the record. It has a greater number of clear days from year to year than any other district on the coast.

Of course there are storms, but cyclones and tornadoes are unknown. The breezes blow day and night during the warm season, and the prevailing direction of the winds is from the southwest, which uniformly gives us a refreshing breeze practically all summer from the water.

With such favorable climatic conditions it goes without saying that this section is peculiarly free from disease and is one of the most healthful regions in the world.

And Virginia Beach is one of the most popular and widely-known seaside resorts on the Atlantic coast, has paved streets, water works and sewerage, churches, schools, lawyers and doctors, is connected by a double trolley line to Norfolk, and thence all parts of the United States and world. Then with all these great advantages every interest in the community should be pooled, the proposed all-year hotel erected and the foundation laid for the building of an influential municipality in one of nature's select localities where every prospect "pleases" and every wayward wave upon the waters of the great deep "doth drown some fretful fiend of care."

Camping at Long Creek.

Twenty boys came up from Norfolk Wednesday morning on the electric line and got off at James Fishery, going direct to Long Creek, where they will rusticate for one week. They are members of Norfolk Y. M. C. A. and are in charge of C. B. Loomis, conductor of boys work, and J. Wm. Smith, physical director of the Association. Each week from now on to September last these weekly campings will be continued, a different squad of 20 going into camp each week. "Camp Clemence," in honor of A. M. Clemence, late secretary of the Y. M. C. A., is the name selected where the boys are sojourning.

The Christian Seaside Chautauqua

The Seaside Chautauqua and School of Methods of the Christian Church will begin its Second Annual Session at the Beach on Monday night, July 19, and close Sunday night, July 25. An elaborate program has been prepared and covers every phase of church work. Prominent speakers will be in attendance, and the subjects treated will be ably discussed. Among those scheduled to make addresses is William Jennings Bryan.

Christian Workers are cordially invited to attend. The Chautauqua is managed by a committee of fifty prominent church workers of the Christian Church.

Arm Broken.

Jackdoodle Lots.

County Clerk Emerson Land gives notice on the second page of this paper that application has been filed in his office for the purchase of a number of lots at Jackdoodle, which have been "knocked down" to the State for delinquent taxes. Such parties as may claim interest in these lots are notified to appear in four months and do what may be necessary to protect their interest.

The County Board of Supervisors will hold their June session at the Court House next Monday, June 28.

SWIM FROM CAPE TO CAPE

CONSIDERED MOST DIFFICULT AQUATIC FEAT EVER ATTEMPTED--DISTANCE FOURTEEN MILES.

Charles B. Bubrow, famous Philadelphia, long distances swimmer is making arrangements to attempt to swim from Cape Charles to Cape Henry, a distance of fourteen miles, a feat not heretofore attempted, it is considered one of the most difficult aquatic tasks on this side of the Atlantic ocean and is regarded by some water experts as equal to swimming across the English channel.

Bubrow is one of the best-known swimmers in America, and holds both the fresh and salt water American distance records and had covered all the difficult courses on the Eastern seaboard. He established the fresh water record by going 34 miles in the Delaware river, covering the distance in 12 hours and 44 minutes. Bubrow is 33 years old, stands six feet in his stockings and weighs 207 pounds. He holds a responsible position in the First National Bank of Philadelphia.

Bubrow has said the Cape Charles to Cape Henry swim will be his last attempt on time and distance. He intended to retire last year, but when he was told of the swift tides, baffling currents and prevailing rough water that had caused all attempts to swim the entrance to Chesapeake Bay to result in failures he decided to tackle the problem before giving up the game.

The ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church will meet in the Social hall of the church next Tuesday afternoon at 3:30. A full attendance is desired as important business needs attention.

The once famous bath house belonging to the Virginia Beach Hotel is no more. The storm of a few weeks ago blew it down, and to save the lumber, Mr. A. C. Smith, the owner, had the last vestige of the old landmark carted away to be utilized elsewhere.

Guests at the Blue Sea Cottage—Mr. Jones and Mr. L. A. Grubbs of Clifton Forge, Mrs. H. F. Plummer and Miss Plummer of Portsmouth, Mrs. Collins of Stony Creek, Mr. Richard Howard Newsums and Mrs. Dixon of Florida.

The Virginia Beach Library hall on 17th street is being enlarged and otherwise improved. As there is more space than is required for library purposes a part of the space is to be used for a branch of a Norfolk optician. The latter sees a future for the Beach.

One of the largest picnic parties of the season came to the Beach Monday, June 21, from Fourth street Baptist church of Portsmouth. Eight coaches and a baggage car brought in 700 or 800 happy excursionists. The day was fine and the occasion one of great enjoyment.

The following is a partial list of guests who came to the Beach Tuesday on a ten-day outing: Rev. Geo. Swope and family, Mrs. J. D. Armstrong and two daughters, Mrs. T. O. Payne and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hall and daughters, Mrs. Jordan of Georgia, Mrs. Land of Philadelphia, all at the Rudolph Cottage.

One dollar will bring you the Times for a year.

Important Meeting of Chamber of Commerce.

Notices calling for a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held in Masons' Hall, Monday night, June 28, have been issued. This meeting is for the dispatch of important business, and every member, as well as others having at heart the good of the Beach is urged to be present. Among the more important matters to come up is the hotel question. We were informed in Norfolk several days ago that only $20,000 was lacking to complete the plans necessary to insure its erection. Secretary Meredith of the Chamber made reiteration as to the amount of this deficit to us yesterday. With this as the only obstacle in sight there should be no half-hearted action, but every influential and progressive person at the Beach should see to it that no further time was wasted talking over non-essentials. All should go to work with redoubled energy and the case is won.

In this connection the Times directs attention to an interesting article published in these columns relating to climatic conditions here. They are not surpassed in the United States, as the authentic figures set forth.

Sunday School Pic-Nics.

Virginia Beach continues the mecca for Sunday School Pic-nics, and every day this week has witnessed the arrival of one or more schools.

Monday, 21, the Fourth Street Baptist of Portsmouth had a large crowd here, 600 or 700.

Tuesday, June 22, St. Luke's Episcopal from Norfolk and the First Presbyterian from Portsmouth had their outing here, while the school of the Friends' Church from Portsmouth went to Cape Henry.

Wednesday, June 23, the Trinity church school from Portsmouth and the Berkeley Avenue school from Berkeley came and enjoyed their annual outing.

Thursday, June 24, the South street Baptist of Portsmouth, the Park Place Methodist of Norfolk and the Central Baptist came for their picnic enjoyment.

Friday, June 25, the School of Norfolk McKendree Methodist had a large crowd here. More will be here and noted next week.

In the Nick of Time.

As the second and third pages of this paper were being adjusted on the press Mr. F. A. Nelson, an experienced repair man, came in and asked the price for the following ad:

F. A. Nelson, Experienced Repair Man, Sewing Machines, Talking Machines, Clocks, etc., repaired. If you have anything that needs repairing send me a postal card and I will call. Repairs made at prices that will surprise you. Satisfaction guaranteed. Post Office Box 123, Virginia Beach.

Before we could tell him the pressman pulled the switch but the press wouldn't run. No one knew anything about electricity but the coming of a prospective customer was in the "nick of time." He pulled his coat, and right there and then demonstrated that his "ad" was not a fake but represented a skilled electrician. The wheels went round and round and our troubles were ended.

The ad of Mr. Nelson appears elsewhere, and we endorse him.

GROWING POPULARITY OF VIRGINIA BEACH.

The crowds at the beach are growing daily. No one with a hundred miles of this famous resort should fail to visit at least once during the summer. Here it is that earth and sea and sky unite to dower the scene with charm and beauty. The great ocean spreads its broad expanse before the wondering eye. The soft zephyrs that come across hundreds of miles of field and pine forests are constant in their ministrations making the ocean a true elixir of life, and the days of pleasure are succeeded by nights of repose. It would therefore be strange, indeed, if the population of this delightful section did not increase with each succeeding season.

THE LITTLE BUSY BEE.

Up to few Sundays ago many thousands of visitors had found interest and pleasure in visiting the two interned German vessels at the Norfolk Navy Yard. The German officers who are accustomed in their own country to drink what they like, when they like, and wherever they like, and who see no more harm or danger in drinking a glass of beer than a cup of tea, were discovered by a Portsmouth minister, dispensing the former beverage to some of their guests. The matter was forthwith rushed into print and soon brought to the attention of a ministerial board, which later drafted resolutions to Secretary Daniels of the Navy, with the immediate result that the ships have been closed and will remain closed henceforth to the general public. Thus doth one little busy bee, Prohibition's devotee, make life dull for you and me.

HAIL NEW PRINCESS ANNE.

The very general interest here and in Norfolk and in other sections of the State which followed the announcement of a new hotel for Virginia Beach is an evidence of its great need. It is a well known fact that there are multitudes of tourists of the wealthier class who will visit no resort, however alluring its attractions, unless they can secure the very best of accommodations. It might be said in all truth that nothing has so retarded the advancement of this section as its long lack of a fine hotel. That this need is about to be supplied and the project fairly under way is a matter for congratulation on all sides.

YOUTHFUL HOUSEBREAKERS.

Two juvenile thieves were recently caught by a Norfolk detective, with lead piping which they had plundered from unoccupied houses, a pernicious and damaging form of thievery. It is stated that the detective released them, giving each boy a motto which read: "I will not steal, and I will not knowingly associate with a thief." With the Police Justice firing school teachers for whipping recalcitrant boys it would seem that the only step next possible is to confer the order of merit on juvenile thieves and wrong-doers.

Whenever you hear a man criticizing a benevolent movement for the betterment of the morals of a community, when it costs a little money to secure it, you may bet your old hat he is not giving a jutey toward the said movement.

BEACH BOYS AND WIRELESS.

Several Beach boys have been experimenting in a crude way with wireless telegraphy and making some progress. Boys like these of acquiring minds should be encouraged. It starts them to thinking, and a thought begets another thought and leads onward and upward. All investigations begin in this way. From our exchanges we learn that in different sections of the State young boys are doing just the same thing and taking advantage of every spare moment to improve themselves. Some have sending and receiving sets and communicate with each other at considerable distance. Can't some of the Beach boys agree with others at Lynnhaven for instance and get into wireless touch? It would be interesting at least if not develop into some useful sphere of human activity later in life.

DIVERSIFY YOUR CROPS

Wherever you may, you will find the farmers that diversified their crops the people that are about the highway of independence, the farmer that specializes in a variety of crops, and has hogs, cattle, sheep, poultry, with plenty of home-grown feed for his stock and plenty to eat at home and is "boarding at home" and not depending on his local merchant for the necessities of life, is the progressive farmer that is not bothered at high and low cost of living.

GIVE THE BEACH ATTENTION.

It is announced that the exploitation committee of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce is working on a descriptive booklet, or booklets, to advertise Norfolk abroad. We trust that Virginia Beach will be given the full attention and space which its importance entitles it to as Norfolk's most valuable asset and the greatest seaside resort on the Atlantic coast.

THE WEST VIRGINIA DEBT.

The text of the opinion of the United States Supreme Court in the West Virginia debt matter disclosed that Virginia is required to pay one-half the costs of the litigation, estimated to total $75,000. This is declared to be quite an unusual provision. Virginia's part of the cost will fall on the bond holders.

Norfolk, Virginia

Buena Vista, June 23.—On Friday, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Vest and T. T. Robinson and daughter, Miss Saline, left for the Panama Exposition, the former going by the way of Norfolk and Western Railway.

West Point, June 23.—The prospect is that West Point will have a hotel in the near future for the entertainment of summer boarders, tourists and others. Samuel England and wife, originally of Scranton, Pa., recently proprietors of Hotel Victoria, Va., bought the "Terminal" at West Point and are getting it in order for an opening in the near future.

Newport News, June 23.—Although the Virginia Bankers Association has a total membership of 348, twenty-three of the members today placed the association on record as being opposed to the use of intoxicating drinks at the annual banquets and when the body assembled around the festal board last year, the thirty members will have to enjoy the meal without any liquors.

Houston, Va. June 23.—The County Farmers' Union held a meeting here on Monday. Mr. Bowles, of the State Executive Committee, gave an outline of the legislative program adopted by the State Convention. W. H. Baker, of Richmond, gave a very interesting account of the Farmers' and Consumers Co-operative Stores in Richmond. A discussion of the best method of marketing tobacco was entered into. It was decided to have an open meeting next month and to get a prominent speaker to attend.

Warrenton, June 23.—The Warrenton Times, formerly the Warrenton Virginian, which was bought by Mr. H. H. Hayes in April, has sold this week to Westmoreland Falls, of Loudoun county. This control and ownership of the Times, coming with the announcement of the candidacy of Mr. Davis for Governor, is received with much interest.

Marion, June 23.—Professor Charles E. Copenhaver, of Adolphi, has been appointed superintendent of the schools of Johnston City, Tenn. He will have general supervision of all of the schools in which are employed about fifty teachers, and where they have about 2,500 pupils in attendance. Professor Anderson has been a successful teacher and educator ever since he left Roanoke College, where he graduated.

Pulaski, June 23.—The new Pulaski hotel is nearing completion and a formal opening will be held Friday. This new institution is under the management of no individual interest, but will be governed by an executive board of the business men of the city. The project was launched in the winter and a very attractive building is being erected, the finishing touches of which is now being put on, and it will be completed and furnished in time for the opening on the 30th.

Of Interest to our Farmers.

Commissioner Kolner has made arrangements to furnish farmers of Virginia bacteria to use on land that will greatly increase the crop where the soil is lacking in this kind of bacteria. This application will be the nitrogen-gathering plants, the legumes, such as all the clover family, cowpeas, alfalfa, soy beans and so forth. This bacteria is made for the Department and is furnished to the farmers at cost, namely, for one acre 50 cents, for five acres 40 cents per acre.

Very often the use of bacterium will double the yield of the crop. This bacterium is not a fertilizer and does not act well on sour land. Full directions will be sent by Commissioner Kolner to anyone desiring the information. This bacterium is a minute plant that absorbs the nitrogen from the air and feeds the plant. Almost all soils are deficient, more or less, in nitrogen and nitrogen is the most costly ingredient in fertilizers. The use of this bacterium will without its use a good crop that without its use would be a failure.

These cultures are shipped in bottles in a jelly condition, which is diluted with water and mixed with the seed just before they are sown.

Davis for Governor.

Senator G. Walter Mapp of Accomack county, who was chiefly responsible for the passage of the enabling act through the last Virginia Senate, thinks the prohibitionists will not take any chances on dividing the vote between several candidates for governor, but would get together on one man before the primary comes off. Mr. Mapp considers Westmoreland Davis, who has just announced his candidacy for the governorship, the man for the place in spite of Mr. Davis' well-known sentiments in favor of local option.

Confederate Re-Union in Richmond

North Carolina sent more veterans than any other state to the re-union in Richmond this month, according to statistics furnished by Capt. D. A. Brown, Jr., chairman of the entertainment committee of the re-union. Free accommodations were provided for 9,167 veterans. Of this number, 7,135 were quartered at Camp Stuart and 2,032 in the city, while accommodations were provided in the city for 1,044 millmen, making a grand total of 10,567.

It is shown that 64,300 meals were served to veterans and 4,289 meals to millmen. Captain Brown shows in the following table the number of visiting veterans from each state for whom accommodations were provided: Veterans from Virginia, 2,330; North Carolina, 2,040; South Carolina, 366; Alabama, 292; Georgia, 638; Texas, 501; Mississippi, 351; Arkansas, 109; Kentucky, 365; Missouri, 60; Indian Territory, 3; West Virginia, 102; Oklahoma, 12; Maryland, 16; Florida, 46. These veterans, during their three days' sojourn in Richmond consumed the following amount of edibles: coffee, 3,250 gallons; Virginia hams, 600; breakfast, 1,500 pounds; sugar, 1,500 pounds; peas, 500 cans per day; bread, 12,000 loaves; butter, 1,000 lbs.; eggs, 1,000 dozen; cigars, 15,000; fresh and corned beef, 10,000 lbs.; cheese, 50 boxes; sardines, 3,000 boxes; pickles, 35 gallons; potato salad, 40 gallons; milk, 435 gallons; onions, 1,200 bunches; other condiments.

Cuts, blankets and beds were provided for all of the visiting hosts.

Boys' Corn Clubs.

The United States Department of Agriculture has just issued a record of the result of boys' corn clubs throughout the United States for the year 1914. As a result of the inauguration of these clubs the championship has gone to South, having been won by Carl Graves, at Soso, Miss., with the production of 36 bushels of corn on a single acre, at the remarkably low cost of 44.5 cents per bushel. The highest record made by any boy outside of the South was by a Pennsylvania boy, who made 16 bushels, at a cost of 28 cents per bushel.

This record was exceeded by ten of the first and second prize-winning boys in the South. The average yield per acre made by the winners of the first and second prizes in the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky and Tennessee was 150.38 bushels, as compared with an average of 104.2 bushels per acre in the Northern, Central and Western States. Taken in consideration with the records of previous years, these figures show that with the adoption of proper cultural methods, the South can be made the greatest corn producing section of the United States.

Travels on Land or Water.

A very curious vehicle that travels both on land and water has been thought out and is on the coast of Oregon for carrying passengers between Marsfield and a railway terminus 65 miles distant. The vehicle, which the inventor calls the "Amphibion," consists of an automobile body mounted on standard wheels and equipped with large pontoons, one on each side of the car. The car is driven by an aerial propeller, having a diameter of 1 1/2 feet and operated by an engine power and gasoline engine. Along the muddy beach, sands the "Amphibion" has attained a speed of 15 miles an hour. When the driver comes to a bay or inlet he drives both up it. The pontoons float the vehicle, while the aerial propeller drives it across the water at a speed of 15 miles an hour. It is built to carry 3 passengers besides the driver, and the 65-mile trip is made with ease in two and one-half hours.

Prisoners of War.

A Berlin dispatch by way of London says that the prisoners taken by the German and Austro-Hungarian armies up to June 14, totaled 1,610,000, according to the Haverdon Staats Zeitung. The newspaper says this total is divided as follows: Russians, 1,200,000; French, 255,000; English, 21,000; Belgian, 41,000; Serbian, 50,000.

Quarantine.

Changes in the Federal quarantine against foot and mouth disease, effective June 21, will free all livestock from Virginia, from stock yards and territory within ten miles of any dairy farm, which will become "restricted area."

The first rock to be used in the construction of the breakwater at Cape Lookout was placed in position Saturday. The people of the Eastern part of the State are very enthusiastic over this project. It will mean the expenditure of more than a million dollars employment of hundreds of people during the next two or three years, and its value to the seagoing people is not to be estimated.

A CARD.

To My Fellow Citizens of Princess Anne County, Virginia:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County, Va., subject to the Democratic Primary on August 1st.

In making this announcement I take occasion to refer to the part I took in the work of rescuing Princess Anne from the humiliation and disgrace of Negro rule, which then threatened our County. It was then I served my people, and it is for them to say how well I did the work. Was Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for 73 years, for 11 years I served as Election Judge and for 34 years as Full Book Commissioner. And it was during these years I had many disagreeable duties to discharge, as many will remember. On one occasion on court day at Princess Anne Courthouse the Negroes—Hodge and Land—were making violent speeches against the white people of the County. John Nash came to me and said if he had twenty men he would take these Negroes from the stand. I told him to follow me and I would take them from the stand myself. I knocked Hodge from the stand and Land jumped over the fence, both leaving their hole in their flight.

When Tony Wilson was a Negro magistrate in Kennebec, I was asked what should be done. I told my friends Tony had either to go out of office voluntarily or else he would disappear. The first case he had to try was at Princess Anne Court House. When he called his court to order I walked into the court room with a rope on my shoulder. After a while I said to Tony: "What the devil do you know about law?" He said: "Nash." I then said to him: "Do you see this rope?" He said: "Yes." Then I asked him: "Do you want to get rid of it?" I told him if he did, I would follow him. We went to Judge Kellum's office, and Tony said: "Master Judge, this here office I've got I want to get rid of it." Judge Kellum told him if he'd like to sign "these papers." Tony then said to me: "Mr. Cason, you ain't going to hang him now, are you?" I said to him that I had not said I was going to hang him, but had simply asked if he had not seen the rope over my shoulder.

On another occasion, it being court day, and the next day, Tuesday, being election day, James A. McAlpin and myself were in the Court-house yard when Jessie H. Caffee and his brother B. T. Caffee, who were running a hotel at Princess Anne, came up and said to me: "Walter, my dining room is full of Negroes and dead drinker, and my family is terribly frightened, won't you get a crowd and drive them out?" I pulled a pistol from James A. McAlpin's pocket, walked into the dining room alone and said: "I understand you Negroes want dinner. I have dinner enough in this gun for you all." The door was not large enough for them to get out. They were pulled up four or five deep at the door.

On the following night I was at Kennebec and James H. Bonney said one word not to come to the Court House the next morning to serve as Judge of Election, as 100 Negroes would be there who said they intended to take my life. I borrowed a shot gun and at dawn next day, rode to the Court House. There I found James H. Bonney and a yard full of Negroes. I drove to the back door of the hotel and got out of the buggy, making the remark: "I understand you black devils are going to take my life, and before taking it I am going to kill some of you." I then proceeded to put some shells in my gun. James H. Bonney came out in his night clothes and tried to pull me in the house. I said to him: "No, let me shoot them." His wife then came out, and yielding to her wishes, I went into the house. Just as soon as I was inside Mr. Bonney locked the door, saying that I was the biggest fool he ever saw, as the Negroes had been there all night planning to kill me. When the sun rose I observed that the Negro mob were running and falling over fence in every direction. I was one of the Judges at the polls. About 10 o'clock John Capehart, a Negro, and one of the leaders of his race in Princess Anne, drove up with five wagon loads of Negroes to vote. When the voting of whites was slack, I voted two wagon loads of Negroes. By that time there was a rush of whites to the polls. Then I said to Capehart that as he had voted 15 Negroes, and as there was now a rush of white voters I was going to vote them one by one. He said that he had to go to vote his men and then go back and get more voters, and thereupon a rush was made for the window, Capehart being in front. Then I told Capehart that if he did not move back and allow the white voters a chance I would have the window and come out and knock him down. The Negro laughed and said: "Mr. Cason, I have never been knocked down in my life." I tried to get out of the window when E. R. Burroughs, one of the Judges of Election, said: "Walter, don't you go out there—those Negroes will kill you." I got out of the window and said to Capehart: "We are friends are we not?" "Yes, sir." You asked me to knock you down and I like to accommodate my friends." Down went Capehart, falling at the window where the voting was being done. E. R. Burroughs looked out of the window and said: "Walter, has he voted?" I said no. Burroughs then remarked that he would never vote again, that he was dead. I crawled back to my place inside and told our boys to come on and vote, as it was not necessary to stop because there was a Negro. So one went up to the window to vote on account of the Negro lying there. I went out and pulled him around the corner of the Court House, where Mr. Wright took charge of him.

Six hours later some one came to me and said that Capehart wanted to see me. On going to where he was I found him sitting up and leaning against the Court House. He said: "Mr. Cason, are you mad with me?" When I told him I was not, he said he would never again ask me to knock him down—that he had seen more stars when I hit him than he has ever witnessed in the firmament.

At the next election this same Negro Capehart was appointed a Judge of election. A few minutes before sundown the following day I got out of the window to go to Bonney's for a lamp so as to see how to count the ballots, making the remark as I left for the boys not to leave too soon after the polls had been closed, as some fun was to be had. I heard such a din and so much laughing in the voting room that I went back and asked what the trouble was. They said Capehart had gone out of the back window, saying he knew what that meant, and that they were going to kill him there that night.

As to the correctness of the foregoing statements, I respectfully refer to the following gentlemen, well known citizens: J. H. Bonney, A. T. Herbert, J. I. Herriot, Randolph Ward, O. B. Bears, Solomon Bonney, Judge J. M. Keeling, E. E. Burrus, R. L. Atwood, Martin Whitehead, John Harley Whitehead, Major J. T. Woodhouse, J. O. Land, J. M. Malbon, J. T. Malbon, R. W. Ewell, J. P. Woodhouse.

And now, fellow-citizens, I submit that had it not been for prompt and vigorous action at a critical period in the political history of our county it would have been over-run by a horde of ignorant and vicious Negro officials, and that the part I played to save such calamity was in obedience to a sacred duty—a duty I owed my wife and children—aye, the family of every white citizen of Princess Anne County.

And now, at the age of 54 years, I would as quickly resent in the most emphatic and vigorous manner any similar outrage upon the white manhood and womanhood of my County as I did in younger life.

I trust all my friends will be at the polls early on the 14 day of August and say all day. Let us all pull together and put an end to ring rule.

In conclusion, I beg to assure the good people of Princess Anne County that if they elect me to serve as Treasurer, that I will give the office my undivided and personal attention and endeavor to discharge its duties with credit to myself and to the best interests of the county.

Very respectfully,
W. W. CASON.

Mr. A. Y. Forrest is expecting a visit from her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Wood of Springfield, Mass.

It is reported that W. T. Jarvis and Tom Stormont towed a party to Norfolk from the Casino last Sunday night who missed the last car.

The ladies aid society of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Ed. White on Tuesday 22nd to arrange for the fourth of July dinner.

F. J. Cooley, Electrician, is always prepared to do your electrical work. He is a hustler and deserves consideration at the Beach. His work, as well as prices, will satisfy all.

Daniel Arthur, our city plasterer, is prepared to do anything in the plastering line at very reasonable prices and up-to-date work. Call him when you have plastering, pitching or anything in this line to do. His work and prices will please you.

The ladies of the Methodist Church will give one of their famous dinners near the Casino on Wednesday, July 5th, from noon until night. Fish, chicken, ham, salads, pickles, tea, coffee, ice cream and cake will be served. Ice cream and cake will be extra. This is a worthy cause and should be well patronized by all.

A new cleaning and pressing establishment has been opened on 17th street where all kinds of cleaning, pressing, alterations of ladies clothing will have careful attention. Andrew J. Pollard, the proprietor, is an expert in this line and will give his personal attention to all work. All work will be called for and delivered. Prices will be very moderate.

Leo Frank's Life Saved.

Gov. Slayton, in commuting the sentence of Leo Frank to life imprisonment acted wisely and well. There was a large element of doubt, and the accused was entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

But after all, should not capital punishment be abolished? We believe it should be. The following countries have abolished the death penalty for crime: Italy, Portugal, Switzerland, Holland, Tuscany, San Marino, Rumania, Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica, Saxony, Oldenburg, Weimer Baden, Anhalt, Brunswick, Nassau, Wurttemberg, Prussia, Bremen, all in the German Empire, Brazil, and the following States in this country: Michigan, Maine, Rhode Island, Kansas and Wisconsin, and in New York its abolition is being considered. It is claimed that more people are executed in the United States for murder, each year, than in all Christian countries together. It is a vital question that should have the attention of thinking men and women.

Murder and Suicide.

In a disreputable house in Norfolk, Sunday night, William E. Riley, a 20-year-old sailor, got in a row with a young woman named Madeline Ford, aged 21. In the wrangle he drew his pistol and shot the girl, who died almost instantly, and then deliberately turning the weapon upon himself fired, resulting in his death, also, within a few minutes. Riley was a sailor on the battleship Louisiana, which left for Tangier Sound, leaving him, by accident, behind.

Madeline Ford hailed from Baltimore, where it is said her mother resides, and had been in Norfolk about 18 months.

Negro Stabbed to Death.

At the Norfolk Southern Union Depot in Norfolk, Monday

afternoon about half past seven o'clock, a negro named Richard Lawrence, from Portsmouth, and a Petersburg colored youth about 16 or 18 years of age, engaged in a quarrel, followed by a knife duel. In the mix-up Lawrence received a stab from the blade of the boy, the blade penetrating the heart and killing him instantly. The tragedy was witnessed by over a thousand colored excursionists who were preparing to return. The boy was arrested. It is said he claimed that Lawrence, who is said to be a "crook," attempted to rob him.

Drug Fiend.

Dr. J. H. Thomas of Greenville, Augusta county, Virginia, had a hearing this week in Richmond before the State Board of Medical Examiners, on the charge of being a drug fiend and a dangerous man to practice medicine. His case was continued until December for further hearing.

Among the applicants to practice medicine before the Board were five Negroes and one woman.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1915

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

AFFAIRS AT THE BEACH.

Miss Ida W. Sneed is stopping at the Carrington.

Mrs. Max Moser and daughter have returned from an extended northern trip.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fantone spent the week end with her mother at the White cottage.

Dr. Whitehead has been very busy cleaning up around his cottage on 15th street.

Mr. Pointer, the new telegraph operator, took charge at the 17th street station last Monday.

Mr. W. S. McClanahan is now at home in his attractive new residence down at Lake Station.

Mrs. Edward Benson has returned home to Richmond after a visit at the Burbank Cottage.

E. B. Downing and J. D. Slatery, of Norfolk, spent Thursday at the Beach and had a plunge in the briny deep.

Mrs. Bender, and Miss Pierce of Norfolk, and Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, of Washington, are stopping at the Atlantic.

Miss Lillie White, of Virginia Beach, has been transferred from Washington, to Brooklyn as naval trained nurse.

Miss Annie Pierce of Norfolk is preparing to build a residence on Maryland avenue, with R. E. Johnson, contractor.

S. L. Boxwell, has purchased through W. E. Carman, two nice lots on Maryland avenue, and will build thereon in the fall.

J. Edwin Smith, who has no competitor as Commonwealth's Attorney for Princess Anne, paid us a visit on Thursday. Come again.

Mrs. Charles T. Ingram, of Lynnhaven was at the Beach Wednesday, and gave the Times a call. She is an indefatigable church worker.

Dr. Emerson Land has bought half interest in the Princess Anne Inn and Rev. Griffin will run it as a rooming house this season.

Mrs. Homer Atkinson, of the Atkinson Cottage, has returned from Baltimore, where she spent the winter, and has opened her cottage for the season.

A. C. Smith, one of our best-known county men and largely interested in the financial matters of the Beach, graced our sanctum Thursday, his first visit.

Capt. Payne says the fishing interests here have been unprofitable this season owing to the adverse meteorological conditions. He trusts the worst is over.

Dr. R. E. Perkins, of Lynnhaven, one of the oldest Masons in Virginia, being in his 93d year, has been visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. C. White on 16th street.

The announcement card of Mr. W. W. Cason appears in another column. Mr. Cason is in the field for County Treasurer, and has the confidence that he will triumph at the polls.

Mr. B. B. Jones, a banker of Petersburg, and quite popular at home and here about the Beach, was in Norfolk several days this and last week looking over his property here. He returned Sunday evening.

J. H. Kelley, proprietor of the Raleigh Rathskeller, will give a free crab supper every week during the summer on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at 8 p. m. He invites everybody to come and enjoy themselves.

NATURE'S SELECT LOCALITY

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS OF TIDEWATER VIRGINIA NOT EXCELLED IN ANY PART OF UNITED STATES.

In an article coming under our notice several months ago, which had been prepared by Dr. W. A. Plecker, a well-known authority, he presents an array of facts that should have favorable bearing upon the question of building a suitable hotel at Virginia Beach to accommodate not only summer but winter guests and tourists as well.

Dr. Plecker, who is a citizen of Hampton, Va., in referring to the climate of the Hampton Roads section, claims that Los Angeles, California, owes its growth in the main to its climatic conditions, and says that during the greater part of the year the climate in this part of Tidewater Virginia is not excelled by that of California, or in fact by any other part of the United States.

To be sure, in mid-summer and in mid-winter we have spells of disagreeable weather. But the summer heat is modified by the briny breezes which blow continuously from the sea, and the cold of the winter is tempered by the same influences sweeping across the Gulf Stream. We rarely have a hot spell or a cold spell which endures for more than a few days at the time.

As for spring, autumn, the early summer and the early winter our climate is almost ideal. It is certainly not excelled if indeed it be equaled anywhere on the Atlantic coast.

There is a limited area of the earth's surface in which the elements of latitude, range of temperature, proximity to the ocean and prevailing direction of the winds, together with an agreeable quantity of moisture, and a large proportion of clear days are found happily blended into one harmonious whole. In the western hemisphere there is no one spot so nearly meets all the requirements of a perfect coast climate as Tidewater Virginia, centering around the finest and most beautiful of our American harbors, Hampton Roads.

Of the climate, Dr. Plecker says that freezing weather rarely begins before the latter part of December, occurring in spells, lasting usually for two or three days. The average temperature for the winter months is 41.9, against an average of 33.4 at Atlantic City, 31 for New York and 28 for Boston.

The summer average is 77.4, spring 57 and autumn 60.4. The annual range of temperature is 96, against 106 for Atlantic City and 141 for Boston.

This section makes equally as favorable an exhibit in the matter of humidity, which is as follows: Spring 67.8; summer 71.8; autumn 74.8; winter 72.6; for the entire year 71.8. The yearly average at Atlantic City is 79.4. In the matter of sunshine, Hampton Roads holds the record. It has a greater number of clear days from year to year than any other district on the coast.

Of course there are storms, but cyclones and tornadoes are unknown. The breezes blow day and night during the warm season, and the prevailing direction of the winds is from the southwest, while uniformly gives us a refreshing breeze practically all summer from the west.

With such favorable climatic conditions it goes without saying that this section is peculiarly free from disease and is one of the most healthful regions in the world.

And Virginia Beach is one of the most popular and widely-known seaside resorts on the Atlantic coast, has paved streets, water works and sewerage, churches, schools, lawyers and doctors, is connected by a double trolley line to Norfolk and thence all parts of the United States and world. Then with all these great advantages every interest in the community should be pooled, the proposed all-year hotel erected and the foundation laid for the building of an influential municipality in one of nature's select localities where every prospect pleases and every wayward woe upon the waters of the great deep "doth down some fretful fiend of care."

Camping at Long Creek.

Twenty boys came up from Norfolk Wednesday morning on the electric line and got off at James Fishery, going direct to Long Creek, where they will rusticate for one week. They are members of Norfolk Y. M. C. A. and are in charge of C. B. Loomis, conductor of boys work, and J. Wm. Smith, physical director of the Association. Each week from now on to September 1st these weekly campings will be continued, a different squad of 20 going into camp each week. "Camp Clemence," in honor of A. M. Clemence, late secretary of the Y. M. C. A., is the name selected where the boys are sojourning.

The Christian Seaside Chautauqua

The Seaside Chautauqua and School of Methods of the Christian Church will begin its Second Annual Session at the Beach on Monday night, July 19, and close Sunday night, July 25. An elaborate program has been prepared and covers every phase of church work. Prominent speakers will be in attendance, and the subjects treated will be ably discussed. Among those scheduled to make addresses is William Jennings Bryan.

Christian Workers are cordially invited to attend. The Chautauqua is managed by a committee of fifty prominent church workers of the Christian Church.

Arm Broken.

Jacksondale Lots.

County Clerk Emerson Land gives notice on the second page of this paper that application has been filed in his office for the purchase of a number of lots at Jacksondale, which have been "knocked down" to the State for delinquent taxes. Such parties as may claim interest in these lots are notified to appear in four months and do what may be necessary to protect their interest.

The County Board of Supervisors will hold their June session at the Court House next Monday, June 28.

SWIM FROM CAPE TO CAPE

CONSIDERED MOST DIFFICULT AQUATIC FEAT EVER ATTEMPTED—DISTANCE FOURTEEN MILES.

Charles B. Buborow, famous Philadelphia, long distance swimmer is making arrangements to attempt to swim from Cape Charles to Cape Henry, a distance of fourteen miles, a feat not heretofore attempted, it is considered one of the most difficult aquatic tasks on this side of the Atlantic ocean and is regarded by some water experts as equal to swimming across the English channel.

Buborow is one of the best-known swimmers in America and holds both the fresh and salt water American distance records and has covered all the difficult courses on the Eastern seaboard. He established the fresh water record by going 34 miles in the Delaware river, covering the distance in 12 hours and 44 minutes.

Buborow is 33 years old, stands six feet in his stockings and weighs 207 pounds. He holds a responsible position in the First National Bank of Philadelphia. Buborow has said the Cape Charles to Cape Henry swim will be his last attack on time and distance. He intended to retire last year, but when he was told of the swift tides, baffling currents and prevailing rough water that had caused all attempts to swim the entrance to Chesapeake Bay to result in failures he decided to tackle the problem before giving up the game.

The ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church will meet in the Social hall of the church next Tuesday afternoon at 3:30. A full attendance is desired as an important business needs attention.

The once famous bath house belonging to the Virginia Beach Hotel is no more. The storm of a few weeks ago blew it down, and to save the lumber, Mr. A. C. Smith, the owner, had the last vestige of the old landmark carted away to be utilized elsewhere.

Guests at the Blue Sea Cottage—Mr. Jones and Mr. L. A. Grubbs of Clifton Forge, Mrs. H. F. Plummer and Miss Plummer of Portsmouth, Mrs. Collins of Stoney Creek, Mr. Richard Howard Newsoms and Mrs. Dixon of Florida.

The Virginia Beach Library hall on 17th street is being enlarged and otherwise improved. As there is more space than is required for library purposes a part of the space is to be used for a branch of a Norfolk optician. The latter sees a future for the Beach.

One of the largest picnic parties of the season came to the Beach Monday, June 21, from Fourth street Baptist church of Portsmouth. Eight coaches and a baggage car brought in 700 or 800 happy excursionists. The day was fine and the occasion one of great enjoyment.

The following is a partial list of guests who came to the Beach Tuesday on a ten-day outing: Rev. Geo. Swope and family, Mrs. J. D. Armstrong and two daughters, Mrs. T. O. Payne and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hall and daughter, Mrs. Jordan of Georgia, Mrs. Land of Philadelphia, all at the Rudolph Cottage.

One dollar will bring you the Times for a year.

Important Meeting of Chamber of Commerce.

Notices calling for a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held in Masons' Hall, Monday night, June 23, have been issued. This meeting is for the dispatch of important business, and every member, as well as others having at heart the good of the Beach is urged to be present. Among the more important matters to come up is the hotel question. We were informed in Norfolk several days ago that only $30,000 was lacking to complete the plans necessary to insure its erection. Secretary Meredith of the Chamber made reiteration as to the amount of this deficit to us yesterday. With this as the only obstacle in sight there should be no half-hearted action, but every influential and progressive person at the Beach should see to it that no further time was wasted talking over non-essentials. All should go to work with redoubled energy and the case is won.

In this connection the Times directs attention to an interesting article published in these columns relating to climatic conditions here. They are not surpassed in the United States, as the authentic figures set forth.

Sunday School Pic-Nics.

Virginia Beach continues the mecca for Sunday School Pic-nics, and every day this week has witnessed the arrival of one or more schools.

Monday, 21, the Fourth Street Baptist of Portsmouth had a large crowd here, 600 or 700.

Tuesday, June 22, St. Luke's Episcopal from Norfolk and the First Presbyterian from Portsmouth had their outing here, while the school of the Friends' Church from Portsmouth went to Cape Henry.

Wednesday, June 23, the Trinity church school from Portsmouth and the Berkeley Avenue school from Berkeley came and enjoyed their annual outing.

Thursday, June 24, the South Street Baptist of Portsmouth, the Park Place Methodist of Norfolk and the Central Baptist came for their picnic enjoyment.

Friday, June 25, the School of Norfolk McKendree Methodist had a large crowd here. More will be here and noted next week.

In the Nick of Time.

As the second and third pages of this paper were being adjusted on the press Mr. F. A. Nelson, an experienced repair man, came in and asked the price for the following ad: F. A. Nelson, Experienced Repair Man, Sewing Machines, Talking Machines, Clocks, etc., repaired. If you have anything that needs repairing send me a postal card and I will call.

Repairs made at prices that will surprise you. Satisfaction guaranteed. Post Office Box 123, Virginia Beach.

Before we could tell him the pressman pulled the switch but the press wouldn't run. No one knew anything about electricity but the coming of a prospective customer was in the "nick of time." He pulled his coat, and right there and then demonstrated that his "ad" was not a fake but represented a skilled electrician. The wheels went round and round and our troubles were ended.

The ad of Mr. Nelson appears elsewhere, and we endorse him.

The Chancellor of the British exchequer announced Monday that the deficit between revenue and expenditures up to the close of the week amounted to $2,500,000,000, and that the daily war expenditures were costing England $15,000,000 and was still increasing.

The casualty list of the English army to June 9th show that since the beginning of the war 3,472 British officers have been killed, 6,653 wounded, and 1,049 put down as missing. From May 19 to June 5, there were 503 officers killed, 1,407 wounded and reported missing.

General DeWet, who was commander-in-chief of the Free State forces in South Africa during the Boer war with England, and who was one of the leaders of the late rebellion against the British government, has been sentenced to six years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000, having been convicted of treason.

GROWING POPULARITY OF VIRGINIA BEACH.

The crowds at the Beach are growing daily. No one within a hundred miles of this famous resort should fail to visit it at least once during the summer. Here it is that earth and sea and sky unite to dower the scene with charm and beauty. The great ocean spreads its broad expanse before the wondering eye. The soft zephyrs that come across hundreds of miles of field and pine forests are constant in their ministrations making the ozone a true elixir of life, and the days of pleasure are succeeded by nights of repose. It would therefore be strange, indeed, if the population of this beautiful section did not increase with each succeeding season.

THE LITTLE BUSY BEE.

Up to few Sundays ago many thousands of visitors had found interest and pleasure in visiting the two interned German vessels at the Norfolk Navy Yard. The German officers who are accustomed in their own country to drink what they like, when they like, and wherever they like, and who see no more harm or danger in drinking a glass of beer than a Puritan would discover by a Portsmouth minister dispensing the former beverage to some of their guests. The matter was forthwith rushed into print and then brought to the attention of a ministerial board, which later drafted resolutions to Secretary Daniels of the Navy, with the immediate result that the ships have been closed and will remain closed, henceforth to the general public. Thus doth one little busy bee, prohibition devotee, make life dull for you and me.

HAIR NEW PRINCESS ANNE.

The very general interest here and in Norfolk and in other sections of the State which followed the announcement of a new hotel for Virginia Beach is an evidence of its great need. It is a well known fact that there are multitudes of tourists of the wealthier class who will visit no resort, however alluring its attractions, unless they can secure the very best of accommodations. It might be said in all truth that nothing has so retarded the advancement of this section as its long lack of a fine hotel. That this need is about to be supplied and the project fairly under way is a matter for congratulation on all sides.

YOUTHFUL HOUSEBREAKERS.

Two juvenile thieves were recently caught by a Norfolk detective, with lead piping which they had plundered from unoccupied houses, a pernicious and damnable form of thievery. It is stated that the detective released them, giving each boy a motto which read: "I will not steal; and I will not knowingly associate with a thief." With the Police Justice firing school teachers for whipping recalcitrant boys it would seem that the only step next possible is to confer the order of merit on juvenile thieves and wrong-doers.

Whenever you hear a man criticizing a benevolent movement for the betterment of the morals of a community, when it costs a little money to secure if you may bet your old hat he is not giving a penny toward the said movement.

BEACH BOYS AND WIRELESS.

Several Beach boys have been experimenting in a crude way with wireless telegraphy and making some progress. Boys like these of acquiring minds should be encouraged. It starts them to thinking, and one thought begets another thought and leads onward and upward. All inventions begin in this way. From our exchanges we learn that in different sections of the State young boys are doing just the something and taking advantage of every spare moment to improve themselves. Some have sending and receiving sets and communicate with each other at considerable distance. Can't some of the Beach boys agree with others at Lynnhaven for instance and get into wireless talk? It would be interesting at least, if not developing into useful sphere of human activity later in life.

DIVERSIFY YOUR CROPS.

Go where you may you will find the farmers that diversified their crops are the people that are along the highway of independence; the farmer that specializes in a variety of crops and has hogs, cattle, sheep, poultry, with plenty of home-grown food for his stock and plenty to eat at home and not depending on his neighbor for the necessities of life, the progressive farmer that is not bothered at war and high cost of living.

GIVE THE BEACH ATTENTION.

It is announced that the exploitation committee of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce is working on a descriptive booklet, or booklet to advertise Norfolk abroad. We trust that Virginia Beach will be given the full attention and space which its importance entitles it to as Norfolk's most valuable asset and the greatest seaside resort on the Atlantic coast.

THE WEST VIRGINIA DEBT.

The text of the opinion of the United States Supreme Court in the West Virginia debt matter disclosed that Virginia is required to pay one-half the costs of the litigation, estimated to total $475,000. This is declared to be quite an unusual provision. Virginia's part of the cost will fall on the bond holders.

Buena Vista, June 23.—On Friday, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Vest and T. S. Dickinson and daughter, Miss Sallie, left for the Panama Exposition, the former going by the way of Norfolk and Western Railway.

West Point, June 23.—The prospect is that West Point will have a hotel in the near future for the entertainment of summer boarders, tourists and others. Samuel England and wife, originally of Stratford, Pa., recently proprietors of Hotel Victoria, Va., bought the "Terminal" at West Point and are getting it in order for an opening in the near future.

Newport News, June 23.—Although the Virginia Bankers Association has a total membership of 34, twenty-three of the members today placed the association on record as being opposed to the use of intoxicating drinks at the annual banquets and when the body assembled around the festival-banquet next year, the thirty members will have to enjoy the meal without any liquors.

Houston, June 23.—The County Farmers' Union held a meeting here on Monday, Mr. Bowles of the State Executive Committee, gave an outline of the legislative program adopted by the State Convention. W. H. Baker, of Richmond, gave a very interesting account of the Farmers' and Consumers' Cooperative Stores in Richmond. A discussion of the local market marketing tobacco was entered into. It was decided to have an open meeting next month and to get a prominent speaker to attend.

Warrenton, June 23.—The Warrenton Times, formerly the Warrenton Virginian, which was bought by Mr. H. H. Hays in April, was sold this week to Westmoreland Park, of Loudoun county. This change and ownership of the Times, coming with the announcement of the candidacy of Mr. Davis for Governor, is received with much interest.

Marion, June 23.—Professor Charles E. Copeland, of Adwille, has been appointed superintendent of the schools of Johnson City, Tenn. He will have general supervision of all of the schools, in which are employed about fifty teachers, and where they have about 2,500 pupils in attendance. Professor Anderson has been a successful teacher and educator ever since he left Roanoke College, where he graduated.

Pulaski, June 23.—The new Pulaski hospital is nearing completion, and a formal opening will be held Friday. This new institution is under the management of individual interest, but will be governed by an executive board of the business men of the city. The project was launched in the winter and a very attractive building is being erected, the finishing touches of which is now being put on, and it will be completed and furnished in time for the opening on the 30th.

Of Interest to Our Farmers.

Commlnator, Koller has made arrangements to furnish farmers of Virginia bacterium to sow on land that will greatly increase the crop where the soil is lacking in this kind of bacteria. This application will be to the nitrogen-gathering plants, the legumes, such as the clover, alfalfa, soybeans, alfalfa, soybeans and so forth. This bacteria is made for the Department and is furnished to the farmers at cost, namely, for one acre 50 cents for five acres 40 cents per acre.

Very often the use of bacterium will double the yield of the crop. This bacterium is not a fertilizer and does not act well on near land. Full directions are written by Commlnator Koller to anyone desiring the information. This bacterium is a minute plant that absorbs the nitrogen from the air and feeds the plant. Almost all soils are deficient, more or less, in nitrogen and nitrogen is the most costly ingredient in fertilizers. The use of this bacterium will often insure a good crop that without its use would be a failure.

These cultures are shipped in bottles in a jelly condition, which is diluted with water and mixed with the seed just before they are sown.

Davis for Governor.

Senator G. Walter Map of Accomack county, who was chiefly responsible for the passage of the enabling act through the last Virginia Senate, thinks the prohibitionists will not take any chances on dividing the vote between several candidates for governor, but would get together on one man before the primary comes off. Mr. Map considers Westmoreland Davis, who has just announced his candidacy for the governorship, the man for the place inspite of Mr. Davis' well-known sentiments in favor of local option.

Confederate Re-Union in Richmond

North Carolina sent more veterans than any other state to the re-union in Richmond this month, according to statistics furnished by Capt. D. A. Brown, Jr., chairman of the entertainment committee of the re-union. Free accommodations were provided for 9,087 veterans. Of this number, 7,135 were quartered at Camp Stuart and 2,000 in the city, while accommodations were provided in the city for 1,800 men, making a grand total of 10,937.

It is shown that 64,300 meals were served to veterans, and 4,200 meals to military men. Captain Brown shows in the following table the number of visiting veterans from each state for whom accommodations were provided: Veterans from Virginia, 2,300; North Carolina, 2,000; South Carolina, 500; Alabama, 200; Georgia, 400; Texas, 600; Mississippi, 250; Arkansas, 100; Kentucky, 300; Missouri, 100; Indian Territory, 100; West Virginia, 100; Louisiana, 100; Maryland, 50; Florida, 50. These veterans, during their three days sojourn in Richmond consumed the following amount of edibles: coffee, 3,550 gallons; Virginia hams, 600; fresh beef, 1,300 pounds; sausage, 1,500 pounds; peas, 500 cans per day; bread, 12,000 loaves; butter, 1,000 lbs.; eggs, 1,000 dozen; cigars, 1,000; fresh and canned beef, 10,000 lbs.; cheese, 50 boxes; sardines, 500 boxes; plums, 15 gallons; potato salad, 50 gallons; milk, 450 gallons; onions, 1,000 bunches; other condiments.

Cups, blankets, and beds were provided for all of the visiting host.

Boys' Corn Clubs.

The United States Department of Agriculture has just issued a record of the result of boys' corn clubs throughout the United States for the year 1914. As heretofore since the inauguration of these clubs, the champion has gone to South, having been won by Carl Gifford, of Saco, Me., with the production of 30 bushels of corn on a single acre, at the remarkably low cost of 14.5 cents per bushel. The highest record made by any boy outside of the South was by a Pennsylvania boy, who made 16 bushels, at a cost of 25.5 cents per bushel.

This record was exceeded by ten of the first and second prize-winning boys in the South. The average yield per acre made by the winners of the first and second prizes in the State of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky and Tennessee was 109.39 bushels, compared with an average of 104.25 by the prize winners in the Northern, Central and Western States. Taken in consideration with the records of previous years, these figures show that with the adoption of proper cultural methods, the South can be made the greatest corn-producing section of the United States.

Travels on Land or Water.

A very curious vehicle that travels both on land and water has been brought into service on the coast of Oregon for carrying passengers between Manfield and a railway terminus 45 miles distant. The vehicle which the inventor calls the "Amphibition," consists of an automobile body mounted on standard wheels and equipped with large pontoons, one on each side of the car. The car is driven by an aerial propeller, having a diameter of 14 feet and operated by an 80-horsepower gasoline engine. Along the smooth beach, under the "Amphibition" has attained a speed of 75 miles an hour. When the driver comes to a bay or inlet he drives slowly into it. The pontoons float the vehicle, while the aerial propeller drives it across the water at a speed of 15 miles an hour. It is built to carry 5 passengers besides the driver, and the 65-mile trip is made with ease in two and one-half hours.

Prisoners of War.

A Berlin dispatch by way of London says that the prisoners taken by the German and Austro-Hungarian armies up to June 14, totaled 1,610,000, according to the Bavarian State Zeitung. The newspaper says this total is divided as follows: Russians, 1,200,000; French, 250,000; English, 21,000; Belgian, 41,000; Serbian, 50,000.

Quarantine.

Changes in the Federal quarantine against flu and mouth disease, effective June 21, will free all Henrico County, Virginia, from restrictions except the Richmond stock yards and territory within three miles, of one dairy farm, which will become "restricted areas."

The first rock to be used in the construction of the breakwater at Cape Lookout was placed in position Saturday. The people of the Eastern part of the State are very enthusiastic over this project. It will mean the expenditure of more than a million dollar employment of hundreds of people during the next two or three years, and its value to the seagoing people is not to be estimated.

A CARD.

To My Fellow Citizens of Princess Anne County, Virginia:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County, Va., subject to the Democratic Primary on August 2nd.

In making this announcement I take occasion to refer to the part I took in the work of rescuing Princess Anne from the humiliation and disgrace of Negro rule, which then threatened our County.

It was then I saved my people, and it is for them to say how well I did the work. As Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for 23 years for 23 years I served as Election Judge and for 23 years as Poll Book (Commissioner). And it was during these years I had many disagreeable duties to discharge, as many will remember. On one occasion on election day at Princess Anne Courtroom two Negroes—Hodge and Land—were making violent speeches against the white people of the County. John Nash came to me and said if he had twenty men he would take these Negroes from the stand. I told him to follow me and I would take them from the stand myself. I knocked Hodge from the stand and Land jumped over the fence, both leaving their hats in their flight.

When Tony Wilson was a Negro magistrate in Kempsville district, I was asked what should be done. I told my friends Tony had either to go out of office voluntarily or else he would disappear. The first case he had in try was at Princess Anne Court House. When he called his court to order I walked into the court room with a rope on my shoulder. After a while I said to Tony: "What the devil do you know about law?" He said: "Nash, I'll tell you what I know. You see this rope?" He said: "Yes, yes, I've been watching that rope some time and I want to get rid of it." I told him if he did, to follow me. We then went to Judge Kellam's office, and Tony said: "Master Judge, this here office I've got I want to get rid of it." Judge Kellam told him if he did, to sign "these papers." Tony then said to me: "Mr. Cason, you ain't gun to hang me now, are you?" I said to him that I had not said I was going to hang him, but had simply asked if he had not seen the rope over my shoulder.

On another occasion, it being court day, and the next day, Tuesday, being election day, James A. McAlpin and myself were in the Court-house yard when James H. Caffee and his brother B. T. Caffee, who were running a hotel at Princess Anne, came up and said to me: "Walter, my dining room is full of Negroes and demand dinner, and my family is terrified. Won't you get them out and drive them out?" I asked a servant from James A. McAlpin's office, with the following message: "I understand you Negroes was dinner. I have dinner ready in this gun for you all. The door was not large enough for them to get out. They were piled up four or five deep at the door."

In the following night I was at Kempsville and James H. Bonney sent me word not to come to the Court House the next morning to serve as Judge of Election, as 300 Negroes would be there who said they intended to take my life. I borrowed a shot gun and at dawn next day rode to the Court House. There I found James H. Bonney and a yard full of Negroes. I drove to the back-door of the hotel and got out of the buggy, making the remark: "I understand you black devils are going to take my life and before taking it I am going to kill some of you." I then proceeded to put some shells in my gun. James H. Bonney came out in his night clothes and tried to pull me in the house. I said to him: "No, let me shoot them." The wife then came out, and yielding to her wishes, I went into the house. As soon as I was inside Mr. Bonney locked the door, saying that I was the biggest fool he ever saw, as the Negroes had been there all night planning to kill me. When the sun rose I observed that this Negro mob were running and falling over fences in every direction. I was one of the Judges at the polls. About 10 o'clock John Capehart, a Negro, and one of the leaders of his race in Princess Anne, drove up with five wagon loads of Negroes to vote. When the voting of whites was slack, I voted two wagon loads of Negroes. By that time there was a rush of whites to the polls. Then I said to Capehart that as he had voted 15 Negroes, and as there was now a rush of white voters I was going to vote them one by one. He said that he had to vote his men and then go back and get more voters, and thereupon a rush was made to the window. Capehart being in front, I then told Capehart that if he did not move back and allow the white voters a chance I would leave the window and come out and knock him down. The Negro laughed and said: "Mr. Cason, I have never been knocked down in my life." I raised to get out of the window when E. E. Burroughs, one of the Judges of Election, said: "Walter, don't you go out there—those Negroes will kill you." I got out of the window and said to Capehart: "We are friends are we not?" "Yes, sir." You asked me to knock you down and I like to accommodate my friends." Down went Capehart, falling at the window where the voting was being done. E. E. Burroughs looked out of the window and said: "Walter, has he voted?" I said no. Burroughs then remarked that he would never vote again. That he was dead. I crawled back to my place inside and told our boys to come on and vote, as it was not necessary to stop because there was a dead Negro. No one would come up to the window to vote on account of the Negro lying there, so I went out and pulled him, around the corner of the Court House, where Dr. Wright took charge of him.

Six hours later some one came to me and said that Capehart wanted to see me. On going to where he was I found him sitting up and leaning against the Court House. He said: "Mr. Cason, are you mad with me?" When I told him I was not, he said he would never again ask me to knock him down—that he had seen more stars when I hit him than he has ever witnessed in the firmament.

At the next election this same Negro Capehart was appointed a Judge of election. A few minutes before sundown the following day I got out of the window to go to Bonney's for a lamp so as to see how to count the ballots, making the remark as I left for the boys not to leave too soon after the polls had been closed, as some fun was to be had. I heard such a fuss and so much laughing in the voting room that I went back and asked what the trouble was. They said Capehart had gone out of the back window, saying he knew what that meant, and that they were going to kill him there that night.

As to the correctness of the foregoing statements, I respectfully refer to the following gentlemen, well known citizens: J. H. Bonney, A. T. Herbert, J. I. Herrick, Randolph Ward, O. E. Meers, Solomon Bonney, Judge J. H. Keeling, E. E. Burroughs, R. L. Alwood, Martin Whitehead, J. Darin Whitehead, Major J. T. Woodhouse, J. C. Land, J. M. Walton, J. T. Mathew, R. W. Ewell, J. F. Woodhouse.

And now, fellow-citizens, I submit that had it not been for prompt and vigorous action at a critical period in the political history of our county I would have been over-run by a horde of ignorant and vicious Negro officials, and that the part I played to save each palmy was the difference in a sacred duty—a duty I owed my wife and children—yes, the family of every white citizen of Princess Anne County.

And now, at the age of 44 years, I would as quickly resent in the most emphatic and vigorous manner any similar outrage upon the white manhood and womanhood of my County as I did in younger life. I trust all my friends will be at the polls early on the 24 day of August and stay all day. Let us all pull together and put an end to ring rule.

In conclusion, I beg to assure the good people of Princess Anne County that if they elect me to serve them as Treasurer, that I will give the office my undivided and personal attention and endeavor to discharge its duties with credit to myself and to the best interests of the county.

Very respectfully,

W. W. CASON.

Mr. T. L. Etheridge who has been sick for a couple of weeks is now out tooting in their new automobile last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Holland went out touring in their new automobile last Sunday.

Miss Mary Garber, of Richmond, who has been on a visit to Mrs. J. P. Jones has returned to her home.

Miss A. Y. Furman is expecting a visit from her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Wood of Springfield, Mass.

It is reported that W. T. Jarvis and Tom Stormont towed a party to Norfolk from the Casino last Sunday night who missed the last car.

The ladies aid society of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Ed. White on Tuesday 22nd to arrange for the fourth of July dinner.

F. J. Cooley, Electrician, is always prepared to do your electrical work. He is a hustler and deserves consideration at the Beach. His work, as well as prices, will satisfy all.

Daniel Arthur, our city plasterer, is prepared to do anything in the plastering line at very reasonable prices and up-to-date work. Call him when you have plastering, patching or anything in this line to do. His work and prices will please you.

The ladies of the Methodist Church will give one of their famous dinners near the Casino on Wednesday, July 25th, from noon until 10 o'clock. Fish, chicken, ham, salads, pickles, tea, coffee, ice cream and cake will be served. Ice cream and cake will be extra. This is a worthy cause and should be well patronized by all.

A new cleaning and pressing establishment has been opened on 17th street where all kinds of cleaning, pressing, alterations of ladies clothing will have careful attention. Andrea J. Pollard, the proprietor, is an expert in this line and will give his personal attention to all work. All work will be called for and delivered. Prices will be very moderate.

Leo Frank's Life Saved.

Gov. Slayton, in commuting the sentence of Leo Frank to life imprisonment acted wisely and well. There was a large element of doubt, and the accused was entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

But after all, should not capital punishment be abolished? We believe it should be. The following countries have abolished the death penalty for crime: Italy, Portugal, Switzerland, Holland, Tuscany, San Marino, Rumania, Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica, Saxony, Oldenburg, Weimer Baden, Anhalt, Brunswick, Nassau, Wurttemberg, Prussia, Bremen, all in the German Empire, Brazil, and the following States in this country: Michigan, Maine, Rhode Island, Kansas and Wisconsin, and in New York its abolition is being considered. It is claimed that more people are executed in the United States for murder, each year, than in all Christian countries together. It is a vital question that should have the attention of thinking men and women.

Murder and Suicide.

In a disreputable house in Norfolk, Sunday night, William E. Riley, a 20-year-old sailor, got in a row with a young woman named Madeline Ford, aged 21. In the wrangle he drew his pistol and shot the girl, who died almost instantly, and then deliberately turning the weapon upon himself fired, resulting in his death, also, within a few minutes. Riley was a sailor on the battleship Louisiana, which left for Tangier Sound, leaving him, by accident, behind.

Madeline Ford hailed from Baltimore, where it is said her mother resides, and had been in Norfolk about 18 months.

At the Norfolk Southern Union Depot in Norfolk, Monday

afternoon about half past seven o'clock, a negro named Richard Lawrence, from Portsmouth, and a Petersburg colored youth about 16 or 18 years of age, engaged in a quarrel, followed by a knife duel. In the mix-up Lawrence received a stab from the blade of the boy, the blade penetrating the heart and killing him instantly. The tragedy was witnessed by over a thousand colored excursionists who were preparing to return. The boy was arrested. It is said he claimed that Lawrence, who is said to be a "crook," attempted to rob him.

Drug Fiend.

Dr. J. H. Thomas of Greenville, Augusta county, Virginia, had a hearing this week in Richmond before the State Board of Medical Examiners, on the charge of being a drug fiend and a dangerous man to practice medicine. His case was continued until December for further hearing.

Among the applicants to practice medicine before the Board were five Negroes and one woman.
